"Man's happiness depends upon the views
He takes of circumstances that he's in.
To some it is a greater joy to lose
Than it, to others, ever is to win."

Rev. Clarence True Wilson discloses reform's second objective—he'll conduct a meeting tomorrow evening to take up the case of "The Deadly Cigarette."

The dry reformers plan a joke,
On those who love to puff and smoke.
They have not scared the cigarette—
But oh, you kid, they'll get you yet!

* * * *

Well, wonder how long it'll be before a boy rolling a bootleg cigarette behind a smoke screen gets shot through the back of the head.

"Police of the First Precinct raided an F street beauty parlor yesterday afternoon, and arrested seven high school flappers on charges of violating the antismoking law. They were held for the grand jury under bonds in the sum of $25,000. These are the first arrests made under the new amendment to the Jones law providing a life term in the penitentiary for first offense conviction for smoking."

* * * *

If that sounds any more insane than the present Jones Act would have sounded ten years ago we'll eat our hat and join Julius Garfinckel's bare-headed cult.

* * * *

President Hoover endorses a "day of prayer for the farmer," but is this a reflection on the Senate or the House, or both?

* * * *

It is encouraging to note, in glancing over the advance notices, that some of the churches tomorrow are going to have sermons on religion instead of on prohibition.

* * * *

Perusal of the language used by Ambassador Gibson at Geneva in the matter of the American attitude toward the limitation of trained reserves, somehow to us doesn't seem to convict various foreign offices of misinterpreting his remarks. Those who draft Mr. Gibson's speeches hereafter should be careful to say what he means or mean what he says.

* * * *

This investigation of the abuses of freedom of the port may yet make it necessary for returning dry Congressmen to run the same risks taken by other smugglers.

* * * *

The Commissioners abandon the plan for opening V street, opposite the entrance to the ball park, on account of the high cost of the property involved. It seems but yesterday when "Cow Town" was out in the country, instead of in "Down-Town Washington."

* * * *

Belated returns from the outlying precincts, as an old police reporter would put it, indicate that 1929 is likely to go down in history as the year of the big winds.

* * * *

The House of Commons proposes to raise the marriage age in Great Britain, but no government has yet been wise enough to fix the matrimonial boundary at the age when folks are old enough to know better.

* * * *

Representative Michaelson, of Illinois, engages his lawyer and all he needs now is a leave of absence and an alibi.

* * * *

Missouri crops are reported to have escaped damage from frost in spite of the blizzard. When blizzards furnish their own warmth it takes a professional farmer to make complaint.

* * * *

Recent bootlegging activities encourage Maj. Pratt to ask for an increase of half a million. It seems a good time for the Police Department to make hay while the moonshine.

* * * *

It's hard to tell from where we sit whether Postmaster General Brown or Horace Mann will win the prize at the Georgia Camp Meeting,

"Stop your beefing and squawking,
And get to walking
For that big chocolate cake!"

* * * *

The Michigan divine who complains that he is practically tongue-tied in his pulpit because six of his vestry have their own cellars might try his hand preaching a sermon on the feast of Cana, where Christ performed his first miracle.

* * * *

Democrats are said to be delighted at the prospect of having Mr. Shouse in their midst—his name somehow sounds so reminiscent of those good old convivial pre-Volstead days.

* * * *

Are no munitions manufacturers members of the pacifist United States Chamber of Commerce? Why, we can remember when Congress couldn't authorize a new gunboat without having Big Business denounced.

* * * *

You youngsters, boys and girls, laughing sarcastically, and saying between inhales, "why they can never take away our cigarettes"!—that's the way we used to feel about our gin rickeys.

BERLIN BATTLE TAKES 21 LIVES; 3 WOMEN DEAD

Many Injured as Reds Continue 72-Hour May Day Street Fight.

SNIPERS MAINTAINING FIRE IN NEUKOELLN

State of Siege Proclaimed in Two Districts of German Capital.

STRIKE DECLARED BY 1,500 WORKERS

Communists Make Protest in Reichstag, but They Are Quieted Quickly.

Berlin (Saturday), May 4 (A.P.).—Nothing decisive had been reported from the Neukoelln battle front a few minutes after midnight this morning. The inhabitants of the district almost without exception obeyed police orders to keep their windows closed and to extinguish lights. Snipers thus were easily located by searchlights mounted on the roofs.

The police besiegers had difficulty in persuading the crowds from several large moving picture houses in the neighborhood to go home, instead of pushing in to see the excitement.

Early this morning three more bodies were brought out of the Neukoelln area, making a total of 21 known dead since the disorders began on May 1.

Snipers Battle Police.

Rifle shots exchanged by hidden snipers and the police last night peppered houses in the Neukoelln section as the officers moved to carry out the determination to quell the Communist forces that have defied them through three days and nights of rioting. Airplanes were used yesterday to locate the enemy positions in the beleaguered suburb.

The District of Wedding, on the opposite fringe of town, apparently had quieted down except for the excitement of the house-to-house visits of the police searching for weapons.

All fighting centered in Neukoelln, where the number of victims yesterday was given as five killed and seven gravely wounded. That made the total since the disorders began on May 1, 18 dead, with 110 seriously injured now lying in various hospitals of the city. The number of less seriously injured could not be estimated, even approximately, for no records were made.

Three women, who imprudently ventured out on the balconies of their apartments, were among those killed and one man was slain by a stray bullet at a street crossing. Three of the injured were laborers on a new subway, who got into the line of fire.

State of Siege Declared.

Both areas last night were proclaimed in state of siege and citizens were warned that they risked their lives by venturing on the streets between 9 p. m. and 4 a. m.

The police stormed a barricade in Wedding early yesterday and then at point of revolvers forced the seventeen youthful defenders to demolish the obstruction. This drew fire from the housetops until the prisoners shouted, "Don't fire, boys. We are captured and have to work here." In the same district the ironmonger's store was plundered, and the defenders, including women, armed themselves with butcher knives.

The police last night were not deceived by the apparent quietude in Wedding and their patrols prevented assemblies of more than three persons. No one not a resident could gain entrance to the district.

About 1,500 Berlin workers went on sympathetic strike yesterday over the

New Adventure Begun By Georgetown Scout

ROBERT DICK DOUGLAS, Jr.

Dreams which every healthy, red-blooded American boy dreams at one time or another, are coming true beyond the fondest expectations of Robert Dick Douglas, jr., 16 years old, of Greensboro, N. C., who is a freshman at Georgetown University.

Visions of whales spouting in northern waters, of huge salmon fisheries and of Eskimos in native costume are flashing before his eyes, for he has been chosen by George Palmer Putnam, New York publisher, to make a trip to Alaska and then write a book telling of hisadventures while camping, hunting and fishing.

The exact location of Douglas' goal is Kodiak Island off the southern coast of Alaska. The boy, who has taken his examinations early at Georgetown in order to make the journey, leaves Washington tonight for New York. From there he is scheduled to leave for Seattle tomorrow night with May 15 as his sailing date out of that port.

In addition to the wonders of a transcontinental trip with all its new scenery and fascinating adventure, Douglas faces a delightful seven-week vacation on the island without a care in the world.

While all this sounds like a fairy tale come true to the average boy, for Douglas it is simply another chapter in a life of good fortune and excitement which falls to the lot of few at his age. For the youngster was one of three Boy Scouts who last summer earned the right to accompany Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson on their invasion of the African jungle to hunt and make motion pictures of big game. After eight weeks in the jungle with the Johnson party Douglas and his two companions collaborated on a book, "Three Boy Scouts in Africa," which was published by Mr. Putnam and which had remarkable success on the market.

Because of Douglas' work on this first book he was selected by Mr. Put-

CHAMBER ASKS SLASH IN ARMS, AVIATION LAWS

Various Resolutions Pass as Annual Convention Adjourns.

CONFIDENCE IS VOTED IN FEDERAL RESERVE

J. H. Barnes Named Head of Board; Butterworth Is Reelected.

REPEAL OF NATIONAL ORIGINS ACT FAVORED

Eighteen New Directors for Diverse Sections Are Put in Office.

Sweeping commitments of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States favoring a reduction of armaments, legislation generally for aviation development, and utmost cooperation with the Federal Reserve System, among other miscellaneous resolutions, centering principally around taxation and tariff, concluded the annual convention of the organization here yesterday.

Julius H. Barnes, of New York City, who served the chamber as president from 1921 to 1923, was elected chairman of the board of directors, and William Butterworth, of Moline, Ill., was reelected president by the directorate immediately after the slate of 18 additional members for a two-year term had been ratified by the convention.

Five of six vice presidents were elected, a postponement being voted in the selection of an official for the Northwestern States. Alfred J. Brosseau, of New York, for the Northeastern States; Robert R. Ellis, of Memphis, Tenn., for the Southeastern States, and Paul Shoup, of San Francisco, Calif., for the Western division, were returned as vice presidents. The two new members of this group are W. Rufus Abbott, of Chicago, for the North Central States, and Charles W. Lonsdale, of Kansas City, Mo., for the Southwestern States.

John John Edson, who has served the organization as treasurer for many years, was reelected. Mr. Barnes, in his elevation to the board chairmanship, succeeds the late Joseph H. De Frees, of Chicago.

Final Speakers.

C. F. Kettering, of Detroit, Mich., vice president of General Motors Corporation, in an address on "The Impact of Science on Business," and John H. Fahey, publisher of the Worcester (Mass.) Post, who summarized the high lights of the gathering, were the final speakers.

"The Chamber of Commerce of the United States views with great satisfaction the progress which is being made toward the establishment of real peace in the world and the constructive leadership in this direction which

VILLAGE SWEPT AWAY AFTER 2 DAMS BURST; 50 NOW DEAD IN GALES

Arms Publicity Sought; Hoover Avoids Tangle

Deadlock on Limitations Brings Hope for New Agreement.

Geneva, May 3 (A.P.).—Publicity was all that could be hoped for tonight for limitation of land armaments at the preliminary commission for a disarmament conference. Direct limitation or indirect limitation by a budgetary system had both failed to receive approval.

Moved by an intense desire to achieve something, a dozen or more delegations tentatively had agreed to introduce a resolution tomorrow for adoption of a system of publicity for armament costs. This does not call necessarily for limitation or reduction, but is apparently the best step available in the present state of the conference, which is split on the question of how to limit land armaments.

The Soviet delegation today blocked the necessary unanimity on the publicity idea when Chairman Politis, of Gibson Instructed Only to Enter Discussions of Concern to U. S.

By ALBERT W. FOX.

President Hoover stands four-square for a hands-off policy so far as American meddling in strictly European affairs is concerned, and this applies without reservation to the present Geneva conference of the preparatory commission on limitation of armaments.

Mr. Hoover's stand has pointed and particular application to the question of land armaments, which he is understood to regard as a matter of European concern. It means that Ambassador Gibson is under instructions to refrain from any and all expressions of opinion on land armaments as well as on other matters of distinctly European concern, and it furthermore means that the foreign statesmen and the press generally must view Mr. Gibson's past Residents Watch as Water Destroys Homes in New Hampshire.

WARNING ENABLES ALL TO REACH HIGHLANDS

Baby Tornado in Vermont Damages Many Homes; Rivers Are High.

TRAGEDY IN RYE COVE CAUSE OF 12 DEATHS

Careful Check of 7 States in Tornado Shows 50 Killed and Over 100 Hurt.

Boston, May 3 (A.P.).—With two dams out and damage from a "baby" tornado reported, New England today felt the effect of high waters and heavy winds.

New Hampshire experienced the flood menace which struck so disastrously at her sister State, Vermont, two years ago. A village was virtually wiped out and heavy damage done after dams near Colebrook and at Belmont gave way under the pressure of water resulting from heavy rains last night. Kidderville was the village which was swept away and Colebrook reported several houses and barns carried away when the Balsam Dam broke. The Belmont-Laconia highway was torn up in places when a section of a Belmont Hosiery Co. Dam broke.

There was no loss of life reported. At Kidderville and Colebrook, both towns were notified of their danger in time for the residents of the lowlands to seek safety. Several families at Belmont sought high land before the dam broke there.

Wind Damages Vermont Town.

A "baby" tornado or sufficient force to tear the roofs off several buildings was reported from Swanton, Vt. A school van driver was injured when his car was struck a post after the horses had been frightened by the gale.

Most of the New England streams were high. The Connecticut rivers received the waters which burst through the dam above Colebrook and New Hampshire Highway Department officials said there was no danger unless more rain fell.

The Merrimack River at Lowell, Mass., was nearing a high mark for the present season, but there was no danger of the stream overflowing its banks. Lake Champlain, bordering Vermont and New York, was reported 7 feet higher than its normal low water mark.

Richmond, Va., May 3 (A.P.).—The series of tornadoes in Virginia Thursday afternoon and night were shown by carefully revised checks tonight to have taken toll of 23 lives. Six persons were in a critical condition, several others had serious injuries and approximately 100 had been given treatment.

Rye Cove, in far southwest Virginia, where a consolidated school was demolished, suffered the greatest loss, a teacher and eleven pupils perishing in the destruction of the building. Four were killed by a tornado that wrecked the Weaversville community near Catlett, one was a victim at Woodville, two at LaGrange and two at Flint Hill. All of the storms, with the exception of that at Rye Cove, were in northern Virginia, west of Washington, D. C.

Definite Check Impossible.

A definite check of the dead at Rye Cove was impossible until tonight, because of the widely scattered hospitals to which the victims were taken, their whereabouts being undetermined by parents until today. Three children reported dead yesterday were found alive. Sheriff H. S. Culbertson, of Cott County, and the Associated Press checked with the various hospitals and the families in the stricken area.

Fifty-two teachers and pupils remained under treatment in hospitals and private homes from injuries suf-

700 Quarts of Whisky Taken, and Frank Shore and James Hall Arrested.

LARGE CROWD ATTRACTED

Revenue agents swooped down suddenly on the tire establishment of Frank Shore at 1223 New York avenue northwest about 9 o'clock last night and arrested him on charges of possession 700 quarts of whisky and James H. Both are scheduled to face United States Police Court this morning, following the booking of both at First Precinct Station House, where Shore was released on $500 cash bond and Hall was released on $500 real estate bond. The latter gave his occupation as a vulcanizer at the tire shop.

Navy Tugboat, 60 Aboard, Blown Aground by Storm

New York, May 3 (A.P.).—A gale that swept the North Atlantic seacoast today carried the Navy tug Iuka, with 60 men aboard, into the mud flats near Fort Lafayette, Brooklyn. A police launch was standing by.

The vessel went aground as a heavy storm was lettin_ up over the harbor. The storm continued along the coast, however, and the wind was of whole gale force at sea. The tug and her scow later were pulled off the mud flats by another Navy tug. They were undamaged.

Flying Instructor Dies, Student Hurt in Crash

Davenport, Iowa, May 3 (A.P.).—Chester Sutherland, of Des Moines, flying instructor for the Iowa-Illinois Airways Co., was killed, and John Coin, student flier, was seriously injured when the plane fell near here today.

Coin, taken to a hospital, was unable to give an explanation of what caused the plane to fall. He was at the controls.

FREEDOM OF PORT ABUSE IS SCANNED

TRUNKS CAN BE SEARCHED

(Associated Press.)

The practice of granting freedom of the port to returning Government officials and diplomats, which was criticized by a New York Federal grand jury, was ordered investigated yesterday by Seymour Lowman, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury.

Being accorded freedom of the port relieves an incomer to the country from paying customs duties.

Lowman, after saying the practice was based upon statutes and could be changed only by Congress, found upon investigating the subject later that there was no statute bearing upon it, but that it had been followed for years. He said the custom was based on international practice and Treasury Department decisions.

The last of these decisions, and that upon which the present customs regulations are based, was issued October 4, 1920, and provided that the privilege of free entry should be extended to the baggage and other effects of foreign ambassadors, ministers, charge d'affaires, secretaries, naval, military and other attaches at embassies and legations, high commissioners and consular officers and to American officials of like grade.

It also included in the scope of the privilege prominent foreign visitors who might be designated by the State Department. The order provided that accredited diplomats or American diplomats needed only to show their credentials to secure the privileged status.

Freedom of the port has consisted in passing all the baggage of the person receiving the privilege without examination, but a study of the regulations yesterday by the Treasury showed that the old orders regarding the subject provided only that it relieved the person of paying duties and did not provide that their baggage should not be examined.

In relation to extending the privilege to members of Congress, Lowman said it could be done only when senators or representatives were abroad on official Government business. He pointed out, however, that when a member of Congress asked for freedom of the port upon his return from a foreign trip and had said that he was going on an official mission, the Treasury accepted his word without question and granted the request.

The investigation ordered by the Assistant Secretary will include the origin of the practice and possible abuses of it, as well as any impositions

1,000 Thought Dead In Persian Quakes

Russo-Turkestan Officials Rush Aid Across Border Following Reports.

Askhabad, Russian Turkestan, May 3 (A.P.).—Eleven persons were killed and more than 40 injured today when four successive earthquakes shook the surrounding country, bringing down houses in many villages. One person was killed and 26 injured here, where 90 houses were demolished. The Village of Germab was destroyed and the other casualties were recorded there.

Considerable destruction was done in the summer resort of Firuza, and a number of villages along the Persian border suffered also. Medical detachments were rushed to the aid of the isolated victims. The shocks were followed by a thunderlike subterranean roar.

Unconfirmed reports received here were that 1,000 persons had perished in three Persian towns shaken by the earthquake. The Russian-Turkestan government, on request of Persain officials, rushed aid across the border to the stricken Persians.

RUM WARFARE KILLS FIVE IN THREE YEARS

Liquor Runners, With Single Fatality, Have All the Best of It, Report.

13 INJURIES ARE LISTED

From the standpoint of deaths and injuries, policemen and citizens have got the worst of it in rum-running pursuits in Washington during the last three years, judging from a report submitted yesterday to Representative Robert G. Simmons, of Nebraska, by Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police.

The report shows that of five persons killed in that period, only one was a rum runner. This was Ottmer Fleming, 21 years old, who was shot and killed recently by Policeman Clyde O. Rouse.

The other four were:

Sister Cephus Becker, 63 years old, of Providence Hospital, who was killed when a liquor car operated by Clifton Young, colored, struck a machine in which she was a passenger. Police were chasing the rum runner at the time.

John P. Lubitch, 57 years old, who was struck and killed by a liquor car operated by Robert D Dixon, colored, at North Capitol and P streets.

Fire Lieut. Samuel L. Gallahan, who was killed when a rum car operated by James S. O'Donnell struck an engine on which he was riding. The rum car was being chased.

Policeman J. L. McAuliffe, of the Seventh Precinct, was killed by Samuel Jenkins, a bootlegger, while he was on his way to Jenkins' house to answer a complaint.

The report shows that in the three-year period thirteen policemen were injured while chasing rum runners. In the same period, according to the report, only two rum runners were injured. At any rate that is all that were treated for, or reported, injuries.

The report further states that in the three-year period, twelve men were arrested for using smoke screen apparatus on their automobiles. The disposition of these cases is not made clear.

From the standpoint of students of prohibition, the interesting thing in Pratt's report is his statement of the

VIRGINIA, MARYLAND TORNADO TOLL IS 28

Added Reports Show Rise in Fatalities and Injuries Over Two States.

MANY PERSONS INJURED

Additional storm reports and events increased the fatalities to twelve and the list of injured to eighteen in nearby Virginia and Maryland. Property damage was great.

Virginia was the hardest hit of the seven Southern States in the storm's path, with 23 dead and 75 injured. Maryland had six dead and eight hurt.

Hampton Childs, 18 years old, died at the Montgomery County Hospital at 6 o'clock yesterday morning from injuries suffered when Thursday night's gale demolished his father's two-story frame farmhouse at Laytonsville, Md.

This brought the deaths in the Childs family to three, Mrs. William H. Childs, 39 years old, the grandmother, and Florence Childs, 9 years old, dying Thursday night. Mr. and Mrs. F. Bowie Childs, Fielder, 16 years old, a son, and James Leizear, an employe, were injured.

A death occurring Thursday night, but which was not reported until yesterday, was that of Mrs. Amelia Knapp, 88, who lived with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles K. Haight, near Brookville, Md. The roof of the 200-year-old stone house in which the Haights and Mrs. Knapp lived was torn off, the walls caved in, and although Mrs. Knapp was killed the Haights escaped injury.

Mr. and Mrs. John J. Shank, 70 and 65 years old, respectively, were killed and six persons injured when the storm struck at Harmony Grove, near Frederick, Md. The injured were Mr. and Mrs. John W. Fout, Mr. and Mrs. Martin L. Wachter, Miss Dorothy Doll and Miss Helen McGlow.

Four persons died at Catlett and two at Woodville, Va. The dead at Catlett were Charles I. Allen, 60 years old, a farmer; his twin daughters, Myra and Emma, 16 years old, and H. B. Laws, 35 years old. Marshall Hawkins, 14 years old, and Mary Elizabeth Browning, 12 years old, were killed at Woodville.

The injured at Woodville was George William Pulliam, 12 years old. The Dictum Against Avoirdupois Of Police Makes 5 Reduce

Maryland's State Troopers Resort to Drastic Plans to Retain Jobs.

"Fat cops must train down to required weight or move out."

With this dictum of E. Austin Baughman, Maryland State motor vehicle commissioner, pounding in their ears, Maryland State police have been forced to such strenuous measures that even the Hollywood screen stars can well take lessons in reducing from them.

About a month ago Dr. Edward P. Perkins, medical examiner, discovered that five members of the force were away above the weight prescribed for their height by the police manual. Two were especially heavy. Baughman directed Capt. Butler, head of the State police, to have his men reduce. The order went forth and the minions of the motor law were forced to eschew sweets and starchy foods

Oelrich "Drink" Valedictory Prize Offer Arouses Muse

Department of Justice Letter Enters Competitive List With Swan Song for Recital, When Condemned Wet Mounts Gallows to Pay Extreme Penalty.

New York, May 3 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Herman Oelrich's offer of $200 in prizes for a suitable valedictory to be delivered by him on the occasion of his mounting the gallows to pay the ultimate price for taking a drink, has stirred the Department of Justice into competitive fervor, as follows:

"Department of Justice, Office of the Assistant to the Attorney General, Washington, D. C., May 2, 1929.

"To the Editor of the World—Dear Sir: I have noted in the columns of The Washington Post Mr. Herman Oelrich's request for the assistance of your paper and its readers in framing a suitable gallows swan song with which to grace the martyrdom to thirst upon which he has ostensibly resolved.

"The following has occurred to me as appropriate:

"He that would hang for a drink is a fool;
He that would drink though he hang is a slave.
From foolery and slavery, good Lord deliver us!
Hangman, draw the bar.

"Yours very truly,
"H. B. TEEGARDEN."

Mr. Teegarden's message, which the World has communicated to Mr. Oelrich for inclusion among the contest files, strikes the same note that B. J. Hamm, of Washington, D. C., essays to sound in his communication.

"I am not quite sure," writes Mr. Hamm, "whether Mr. Oelrich is sincere in what he says, or whether he is spending a little good money for public notoriety. To my mind his publication is farcical, and I suggest that he take time to carefully read what President Hoover had to say in his address to the Associated Press representatives in New York on April 29."

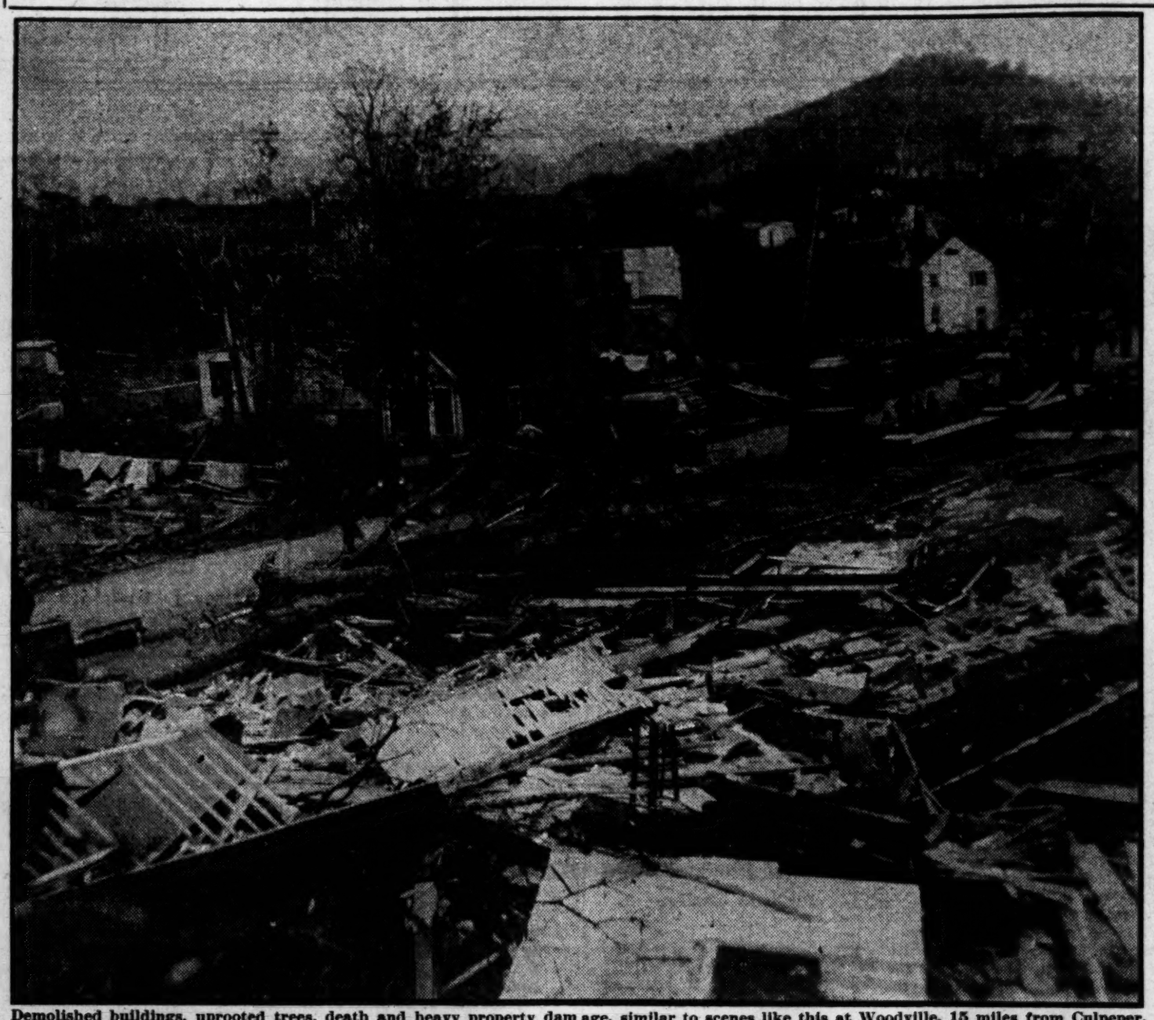
SCENE IN TORNADO-LASHED VIRGINIA, SHOWING HAVOC OF WINDS



Demolished buildings, uprooted trees, death and heavy property damage, similar to scenes like this at Woodville, 15 miles from Culpeper, Va., were left in the path of the storm. In the foreground is shown the remains of the A. T. Botts home, with the partially wrecked and unroofed L. F. Pulliam home in the rear, and on the right the scattered debris marking the site of the flattened First Baptist Church.

fered in the Rye Cove disaster. Three were not expected to live and five others have serious injuries.

Maurice Clennenden, Evelyn Ruyon and Margaret Mitchell were in a serious condition in a Bristol Hospital, while James Franklin and Avare Franklin were in a home at Rye Cove, too seriously injured to be moved.

Four Negroes Are Killed.

Four of the ten persons killed in northern Virginia were negroes. A negro and his wife perished in the wreck of their home at La Grange and a negro woman and a small child were killed near Flint Hill.

Charles I. Allen, 50, his daughters, Myra and Emma, and H. B. Laws, a farmer, were killed by the tornado at Weaversville which destroyed every building in the community. Mrs. Allen and Mrs. Laws were both seriously injured and were in a critical condition tonight at Warrenton Hospital.

Marshall Hawkins, a school boy, was killed by falling timber at Woodville.

Searchers combed the ruins at Rye Cove until late today, but found no additional bodies in the ruins of the demolished schoolhouse.

Other Tornadoes Reported.

Tornadoes were also reported from other sections of Virginia, two persons being injured in the destruction of a home in the mountains of Bath County. A repetition of the Rye Cove tragedy was narrowly averted there, a tornado wrecking two schools, one for white and another for negroes, about an hour after they had been dismissed. Mrs. J. H. Simmons and her little daughter, injured in the collapse of their home, were taken to a Clifton Forge hospital.

Several homes and a church at Nimrod Hall were destroyed and several horses killed.

The weather was very cold following the storm and snow fell today at Warm Springs.

Relief work was well in hand in the storm-stricken areas tonight, with residents offering all facilities to the homeless and assisting the Red Cross and relief organizations in the rehabilitation.

12 Dead, 56 Hurt, in Rye Cove.

Rye Cove, Va., May 3 (A.P.).—After counting 12 dead and 56 injured seriously enough to warrant physicians' attention from yesterday's tornado, grief-stricken residents of this little southwest Virginia settlement tonight turned their thoughts to funeral plans.

Services for the victims, eleven school children and one teacher, will be held tomorrow and Sunday. Plans for a joint service were abandoned today because the children lived in scattered communities.

The Rev. J. F. Craft, veteran Baptist circuit rider, will preach all the funeral sermons. He will begin early tomorrow and visit each home that lost a child.

The mountaineer parents dug graves for their dead today. Two fathers built coffins of rough pine boards.

100 Escape Similar Fate.

Despite its cruelty, fate was kind to more than 100 students of the school. The pupils were lining up preparatory to reentering the building from the noon recess when the storm struck.

More than 100 pupils had already reentered the building to begin the afternoon's work. The remainder of the enrollment had been called and were hurrying to the entrances. The tornado struck a few minutes before 1 o'clock, the hour the noon recess closes.

The wind ripped up the valley and struck the building full. Witnesses said it was literally lifted off the ground and then fell in a heap of wreckage. Children behind the school were buried in the wreckage.

Residents of this community ran to the scene and began tearing away timbers. Many children were able to extract themselves. In a remarkably short time rescuers were digging into the ruins. An occasional shout gave news of a body or a seriously injured child.

No Panic Among Pupils.

There was no panic among the pupils who appeared far less excited than their parents who grouped around the wreckage, wringing their hands and screaming.

A messenger was dispatched to Clinchport, the nearest town, to secure help.

Bristol, Va., May 3 (A.P.).—A careful recheck of the victims of yesterday's tornado at Rye Cove, Va., showed the following dead:

Ava Carter, 24, teacher.
Callie Bishop, 12.

Hoover Indorses Day Of Prayer for Farmer

New York, May 3 (A.P.).—Dr. Charles L. White, president of the Home Missions Council, made public today a letter from President Hoover indorsing an annual day of prayer for the farmer and his work. The council, which comprises almost all the home mission boards and societies of the 26 Protestant denominations in the United States, is sponsoring observance of Rural Life Sunday, or Rogation Sunday, on the fifth Sunday after Easter.

It has invited all denominations and churches throughout the world to participate in special prayers on rural life and work on that Sunday, which falls this year on May 5.

2 DIE IN MARYLAND HOME HIT BY WIND

Harmony Grove Dwelling Is Wiped Out; Six Other Persons Injured.

SCHLEY MANSION STRUCK

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., May 3.—With two dead and six injured, Frederick County awoke today to take toll of the damage wrought in the furious few minutes of irresistible wind and terrific rain which swept through the county last night.

Harmony Grove, a few miles from here, was hardest hit. The home of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Shanks was swept clear of its foundations, with not a stick left on the spot where the two-story frame dwelling had been. Mrs. Shanks was killed instantly and Mr. Shanks died from his injuries this morning in the Frederick City Hospital. Both were tossed clear of the wreckage and into a wheat field 150 feet away.

Richfield, an historic mansion house where the late Admiral Winfield Scott Schley was born, was cut almost exactly in half, one portion left standing and the other reduced to a mass of brick and lumber. Mr. and Mrs. John W. Fout, its occupants, are in the hospital here recovering from severe cuts and shock. The barn on the Richfield estate, yanked from its foundation, has totally disappeared. Many think it was thrown bodily into the Monocacy River, which flows a few hundred yards away.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin L. Wathper left the hospital today after treatment for cuts suffered in the storm. Miss Dorothy Doll was treated at her home near Frederick. Irving Bell, of Walkersville, was still in the hospital with a broken leg, crushed when the chimney of her home caved in.

The cloudburst which accompanied the wind in this territory left many of the roads around Frederick inundated. Frederick was without electric lights for more than four hours after the storm. Brunswick suffered likewise and in addition its streets were under about 18 inches of water.

The Potomac River was high and seemed to be rising. Many farmers living near its banks were moving their belongings to higher land in anticipation of the high water which they fear will follow.

All Trace of Home Lost in Windstorm

Tornado in Virginia Carries Off Barn as Woman Milks Cow.

Special to The Washington Post.

Clifton Forge, Va., May 3.—The upper end of Alleghany County and the lower end of Bath County along the Cow Pasture River were visited late yesterday by the most violent windstorm ever recorded in this part of the State. Huge trees were uprooted or snapped and twisted, houses were demolished, barns blown away, orchards destroyed and in one case a dwelling wrecked so completely that no trace of it can be seen.

A barn in which a woman was milking was lifted up and carried away, although neither the woman nor the cow was injured.

About a dozen persons were hurt. Two women were severely cut and bruised. A church was almost completely destroyed, while another, Windy Cove Church, the oldest in Bath County, was damaged, but not seriously.

The path of the windstorm was about 200 yards wide, extending a distance of about 18 miles. Ten dwellings and the same number of barns were destroyed. The property loss was about $75,000. Telephone communication was disrupted.

Mexican Hurricane Claims American

Small Craft in the Harbor of Vera Cruz Are Believed Lost.

Mexico City, May 3 (A.P.).—A hurricane swept the gulf coast of Mexico last night, wrecking buildings and plantations and leaving a ruin from Tampico south to Vera Cruz. One American, Victor Carlie, member of the crew of the American steamer San Jacinto, at Tampico, was killed.

The wind exceeded a velocity of 70 miles an hour during most of the night at Vera Cruz. It was feared a number of small craft in the harbor there had come to grief.

At Tampico the steamer San Jacinto was torn from its moorings in the Panuco River and collided with another ship. Carlie, a member of the crew, was knocked overboard and was drowned. Neither of the two ships was believed seriously damaged.

Beach Pavilions Wrecked in Storm

Other Amusement Features Damaged at Tolchester; Pier Inundated.

Special to The Washington Post.

Chestertown, Md., May 3.—Heavy winds early this morning wrought havoc along the Chesapeake Bay front and river shore of Kent County. At Tolchester Beach large trees were uprooted and the public park was strewn with wreckage of amusement pavilions and branches of trees.

The property of H. G. Stine, of Georgetown, Md., owner of a miniature railroad and other amusement features at Tolchester, was badly damaged, according to Frank Wheatley, manager for the Tolchester company. The steamboat wharf is covered with water today.

At Rock Hall and along the Chester River many small boats were washed away. Cellars of residences of this town bordering the river are flooded and many fishermen's nets along the river have been destroyed.

Marriage Notice Filed By Constance Talmadge

Los Angeles, May 3 (A.P.).—Constance Talmadge, slim, blonde star of the screen, today took her first step toward a third marriage when she appeared at the county marriage license bureau with Townsend Netcher, Chicago merchant, and filed notice of intention to marry.

Miss Talmadge, whose romance with Netcher had been reported for some time, said the wedding would be held next Wednesday at the home of her sister, Mrs. "Buster" Keaton, wife of the film comedian. Her age was given as 28. Netcher, who had been married once before, said he was 33.

Russian Singer Bankrupt.

Chicago, May 3 (A.P.).—Irene Meisrow, formerly Irene Pavloska, widely known singer, today filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy, listing liabilities of $11,674 and assets of $100, including household goods.

Tornado in Virginia Wrecks Buildings

Church and Farmhouses Are Demolished; River Rises in Loudoun County.

Special to The Washington Post.

Purcellville, Va., May 3.—A tornado struck the northern part of Loudoun County late last night and completely demolished everything in its path. It started about a mile from Hamilton, and, going in a northerly direction, devastated everything in an area ½ mile wide and 2 miles long.

The house and barn of Presley Ashe and wife, colored, were completely wrecked. Ashe was pinned beneath a kitchen stove and his wife extricated herself from the wreckage and went for aid. Ashe's leg was broken.

The Ketoctin Union Church, about 125 years old, was demolished; also barns and outbuildings on the farm of Mrs. Arthur Phillips, R. E. McCarty and Alfred Dulin. Buildings on Will James' farm were destroyed, as were a garage and automobile belonging to Robert Compher. A horse belonging to Mrs. Phillips was badly injured. Water was higher than it has been since the Johnstown flood.

26 KILLED, 75 HURT BY VIRGINIA STORM

injured at Catlett were Mrs. Charles I. Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Luther Allen, Henry Allen, Mrs. H. B. Laws, wife of one of the dead; her daughter, Arabella, and Tom Jackson, colored.

R. B. Griffith, colored, of Herndon, Va., narrowly escaped death yesterday morning when the two horses pulling a truck he was driving for the Westcott Nursery Co., of Falls Church, Va., were electrocuted when they stepped on a high tension wire on the Phillips estate near Ridge Road, and W streets northwest.

The wires were blown down Thursday night during the storm, police reported. Griffith jumped from the truck when the horses became tangled in the electric wires and escaped injury. The accident caused a tree nearby to catch on fire after coming into contact with the wires and No. 29 Engine Company was called to extinguish the blaze.

The west wall of the five-story brick building at 318 C street northwest also was partly blown in by the terrific winds which accompanied Thursday night's storm, police reported. No one was injured, however.

Classes were dismissed for a short time yesterday while repair men fixed the roof of Wesley Heights Portable School, which was damaged by the wind of Thursday night. Damage was estimated at not more than $100 by S. E. Kramer, first assistant superintendent of schools, who inspected the building during the morning.

The heavy windstorm which struck Arlington County Thursday night caused slight damage to the Patrick Henry School at Arlington, taking off a section of shingle roof. Workmen were at work repairing the damage yesterday. There was no interruption in classes, it was learned.

BALTIMORE STUDENT HELD IN TORCH DEATH

Eugene Bussey Arrested in New York Hotel as Witness Against Slayer.

SEIZED AFTER INTERVIEW

New York, May 3 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Eugene Bussey, Johns Hopkins University student, was arrested at the Hotel Biltmore tonight and taken to White Plains, where he was locked up in the Westchester County jail as a material witness against Earl F. Peacox, who confessed murdering his young wife and setting fire to her body on a lonely road in Westchester last week.

The arrest was made by Deputy Sheriff Frank Cherico, of Sheriff Thomas Underhill's staff in White Plains, on a warrant issued by Supreme Court Justice Joseph Morschauser. District Attorney Coyne applied for the warrant after Bussey had made some statements printed in an afternoon newspaper.

Mr. Coyne had talked to the student Thursday night, stating after the conversation that he "will not question Bussey further unless the affair takes on a different complexion." Bussey's statement led Mr. Coyne to believe that he possesses information that would strengthen the case of a charge of first degree murder against Peacox, who so far has maintained there was no premeditation in the killing of his young wife. Bussey is being held without bail and will be questioned tomorrow morning.

White Plains, N.Y., May 3 (N.Y.W.N.S.). Additional evidence, indicating that Earl F. Peacox plotted the murder of his gay young wife, is in the hands of District Attorney Coyne, it was learned today. Mr. Coyne would not disclose the nature of this evidence, but asserted that it was sufficient to make out a strong case of first-degree murder against the natty young radio mechanician who has confessed he floored his wife with a pistol butt, strangled and robbed her, and five days later burned her body in a woods near Scarsdale.

The district attorney said that Peacox had sprained his right thumb choking his wife in his little apartment at No. 32 Edson avenue, Mount Vernon, although he would not comment on his reasons for attaching importance to this. Legal authorities pointed out that it would indicate an attack of sufficient persistence and violence to preclude pure self-defense as a motive.

Peacox was taken to the office of the district attorney this afternoon and remained closeted with Mr. Coyne and members of his staff for more than two hours.

Mr. Coyne made it clear that he expected to be able to prove that Peacox was intensely jealous of his attractive young wife and that the motive of jealousy drove him to kill her. The district attorney denied he knew any particular person of whom Peacox might have been jealous and said that the prisoner had named no such man.

Lindbergh to Lose Wager Of $1,500 When He Marries

Friend Says Colonel Will Pay Bet He Made With Fellow Flier Years Ago—Wedding to Miss Morrow to Take Place in Paris, It Is Reported.

Chicago, May 3 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—It appears to be settled that Phil Love, an old flying pal of Col. Lindbergh, will collect $1,500 because the colonel is first to marry.

While flying the Chicago-St. Louis air mail two and a half years ago, the two fliers lived in the same home in Maywood. They were targets for sentimental girls and it looked as if one or the other would fall into matrimony. Love wagered $1,500 that Lindbergh would marry first.

Love later entered the employ of the Robertson Air Lines in St. Louis and recently claimed the money. Lieut. Donald Keyhoe, a friend of Col. Lindbergh, announced that the colonel would pay the bet when he married Miss Anne Morrow.

New York, May 3 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Anne Morrow and her fiance, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, may be married in the same French city to which the late Ambassador Herrick introduced a shy young American aviator two years ago.

It was learned today that Miss Morrow and Col. Lindbergh are planning to go to Paris for the June wedding, a romantic courtesy to the nation which doffed its bonnet to "Lucky Lindy" as the Spirit of St. Louis landed on Le Bourget Field, May 21, 1927.

A voice answering the telephone at the Morrow home at Englewood, where half of the local constabulary are guarding the privacy of Lindbergh and his bethrothed, told a reporter tonight that nothing could be said about the report of the Paris wedding. And it was not stated whether the original report that the wedding would take place at the Morrow summer home at North Haven, Maine, the rambling farm house set amid the spruce and fir trees of the 80-acre farm on the west shore of Vinal Haven, at the entrance to Penobscot Bay, holds true.

BIGAMIST-ORGANIST GIVEN PRISON TERM

Wife Was Matron of Honor at His Marriage to Music Pupil.

HIS NEW BRIDE WEEPS

Riverhead, Long Island, May 3 (U.P.). Warden Lawes, of Sing Sing, today was awarded a two-year-and-five-month to four-year-and-ten-month contract for caring for Herbert Leigh-Manuel, the delicate former organist of a West Sayville Church, who bigamously married one of his 19-year-old music pupils last December to stave off a nervous breakdown.

"I wish I could give him life," said County Judge H. Furmans, peering down from the bench at Herbert's luxurious mass of hair, which has been compared to a black chrysanthemum."

There seemed to be no doubt that the judge was one of those persons who would never understand Herbert.

His wife does, though. It was her pampering of the artistic flame that roars through Herbert's thinnish chest which put her in a peculiar position last December—that is, as matron of honor at his marriage to the tremblingly happy Miss Martha Van Wyen in the Marble Collegiate Church in Manhattan.

Family Fails to Understand.

This occurrence set a new high mark in New York State for being nice to husbands, but raised cane in the Van Wyen family. They didn't understand Herbert, either, and when the wedding party showed up for the parental blessing Herbert's black chrysanthemum narrowly escaped being nailed to his new father-in-law's front door.

After he was safe in jail and his new bride weeping in her bedroom, disillusioned as to the course of true love and the marriage laws, Mrs. Leigh-Manuel explained her part in the affair.

She loved Herbert, she said, and tried to be a good wife to him, but then she was always busy with household work and getting his meals and having babies and Herbert needed an emotional outlet. He had thought Miss Van Wyen ideal in this respect.

"You know best, Herbert," said Mrs. Leigh-Manuel. "You haven't been looking so well lately."

Wife Brings Him Shoes.

Mrs. Leigh-Manuel softened the shock of Herbert's initial jailing by bringing him some comfortable shoes and his favorite smokes. Then she scurried around and in almost no time had bailed Herbert out with $5,000 raised by signing a mortgage or two.

Herbert rewarded her by declaring that he believed the affair had gone just far enough to reduce his emotional pressure. It had let off steam. His work would benefit.

But just before Valentine Day Mrs. Leigh-Manuel noticed that Herbert's boiling point seemed to be getting low again. She smoothed his hair and arranged his pillows and listened to him and did everything she could think of. It was no use.

Then a telephone call brought word that Herbert was in jail again. He had been found bound and gagged on the lawn of the Van Wyen home. He had tried to call on Martha and met two of her brothers, John and Ted, and they had failed to understand him.

Nursing Her Fourth Baby.

Mrs. Leigh-Manuel was in a hospital at the moment, nursing her fourth baby, which had just arrived, and so she was unable immediately to raise the additional $2,000 bail demanded by the Commonwealth.

She came into court with Herbert today knowing that he had been arvised to plead guilty and ask for mercy.

With a tremulous smile she searched the face of the judge. He might be one of those who would understand Herbert. Then she heard the terrible words and knew she was mistaken. Herbert, who turner out to have a stronger nervous system than anybody thought, smiled, but Mrs. Leigh-Manuel's eyes filled with tears.

She was picturing Herbert's plight if Warden Lawes doesn't understand him either.

Fall Trial Is Reset For Oct. 7 by Court

Postponement Is Result of Illness of Pomerene, U. S. Counsel.

Formal postponement of the trial of Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of Interior, on a charge of bribery was made yesterday by Justice William Hitz in the District Supreme Court until October 7. The trial was scheduled to start on Monday.

The postponement was requested by United States Attorney Leo A. Rover because of the illness of Atlee Pomerene, one of the Government's special oil prosecutors. The Government counsel were reluctant to proceed with the trial without Pomerene at the counsel table. Attorney Wilton J. Lambert, a member of defense counsel in the Fall-Doheny conspiracy trial, which resulted in acquittal of the two, will represent Fall in the current case.

The former Cabinet officer is accused of accepting $100,000 from Edward L. Doheny, oil magnate of Los Angeles, as an inducement to lease the Elk Hills oil reserves to one of Doheny's companies. The defense contends that the money was a loan.

Clergymen Oppose Sex-Book Sentence

32 Protest Against Federal Court Fine in Case of Mrs. Dennett.

New York, May 3 (A.P.).—Thirty-two New York clergymen, representing the conference of younger churchmen, today signed a protest against the conviction by a Federal jury of Mrs. Mary Ware Dennett, 52-year-old grandmother, on a charge of sending obscene matter through the mails.

The clergymen's protest stated that "if this pamphlet is suppressed we feel that the moral education demanded of the churches will be seriously retarded."

Meanwhile it was announced at the offices of the Civil Liberties Union that Mrs. Marshall Field, Mrs. Jacob Riis and George Haven Putnam had accepted membership on a permanent defense committee being organized to aid Mrs. Dennett to appeal her case. It is planned to make the subcommittee a Nation-wide body.

Mrs. Dennett was fined $300. She announced that she would not pay, nor would she permit any one else to pay the fine, and has appealed the case.

POLICE CHIEF HELD DRY LAW BREAKER

SHERIFF SENT TO PRISON

San Angelo, Tex., May 3 (A.P.).—Carrol Bates, former San Angelo police chief, and nineteen other persons today were convicted in Federal court here of conspiring to defeat the national prohibition act. The Government alleged that Bates, while chief of police, had entered into an agreement with others to provide protection to bootleggers in return for part of the proceeds from the illicit sale of liquor.

William E. Hutcheson, who declared he was "pay-off man" for the liquor ring, testified for the prosecution that he had delivered large sums of money to the police chief.

Bates denied the charges on the witness stand. In explaining his bank deposits of $54,000 in the last three years, he said he had made heavy winnings at poker and in bets on the national election and baseball games.

A. W. Brown, a former police sergeant, was among those convicted.

Birmingham, Ala., May 3 (A.P.).—Curtis J. Falkner, who resigned as sheriff of Shelby County Monday, following his conviction in Federal court here on a charge of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law, today was sentenced to two years in the Federal Prison at Chillicothe, Ohio.

Sentences given eight other persons convicted with Falkner ranged from one to two years. They were:

Charles Goodwin and William Dennis, former deputy sheriffs under Falkner; James Long, former chief of police of Calera, and Clark Sturdivant, two years each; Frank Farrell and Will Dickerson, eighteen months each, and Hugh Shaw and Burrell Shirley, fifteen months each. Hal Martin, who pleaded guilty, was sentenced to one year and a day. All but Martin filed notice of appeals.

Detroit, May 3 (A.P.).—Six of eight former customs border patrol officers who pleaded guilty to indictments charging them with accepting bribes from rum runners received $1,000 fines and jail sentences today in United States District Court. The other two were placed on probation and given a suspended sentence.

Theodore R. Tellefsen, Harold T. Morrison, Everett W. Hurlbut, Earl A. Hand and Russel H. Brown were fined $1,000 and sentenced to six months in the Detroit House of Correction. William G. Tompkins was fined $1,000 and sentenced to a year and a day in the Federal Prison at Chillicothe, Ohio.

Charles A. Mather was placed on probation for two years and William Matthews was sentenced to two years in the Federal Prison at Leavenworth, sentence to be suspended for three years.

Missouri Crops Escape Frost, Despite Blizzard

Columbia, Mo., May 3 (A.P.).—Overcast skies prevented frost damage to Missouri crops last night, following yesterday's unseasonable blizzard, the United States Weather Bureau's State crop reporting headquarters announced here today. Minimum temperatures reported were around 34 degrees in the Ozarks fruit and strawberry belt.

While the crops came through the cold and wet weather, the Weather Bureau believes some adverse effects will be felt. Two weeks of dry, warm weather are needed, the report said, to bring agriculture to normalcy.

Son of Former Senator Shoots Self to Death

Weldon, N. C., May 3 (A.P.).—George Ransom, 50, son of Gen. Matt W. Ransom, a former United States senator and Ambassador to Mexico, was found dead in bed in a hotel here today with two bullet wounds in his head and a pistol beside him. He was declared to have committed suicide after a coroner's investigation. No inquest was held. Bloodstains indicated he had fired once while standing before a mirror and again after he had fallen across the bed.

Mr. Ransom was prominent here as a business man and was reputed to be wealthy.

Embezzler Given Eight Years.

Augusta, Ga., May 3 (A.P.).—Walter E. Clarke, former treasurer of Richmond County, today pleaded guilty to embezzling $50,000 of the county's funds, and was sentenced to serve eight years in the State Penitentiary.

OFFICIALS INDICTED IN DRIVE ON LIQUOR

Postmaster and Six Trustees of Chicago Heights Among 81 Accused by Jury.

BUSINESS OF $36,000,000

Chicago, May 3 (A.P.).—Eighty-one men, including the postmaster and former police officials of Chicago Heights, were named in indictments charging conspiracy to violate the prohibition law, returned in Federal Court here today.

The indictments resulted from an investigation of an alleged alcohol syndicate said to have operated in the Chicago suburb since January, 1925, and to have distributed upwards of 3,000,000 gallons of the contraband.

The investigation was conducted under direction of Assistant United States District Attorney Daniel Anderson.

Timothy J. Crowe, former president of the district's trustees, was in the list, which included six incumbent trustees.

Among those indicted are:

Thomas D'Amico, millionaire sugar dealer, said to have provided sugar for manufacture of the liquor.

Bahne Carnilsen, former chief of police and at present postmaster, and Edward Cassidy, former chief of police.

Others indicted were: John Castabile, former acting chief of police; William Wickman, a policeman; John Giannoni, alleged pay-off man of the syndicate; William Witchinsky, a deputy sheriff; Paul Predianelli, of Calumet City, alleged collector for the syndicate, and Mike Picci, alleged gunman.

The former police officials and policemen are alleged to have permitted the syndicate to operate and to have furnished "protection."

The violations are alleged to have occurred over the period between January 1, 1925, and March 1, 1929. A total of 72 overt acts are charged.

The others indicted were described by officials as lesser cogs in the machine, which was said to have produced $36,000,000 worth of illicit alcohol during the period under investigation.

A score of murders that resulted in a reign of terror in the turbulent suburb, was attributed to the syndicate by Federal agents, whose investigation has been in progress for more than a year.

Soon after the start of the inquiry, Joe Martino was shot to death in front of his saloon. It was the theory of agents that he was slain by members of the ring who thought he was supplying authorities with information.

Capone's Hand Discerned.

A little later, Chief of Police Leroy Gilbert, of South Chicago Heights, was assassinated after a visit to the Federal Building.

There were many other killings, in some of which agents said they encountered the hand of Al Capone. They ascertained that Capone had been in almost daily communication with Martino up to the time the latter was slain.

Capone was summoned back from his estate in Miami, Fla., and was taken before the grand jury, but little could be gleaned from him.

Capone was not indicted, Federal authorities explaining they had been unable to obtain enough evidence against him to warrant action.

Work as Cure for Ills To Be Tested by Fund

Chicago, May 3 (A.P.).—A theory that work is a remedy for ill health in some cases is to have practical application at the Michael Reese Hospital through a $100,000 bequest of the late Milton L. Hartman.

The "curative workshop" will be available for selected patients who may be benefited by work. It will serve as a place for restoring muscular functioning and adjusting the mind of patients to usual occupation after long illness.

Former Opera Singer Injured by Taxicab

Chicago, Ill., May 3 (A.P.).—Mrs. Walter Welch, 35, who formerly sang with the Wagner Opera Company under the name of Jean Sutherland, was seriously injured here today when she was struck by a taxicab.

Mrs. Welch, wife of a prominent local designing engineer, was taken to a hospital, where her condition was said to be critical.

COMMITTEE SPLITS ON MELLON STATUS

Senate Likely to Be Handed Several Conflicting Reports Vote Today.

STOCK OWNERSHIP ISSUE

(Associated Press.)

Submission to the Senate of several conflicting reports by the judiciary committee on the right of Secretary Mellon to hold office appeared likely last night, with a vote on this much-discussed proposition in sight for today.

Sufficient votes were claimed for defeat of the report of Chairman Norris, declaring that Mr. Mellon, as a stockholder, is violating the statute forbidding the Secretary of the Treasury to be interested in carrying on trade or commerce.

The committee seemed widely divided on what construction to place on this 100-year-old statute. No decision was reached yesterday after two more hours of discussion on a course of procedure for the committee; but the prospect of a vote today on a report made it appear likely that no open investigation of Mr. Mellon and his relations to the companies in which he is a stockholder would be ordered.

Friends of the Secretary, in answering the report of Chairman Norris, have put before the committee communications from five former Secretaries of the Treasury stating that they held corporate stock while serving.

These Secretaries were Leslie M. Shaw and George B. Cortelyou, in the Cabinet of President Roosevelt; Franklin MacVeagh, in the Taft Cabinet, and William G. McAdoo and David Houston, in the Wilson Cabinet.

Senator Norris, however, counters this argument with a recital of the action of President Grant in withdrawing the nomination of James A. Stewart as Secretary of the Treasury after Congress had refused to modify the statute regarding that office.

Senator Steiwer (Republican), of Oregon, who obtained the communications from the other Secretaries of the Treasury, is preparing a report which is understood to ask for a dismissal of the entire question raised against Mr. Mellon's qualification for office.

Senator Glass, of Virginia, a Secretary of the Treasury during the administration of President Wilson, has informed the committee that he owned stock in two newspapers while he was in the Cabinet, and also was one of the largest individual stockholders in an industrial enterprise in his home town.

"If Mr. Mellon is disqualified as a Secretary of the Treasury for holding stock," he said, "I was certainly ineligible to office, Alexander Hamilton was ineligible, and so was every other Secretary of the Treasury."

Schoolboy Is Drowned When Boat Overturns

Searching parties late last night were watching the banks of the Rapidan River at Madison Mills, Va., flooding it with automobile lights in three places, in an effort to recover the body of William Haines, 18 years old, son of Mrs. William J. Haines, of Cheltenham, Pa., who was drowned yesterday afternoon when a boat in which he was riding upset. The boat was struck by a log and went over a mill dam.

Graham Cameron, 16 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Barton H. Cameron, of Gordonsville, Va., who was Haines' companion in the boat, narrowly escaped death, but managed to reach shore after a terrific struggle in the swollen waters of the Rapidan. Both boys were students at the Woodberry Forest School.

ELECTED TO HEAD U. S. CHAMBER

REDUCTION IN ARMS IS URGED AT COMMERCE GROUP MEETING

the Government of the United States has taken," the reduction of armaments resolution read.

"It indorses heartily the principles of the treaty of Paris and the inspiring proposals consistent with that treaty which have been presented on behalf of our Government for the effective reduction of armaments. American business has repeatedly declared its aversion to armed conflict and to profit making influenced by the misfortunes of war.

"We pledge our unqualified support to our President and our Government in every effort toward the suppression of war as an instrument of national policy."

In recognition of the phenomenal development of aviation, the chamber declared that "State Legislatures are urged to have interstate rather than merely intrastate service in mind for their citizens when drafting aeronautical legislation and member organizations are urged to support this principle."

"The establishment of airports is essential to the proper expansion of air transportation," the resolution concluded. "Appropriate legislation should be enacted to enable the State municipalities and counties to appropriate funds and acquire lands for the practical development of aeronautics through the establishment of airports and the encouragement of the use of aircraft."

The chamber "has confidence in the Federal Reserve System and its adaptability to new conditions, and holds that the system is entitled to the utmost cooperation," the convention voted in maintaining that "basic industries, especially the smaller units of manufacture, distribution and agriculture, should not be burdened with unusually high interest rates resulting from security excesses."

Urge National Origins Repeal.

Recommendation was made for repeal of the national origins provision of the immigration law of 1924, which originally was intended to replace on July 1, 1927, the quota limit system based on the 1890 census, together with recommendation for continuance of the quota limit system now in operation, based upon 2 per cent of foreign-born living here in 1890.

Three adopted resolutions on taxation placed the organization on record as favoring "reduction of the corporate tax rate to a more equitable level;" as commending efforts of prompt settlement of liability for Federal taxes and urging that "long-delayed cases now be rapidly disposed of and that there be prompt final determination of tax liability in the future," and as urging adoption by all States of statutes for reciprocity in tax exemption of intangible personalty of nonresident decedents, or entire exemption for such property.

Advocacy of equality in tariff protection for agriculture with American industry and "a recommendation for a new and important agency of the Federal Government to deal comprehensively with agricultural problems" was expressed in the first of three resolutions relating to tariff and foreign trade.

Would Strengthen Tariff Board.

The two others on these topics favored that "the established Tariff Commission should be strengthened by the necessary authority for expeditious determination of (tariff) questions with full responsibility under the President of the United States" and that ratification of the international convention for the abolition of import and export prohibitions and restrictions "by the Senate of the United States is urged in further support for our foreign trade."

The chamber reaffirmed its position in opposing attempts to restrict the functions of the Federal courts and deplored "any and all efforts to obtain the adoption of legislation which tends to minimize the power or diminish the jurisdiction of the Federal courts, or to substitute the legislative will for the discretion of the court in the discharge of a judicial duty."

It sponsored continuation of railroad rate making by the Interstate Commerce Commission with congressional interference. This resolution likewise pointed out that "it is a long established principle of rate making that consideration should be given to the condition of the various industries, including agriculture, so that rates may be fair and not discriminatory, and that goods may move freely in commerce."

In a resolution relating to the merchant marine, the chamber recommended that "vessels of the Government laid-up fleet should be scrapped or sold for scrapping, except as to a few ships considered as reserves." "The contract principle should be applied to assist in completing the disposal of the Shipping Board lines and at the same time providing for further needed development of our overseas shipping services, including the movement of seasonal peak traffic, and when such disposal has been accomplished, a reduced Shipping Board should be given the status of an agency to carry on the regulation of the relation of merchant shipping to the public."

This resolution further urged transfer of duties affecting vessel measurement from the Treasury Department to the Department of Commerce, national and international standardization of admeasurement rules, action by Congress to cause withdrawal of the Shipping Board from marine underwriting, congressional appropriations for the Merchant Marine Naval Reserve, and proper quarantine facilities.

Other resolutions favored reduction of passport fees, improvement in transpacific press facilities, congressional appropriation for further industrial distribution studies by the Department of Commerce, further Federal cooperation on mineral and forestry problems, increased Federal highway appropriations, prompt action by Congress on President Hoover's recommendation that authority be given him to name highway advisers to Latin-American republics, uniformity of traffic rules, conservation of life and health, reduction of fire waste through "uniform legislation against the crime of arson in all of its forms," and a chamber committee to study the daylight-saving plan.

Directors Get Other Resolutions.

Nineteen other resolutions submitted were referred to the board of directors for detailed study. They included calendar reform, Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway, inter-American highway, Muscle Shoals, Philippine immigration, postal service, reforestation of national forests among other subjects.

Mr. Kettering, as principal speaker at the closing session, briefly discussed research as entering all phases of business.

"The modern business man is a success or failure largely depending on how much he applies science in his business," Mr. Kettering asserted. "Most people regard anything which they do not understand clearly as 'scientific.' In reality, the main thing about science or scientific research is simply getting the facts.

"Many consider science only as part of engineering, but the successful modern business man finds that scientific study must be given to all phases of business—finance, engineering, manufacturing, purchasing, sales, service and advertising.

"Business must change. New people born into the world force new things. We must change in the way the consumer demands. We must prepare to change intelligently to meet future demands. We must make the changes smoothly, with little loss to the community or to the individual. But change we must inevitably.

U. S. Distinguishing Work.

"One thing that distinguishes the United States from the rest of the world is not its waste, but its ability to absorb change rapidly. We displace goods to other users and other uses more rapidly than any other group of people.

Nomination on Monday of the eighteen new directors, an action tantamount to election, was followed yesterday by the induction into office of the entire group. The ten selected on a geographical basis include Leonard S. Horner, of New Haven, Conn.; Lammot duPont, of Wilmington, Del.; E. Asbury Davis, of Baltimore, Md.; William Candler, of Atlanta, Ga.; P. W. Litchfield, of Akron, Ohio; John H. Camlin, of Rockford, Ill.; Walter L. Cherry, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa; Harry A. Black, of Galveston, Tex.; George W. Holmes, of Lincoln, Nebr., and Everett G. Griggs, of Tacoma, Wash.

The remaining eight, representing as many phases of the organization's activities, include Charles W. Lonsdale, of Kansas City, Mo., who also was elected vice president; Edward P. Peck, of Omaha, Nebr.; John G. Lonsdale, of St. Louis, Mo.; H. M. Gilbert, of Yakima, Wash.; C. A. Ludlum, of New York City; Francis E. Kamper, of Atlanta, Ga.; Matthew S. Sloan, of New York City, and A. W. Robertson, of East Pittsburgh, Pa.

YOUNG COMPROMISE MAY SAVE PARLEY

American's Plan Would Give Germany Her Demands for First Year.

INCREASE WOULD FOLLOW

Paris, May 3 (U.P.).—The so-called "Young compromise" appeared tonight as the most likely hope of saving the reparations experts' conference from complete failure, but conflicting official reports of the present negotiations permitted only a picture of disagreement on all sides.

The conference was hanging in the balance, according to the most authoritative sources here, while the compromise said to have been offered by Chairman Owen D. Young was considered.

None of the delegates would admit that Young had offered a definite proposal which the allied nations and Germany might accept to break the present deadlock on the amount which Germany shall pay annually. It was known, however, that Young was making every effort to bring the delegates to an agreement and the discussions recently have centered on what is tantamount to a "peace-making" proposal by the head of the unofficial United States delegation.

Would Meet German Demands.

Most reliable reports of the terms say that the proposal would meet the German demands in the first year of operation of the plan. That would be, according to unofficial sources, something less than $400,000,000 a year.

After the first year the annuities would be increased by about $5,950,000 each year until the average payments are reached, it was said. These average yearly payments would be about $476,000,000, according to reliable sources.

The same sources asserted that the plan called for a schedule of payments over a period of approximately 40 years. The allies previously had demanded 58 years and the Germans specified 37 years.

Plan Offered Weeks Ago.

Young, it was understood, offered this plan some weeks ago when it was obvious that the Germans and allies were not likely to agree, but only at the final stages of the conference, when the disagreement became certain, did he ask both the Germans and the creditor nations to make an effort to reach a common figure.

As a result of the negotiations this week the American delegation was somewhat more optimistic, while the Germans were still buried in a cloud of pessimism.

The French made matters still more uncertain by declaring they would not reduce their claims to less than a 58-year schedule, in which the Belgians and Italians supported them.

It appeared tonight that efforts would be continued until Monday in hope of reaching an agreement.

ARMS PARLEY SEEKS ADOPTION OF PUBLICITY POLICY ON COSTS

Greece, introduced it as a last resort. Maxim Litvinoff insisted that general publicity was already the keynote of the draft treaty and that it was useless to apply it concretely to land armaments.

He argued that it would be treating the public more fairly to admit frankly inability to reach agreement on limitations. The chairman withdrew his resolution, but many delegations, including the American, decided tonight to revive it. It will be submitted tomorrow under belief that the problem of limitation has been found temporarily unsolvable.

With the expected decision to adjourn the question of naval reductions and inaugurate direct conversations among the five big naval powers, today's discord on limitation of war materials greatly reduced the scope of work of the present session.

It is likely that adjournment will be taken earlier than anticipated and another effort made later in the year to achieve more constructive results. It was believed agreement among the naval nations would give new life to a preliminary conference, and the general opinion was that new life was badly needed.

There was great speculation tonight whether the French will renounce at the present session their cherished plan of international control of armaments. This undoubtedly would be a great concession calculated to accelerate harmony. Many countries of Europe, including Soviet Russia, agree with France that the nations must be ready to abandon sovereignty enough to permit an international commission to inquire whether signatories are living up to treaty stipulations.

The control idea, however, is repugnant both to the United States and Great Britain. Its abandonment by the French would be regarded as an indication that Europe was trying to meet America half way in the matter of concessions.

statements on land disarmament in a new light.

President Hoover is not in a position where he can comment publicly on developments at Geneva at this time, but there is ample authority for the above statements, and information yesterday became available to serve as a background for clarification of the administration's position. This information will prove surprising but extremely important to the various foreign offices and to the representatives of the League of Nations at Geneva, who have apparently misinterpreted and misunderstood Ambassador Gibson's recent announcement respecting land armaments.

Ambassador Gibson's statement has been interpreted generally as an American concession whereby the United States decides with Great Britain, France and the other military powers favoring the exclusion of trained reserves from limitation. This exclusion of trained reserves, of course, means that there will be no real limitation of reserves and consequently no real limitation on land armaments.

But the expressions of gratification which have come from Geneva and France over the "Gibson concession" and the "deep emotion" voiced by French statesmen over the Gibson statement now loom as decidedly premature. President Hoover does not understand that Mr. Gibson has made any such concession as the foreign statesmen attribute to him. All that Mr. Gibson has done with the authority of the President is to explain to the Geneva conference that America has no opinion to express one way or the other on the question of land armaments and desires to remain neutral and aloof from all discussions pertaining to that subject, which is viewed by the United States as solely a matter of European concern.

There can be no reduction of land armies in Europe which will be of interest to the United States, it was authoritatively explained. Therefore the United States wishes to express no opinion directly or indirectly about this subject and the Gibson statement means simply that America wishes to retire from expressing any opinion at all.

This means that so far as President Hoover is concerned there has been no abandonment of any previous position, no concession for or against France or other powers and no intention to be drawn into the maelstrom of European controversies over this or any other subject of exclusive interest to the powers of Europe.

Particular importance will be given to the news that no future statements at Geneva are to be interpreted as representing American participation in matters that concern Europe and not the United States. If foreign statesmen for reasons of their own wish to read into Gibson's statements hidden meanings favorable to their own interests they can not be prevented from doing so but they will henceforth not overlook the authoritative warning from Washington.

The two sentences of Ambassador Gibson's speech which were interpreted by the foreign statesmen as representing a concession and a yielding to the Anglo-French majority view on land armaments were the following:

"Therefore, if we are to reach an agreement—if we are to be able to join in a common draft—it will be necessary for concessions to be made not only on the part of one but on the part of every delegation here present. I am able to declare that the American Government, as a practical matter, is disposed to defer to the views of the majority of those countries whose land forces constitute their chief military interest and in the draft convention before us to accept their ideas in the matter of trained reserves."

This phraseology is from the official copy of Gibson's speech made public by Secretary Stimson. The Associated Press of April 27 said: "Lord Cushendun then took the floor and announced that Great Britain had decided to take the same attitude as the United States on trained reserves, &c."

On April 29 the Associated Press gave the French and German reaction in the following words:

"The French newspapers have smiled with approval at American recognition of their claim of noninclusion of trained reserves as army effectives. Some of the press, however, has been hard put to conceal its surprise."

The dispatch from Berlin on the same date stated:

"Great Britain's support of the American attitude on trained reserves undeniably has increased German bitterness on the trend of the Geneva disarmament parley," &c.

On May 1 the Associated Press from Geneva stated:

"It was pointed out that England and America had in making certain land-force concessions placed themselves in position to lead in a measure, too, in that phase of disarmament in which they are not so much interested."

All of the interpretations of Ambassador Gibson's speech served to increase anxiety in senatorial circles because of the clear implication that America was acting as arbiter in a matter of distinctly European concern. But puzzled senators who have been awaiting some authoritative explanation now have in this dispatch the key to the mystery which is that the United States is not indorsing any such policy as the foreign statesmen are attributing to Ambassador Gibson and President Hoover has no intention of sanctioning any such American policy.

MANN GROUP SMILES AFTER HOOVER VISIT

Official Explanation Evades Issue, but Georgia Men Seem Satisfied.

COMPROMISE IS LIKELY

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

The "man who knew Hoover"—or rather the men—down in Georgia during the campaign breathed easier yesterday after the President took a hand in the patronage controversy with Postmaster General Brown and Horace A. Mann.

These men, H. G. Hastings, Barry Wright and Maj. R. J. Guinn, representing the Mann faction, went to the President in protest against Brown's appointment of another committee to handle patronage in their State. They were with the President for 40 minutes.

Indications are that the President gave them no more than an assurance that everything would be worked out satisfactorily and only this on condition that they keep out of the newspapers in order to avoid such headlines as "President Sides With Brown" or "President Sides With Mann." And this they tried valiantly to do. The only comment they would make is that they had had a "very pleasurable and satisfactory conference."

Satisfaction Obvious.

It was obvious that the conference had been satisfactory. They radiated an optimism that was not their mood by far after talking with the Postmaster General Thursday.

At the White House the official explanation of their visit was that they called to pay their respects. It was authoritatively stated, in fact, that they had been told that they could not broach the patronage matter with the President. This was entirely in the hands of the Postmaster General.

But the Georgians in some quaint way must have devised some means of broaching the question and this lengthened the time it took to pay their respects to 40 minutes.

Compromise Looms.

It is not improbable that Mr. Hoover's solution will be a combination of the Brown and Mann committees. There is reason to believe that Brown himself would have proposed such a solution Thursday had he not just finished reading a newspaper report that Mann had bested him when the committee called.

The difficulty seems to have been caused by the fact that although Mann is still functioning in Southern patronage matters there is not much, if any, team work between him and Brown.

Mann's committee called for nine members with Hastings as chairman. Brown set up a committee of eight with Lindsay Hopkins, Atlanta millionaire, as chairman.

It seems that several weeks ago, Josiah T. Rose, collector of internal revenue at Atlanta, long associated with the Ben Davis crowd which Mr. Hoover seeks to dethrone, came up here and gave Brown a pretty convincing argument that Mann's hand should be kept out of the Georgia arrangement.

Davis Still Stirs Trouble.

Davis, colored newspaper publisher, was raising cain and still is. He has arranged for a meeting of colored newspaper publishers in Wisconsin May 15, at which the subject of the "Republicans turning their backs upon the negroes" is to be the principal discussion.

Rose's argument was that there was no need to agitate the colored voters. It would be all right to appoint a patronage committee of upstanding white people, but keep Mann's hand out of it, because Mann was considered as being in favor of dissociating the party entirely from the negroes in the South. It is Mann's conviction and that of others who know anything of Southern conditions that the Republican party can not be built up in the South unless it gets away from the colored voters.

Davis would be appeased by a committee appointed by Brown. Rose argued, because the negroes had confidence in him. Having been a practical politician in Ohio, where the negro vote is quite important, there is reason to believe that Brown saw much merit in Rose's argument.

Adopts Rose's Suggestion.

At any rate, he wrote letters to several Georgians asking them to serve on his committee. In some quarters there is the belief that Rose furnished the list of names. Hastings himself was invited to serve on the committee, but he declined. He had been appointed chairman of the Mann committee and concluded he would throw his lot with Mann. Four of the men on Brown's committee were, however, also on the Mann committee.

The Postmaster General is said, in fact, not to have had any knowledge of a Mann committee, a fact which he bitterly complains against now. That he invited, altogether, five Mann men to serve on his committee would seem to bear the Postmaster General out in this regard.

On the other hand, those who keep closely informed on Georgia politics say that as a matter of fact if Brown's committee prevails the situation will be right back under Ben Davis' control. Hopkins, the chairman named by Brown, spends about half his time in New York. The belief is that he would be a rubber stamp for Rose. Rose is vice chairman of Davis' organization.

Mann Showed Strength.

Mann would seem to have the upper hand in the controversy, too in that Hastings was indisputably the Republican manager in Georgia during the campaign, and Barry Wright, who accompanied him yesterday, was the Hoovercrat manager. They tromped all over the State telling people that they "knew Hoover;" that the people could take their word that he was just as good a Democrat as he was a Republican.

As a result there were thousands of Crackers who concluded there might be something to that and voted for him. The two men were beginning to be somewhat uncertain as to whether they knew the President, though, until he received them yesterday.

Incidentally, in his conference with the Georgians Thursday Brown is understood to have offered to take three more Mann men on his committee, enlarging it, but that the other Mann selections were unsatisfactory.

TREASURY INQUIRES INTO PORT PRIVILEGE upon the customs bureau in asking extension of the privilege.

Free entry, Lowman said, did not permit the person receiving it to bring in contraband, such as liquor or narcotics.

He said some members of a party of congressmen which returned recently from Panama had secured freedom of the port before department by saying they were going on official business. Other members of the party cabled the Treasury from Panama, asking for freedom of the port on their arrival. Lowman said this could not be granted to those members because the Treasury had no evidence that they were on official business. This portion of the party, however, were granted what is known as the courtesy of the port, which consists of expediting their baggage, but does not relieve it from examination.

We Need Laws We Can Respect

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST

in the Kansas City Star, April 25, 1929

PRESIDENT HOOVER'S ADDRESS on law enforcement at the Associated Press luncheon in New York was a shot in the air—a blank cartridge discharged against a blank wall.

Everybody knows that the laws ought to be enforced.

Everybody knows that the President ought to enforce the laws as far as comes within the obligation of his office.

Everybody knows that the laws ought to be respected; just as everybody knows that women ought to be respected, and that women are respected by every decent man.

But occasionally there is a woman who is not respected, who is not respectable, who does not respect herself, and whom no one in his heart can respect, no matter what outward observance of respect he may render.

And so, occasionally, there are laws which cannot be respected no matter how they are observed by good citizens.

And there are lawmakers who cannot be respected—such, for instance, as gentlemen who impose dry laws upon the land and carry whiskey flasks in their hip pockets.

RESPECT FOR LAW is a good thing when the laws and lawmakers are worthy of respect.

But if the American people had had respect for all laws, good or bad, there would have been no Boston Tea Party to protest against the invasion of the rights and liberties of our people; no Declaration of Independence to declare liberty and equality as the inalienable rights of man; no United States of America to establish liberty and equality as the foundation stones of republican government; and in that sad case, no President Hoover, but only a certain Herbert Hoover, eminent engineer, and a loyal and law-respecting subject of His Majesty King George V.

Of course, there should be respect for law in the abstract, but first there should be laws which deserve respect.

It is better to respect the fundamental American principles of liberty, equality and justice than it is to respect laws which infringe upon these inalienable rights of man.

Of course, there should be respect for the lawmakers; but how can lawmakers be respected who first take a drink and then pass a law imposing five years penal servitude and $10,000 fine upon any citizen who takes a drink, and then go back and take another drink out of a bottle of whiskey which they have smuggled through the customs under their privilege as Congressmen?

Of course, law-enforcement machinery should be respected; but how can it be respected when the head of the machine tells the law-enforcement officers that the recent liquor law must not be enforced against all the community, but only against part of the community—must not be enforced in all cases, but only in some cases—and that the discretion for its enforcement lies in the hands of the law-enforcing officers?

How wide open this decision leaves the door to blackmail and bribery and corruption, when corruption is already rotting the social and political fabric of the NATION!

How this decision shatters the foundation stones of the REPUBLIC!

The cornerstone of liberty has already been reduced to dust.

And now another cornerstone—Equality before the Law—is crumbling before our eyes.

President Hoover says in the course of his speech at the Associated Press luncheon:

"We have reason to pride ourselves on our institutions and the high moral instincts of the great majority of our people."

Then later on the President complains of—

"The possibility that respect for law as law is fading from the sensibilities of our people."

THERE IS NOTHING THE MATTER WITH THE INSTITUTIONS WE HAVE—or, rather, used to have. They embody the basic principles of liberty, equality and equity upon which rest the peace and happiness of mankind.

We "pride ourselves upon our institutions," as the President truly says.

There is nothing the matter with them if we can only preserve them.

There is nothing the matter with our people. They are a great people and a good people, with "high moral instincts," as President Hoover describes them.

If, therefore, there is, as President Hoover fears, "the possibility that respect for law as law is fading from the sensibilities of our people," then there must inevitably be something the matter with the law.

If there is no sufficient respect for law when our institutions are sound and our people are good, then the inescapable conclusion is that our laws must be bad.

If there is "the possibility that respect for law as law is fading from the sensibilities" of our highly moral people, then it must be that the laws, or a considerable portion of them, are unworthy of respect by a highly moral people.

That is the unavoidable conclusion, and that conclusion makes the character of our laws the crucial question for the American people to consider.

PRESIDENT HOOVER'S SPEECH is a shot in the air—a blank cartridge fired at a blank target—because it avoids the crucial question of the cause of law infraction and concerns itself only with the superficials of law enforcement and of penalties for law infraction.

President Hoover forgets the old adage that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," and that if an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure, AN OUNCE OF PREVENTION IS WORTH TEN POUNDS OF PENALTIES WHICH DO NOT CURE.

President Hoover says:

"We have two immediate problems before us in government, to investigate our existing agencies of enforcement and to reorganize our system of enforcement."

He overlooks entirely the crucial question of reforming our LAWS and returning in our law construction and law enforcement to the fundamental American principles of liberty, equality and essential equity.

Surely, there is something the matter with the law when the lawmakers themselves break it as soon as it is made.

Surely, there is something the matter with the law when the law enforcement officers may decide in their discretion to whom it shall apply.

Surely, there is something the matter with the law when a Cossack crew of enforcement officers violate all popular rights and liberties and break into a man's house on a warrant obtained on perjured testimony, and beat him into insensibility, and shoot his wife to death as she sits at a telephone trying to get help for her husband.

PRESIDENT HOOVER COMPLAINS of the small percentage of conviction of criminals under existing laws, and asks for severer penalties, apparently unconscious of the well-known fact that severe penalties, out of harmony with the sentiment of a community, always result in fewer convictions and greater encouragement of crime; because no criminal is deterred by a law if he is not afraid of conviction under the law.

President Hoover recognizes "the vast sums that are poured into the hands of the criminal classes by the patronage of illicit liquor by otherwise responsible citizens."

But he does not seem to realize that these vast sums have financed the underworld, and are chiefly to blame for the wide extension of crime and the effective organization of the criminal classes in all lines of criminal endeavor.

How great that extension of crime and that organization of criminal classes are can best be told in the President's own words when he says:

"Twenty times as many people in proportion to population are lawlessly killed in the United States as in Great Britain."

"At least fifty times as many robberies in proportion to population are committed in the United States as in Great Britain, and three times as many burglaries."

"Life and property are relatively more unsafe than in any other civilized country in the world."

In spite of all this, the President apologizes for the contaminating conditions under prohibition and declares that "It is only a section of the invasion of lawlessness."

CAN IT BE that the Jones law is in accord with the President's idea of proper legislative procedure—the Jones law, which is widely regarded as the most menacing piece of repressive legislation that has stained the statute books of this republic since the Alien and Sedition laws under John Adams, which permanently put the Federalist party out of power and installed the Democratic-Republican party under Jefferson to preserve the rights and liberties of American citizens?

The Jones act calls for more vigorous and more vindictive enforcement of the sumptuary laws.

The Jones act increases the penalties until the citizen who commits what can only be regarded as a misdemeanor is punished for a high crime.

The Jones act adds persecution to prohibition, and in our principles of government substitutes fanaticism for freedom.

The Jones act destroys the American ideals of liberty which have been our boast and our boon, and imposes upon our people the European idea of governmental tyranny which our Fathers came to this country to avert and avoid.

WITHAL, the Jones act will defeat its own narrow purposes, and, instead of creating a condition of rigid restriction, will cause—

FIRST, fewer convictions because of over-severe penalties;

SECOND, more killings for fear of possible infliction of the severe penalties;

THIRD, more corruption to avoid arrests and possible convictions;

FOURTH, higher prices for liquor on account of greater risks, and consequently greater profit in crime;

FIFTH, more violence and more violation of popular rights;

SIXTH, more conflict between the extremes of bonehead drys and bullhead wets, with more distress and discomfort to the moderate, temperate, peace-loving, liberty-loving mass of our citizenship;

SEVENTH, more cant and hypocrisy in public life, more insincerity among public men, and more disposition on the part of the public to consider the lawmakers of the land a lot of fools and frauds and fanatics.

All of which could be avoided if the party in power would remember that it was elected on the Republican ticket, and not on the Prohibition ticket, and that it could best serve its party and its country by restoring the principles of liberty and equality and justice for which our Fathers fought.

FOR BE IT REMEMBERED that our Fathers shed their blood, not for LAWS, but for PRINCIPLES.

DE GROOT PREDICTS DISMISSAL REACTION

BLAME PUT ON DEMOCRAT

New York, May 3 (A.P.).—William A. De Groot, removed yesterday by President Hoover as United States Attorney for the Eastern District of New York, today termed his dismissal a sacrifice to the "god of superefficiency." He predicted "a reaction that is bound to have far-reaching consequences."

De Groot's statement, issued a few hours after Howard W. Ameli, Assistant Federal Attorney, had been sworn in as temporary Federal attorney, declared "that in a government by political parties such as this is there can be no divided authority in executive affairs."

"Honest Republican officials," he said, "cannot be sacrificed by Democrats in a Republican administration, even to the god of superefficiency, without a reaction that is bound to have far-reaching consequences."

De Groot, a Republican, refused the request of Attorney General Mitchell, a Democrat, that he resign, and then asked the President for a hearing. This request was denied, the Attorney General saying that De Groot's case had been heard once before and no new inquiry would take place.

"I feel like a man who has been kidnaped by a band of political highwaymen and is then abandoned without a scratch when they find nothing on him. I wish to thank the press that I have escaped with a good name. No credit is due the inside gang of the Department of Justice for that.

Howard B. Ameli, of Brooklyn, was nominated yesterday to be United States attorney for the Eastern district of New York succeeding William De Groot, who was summarily removed from office by President Hoover on May 1.

Mr. Ameli is a veteran of the World War and from 1919 to 1927 was a special assistant to the Attorney General. In 1927, he was transferred to the office of the Federal attorney in the Eastern district of New York, where he has been serving under Mr. De Groot.

Priests Shot Down By Leaderless Men

Americans Slain in China by Struggling Troops, Advices Reveal.

Hankow, China, May 3 (A.P.).—Details of the recent murder of three American Catholic priests at Chenki, in the Province of Hunan, were received here today from the Passionist Mission, of which they were members. The men slain were the Rev. Walter Covelyou, of Petoskey, Mich., the Rev. Clement Seymold, of Dunkirk, N. Y., and the Rev. Godfrey Holbein, of Baltimore, Md.

Advices from Chenki stated that the victims were proceeding from that town southwest, toward Yuanchow, traversing the provincial mail route, when they were captured by 30 leaderless and straggling soldiers. The priests were shot in cold blood.

The servants of the missionaries were made prisoners, but later released and allowed to return to Chenki, where they reported the slayings. They said they did not know what motive the soldiers had in shooting the missionaries.

One of the policemen, made desperate by his surplus weight, resorted to the reducing tablets which are the last resort of the screen folk, and reduced approximately 24 pounds in the period of about a month. The terrific strain shows on him, but he is within the weight requirements.

A second examination was held yesterday in Baltimore, and it was found that only one of the men remains above the weight limit.

WRITER WAS "WIFE" OF "MR." STRATFORD

Strange Romance Is Revealed After Death of Woman Posing as Man.

FLED AFTER MARRIAGE

Hollywood, Calif., May 3 (A.P.).—Beth Rowland, screen writer here, admitted today that she was the "wife" in the strange case of Peter Stratford, whose death in Oakland yesterday revealed a woman masquerading as a man for many years.

The screen writer said her first meeting with Stratford occurred several years ago in the Middle West when she was employed at secretarial duties. A friendship of two years, she said, was followed by marriage, immediately after which Stratford left her, coming to the Pacific Coast in ill health. Later she followed and they were reunited at Niles, Calif.

The secret of her "husband's" sex was not revealed to her until a few months ago, the screen writer said, and at that time she parted company and came here in motion picture writing.

From a packet of letters, a marriage certificate and other papers found in a hotel room at Niles today was pieced together a strange story of the misshapen life of "Peter Stratford."

The correspondence revealed the determination of a woman, apparently possessed of all the mental attributes of the opposite sex, to become a man. Out of that determination, investigators said, was born Peter Stratford, a person with a gift for literary criticism and a follower of the cult of Sufi, an offshoot of an ancient oriental religion.

With the birth of Peter Stratford, the letters showed, died Derestey Morton, a British subject, who came to America from New Zealand 20 years ago.

Peter Stratford married Miss Rowland in Kansas City, Mo., in 1925.

In Hollywood, the letters revealed, Peter Stratford assisted nationally known playwrights and authors in their work.

Other letters to a woman in Los Angeles, addressed only as "Alma," revealed Peter's love for her as based on the tenets of the Sufi cult.

The manager of the hotel at Niles said Stratford and "Mrs. Stratford" came there in 1926. They never quarreled, he said, but three months ago Stratford's "wife" left suddenly for Hollywood.

Yesterday Stratford, suffering from tuberculosis, was hurried to a hospital in Oakland.

When doctors told the patient death was near, Stratford whispered his secret, and the woman who "died" to give Stratford being years ago lived again only to go to a more lasting death a few minutes later.

alleged harsh measures of the police against Communists. The strikers were scattered over half a dozen plants in various industries and there was no interruption of work at the large plants.

Communists Make Protest.

In the Reichstag yesterday Communists started a row over the police suspension for three weeks of the Communist newspaper Die Rote Fahne. They argued that Communists were justified in taking retaliatory steps, but the excitement soon died and the house adjourned until May 13.

For the peaceful inhabitants of the affected areas the past three days have been a trying time. Their nerves, like those of the police, were badly frayed by the guerrilla warfare.

Sniping continued through the day from windows and roofs. The police, already charged with "bloody butchery" by factions of the Left, used blanks until for self-protection they were forced to substitute steel and lead. Thirty-six policemen had been injured.

The police chief and Socialists have charged that the riots which broke on the eve of May 1, the international Labor Day, were instigated by Moscow Communists, and the foreign office today opened diplomatic proceedings with the Soviet government in connection with posters displayed here ridiculing members of the German cabinet.

Arms Seized in Raids.

Search of the Neukoelln houses ended at 7:30 o'clock last night and gave the police 16 confiscated side arms, 20 pistols and much ammunition, with the bullet noses filed to cause greater wounds in the hated police. During the search three men were arrested, one of whom was a Russian.

Wedding also was searched, its street barricades were removed and nine persons arrested. Six pistols, seven side arms, three knuckle dusters and an empty grenade were seized in that district.

The district in which a "minor state of siege" has been declared makes a battle area of about one-third of a square mile, while the greater city occupies 40 square miles. Outside of the two cordoned areas people went about business as usual, and even dance halls in the immediate neighborhood of the danger zone were well patronized.

signed on the police blotter as complainants, headed a force of more than a half dozen Federal men who staged a raid lasting more than two hours, during which time they probed every corner of the structure for evidence.

The sight of coatless men rushing to and fro in the lighted building, dragging down cases laden with bottles on a ladder from the second floor inside, and generally making a commotion, soon attracted a large crowd outside the locked doors.

The raid was shrouded in mystery throughout. The revenue agents kept the front and rear doors of the tire shop carefully guarded during their search, and refused information of any kind to newspaper men.

Alexandria Victor In Annexation Case

Special Tribunal Grants 4 Square Miles of Arlington County to City.

Alexandria, Va., was increased by four square miles and upward of 3,000 in population yesterday, when a special tribunal of three judges, sitting in the Arlington Circuit Court, granted all the city sought by annexation from Arlington County.

This growth, of course, is subject to affirmative action by the Court of Appeals of Virginia, to which Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth, of counsel for Arlington County, announced he would carry the case as soon as possible.

The court, consisting of special Judges Don F. Halsey, of Lynchburg; C. W. Hudgins, of Chase City, and Frederick Coleman, of Fredericksburg, will reconvene at 9 o'clock this morning to sign the order, and will return to Arlington County June 12 to determine questions of valuation.

Annexation by Alexandria of a large section of Jefferson District, one of the rich sections of the county, "is expedient and necessary," the court said, "and in conformity with the constitution and statutes of Virginia and the principles of law laid down by the Court of Appeals of Virginia in former cases."

Counsel in Liquor Case Retained by Michaelson

(Associated Press.)

Representative Michaelson (Republican), of Illinois, announced yesterday that he had retained Judge H. H. Taylor, of Miami, Fla., to defend him when he goes on trial in Federal Court at Key West, Fla., next week on charges of bringing liquor into the country from Cuba.

Michaelson said that he had been summoned to appear in court Monday and that he would be there.

Smoke-Screen Auto Endangers Pursuer

Rum-Runner Escapes From Policeman After Race at Fast Pace.

The life of another Washington policeman was endangered early yesterday morning through the use of a smoke screen by a suspected rum-runner and through efforts of the driver to force the motorcycle policeman into the curb.

Sighting a suspected liquor car on Alabama avenue north of Pennsylvania avenue southeast, Policeman W. R. Greenfield, of the Eleventh Precinct, gave chase. A blanket covered the tonneau of the car, believed to be carrying cases of whisky.

With the auto and motorcycle traveling at nearly an 80-mile per hour pace, the liquor car let loose a smoke screen when near the Pennsylvania avenue bridge while the driver swerved back and forth, in several instances trying to crowd Greenfield off the road. On B street near Twelfth street southeast, the policeman gave up the chase after being thoroughly "smoked up."

"WHOOPEE" PARTY STOPPED IN CAPITAL

Chicago Grand Jury Receives Description of Accused Officials' Trip.

PADDED PAY ROLLS CITED

Chicago, May 3 (A.P.).—Alleged waste, pay roll padding and bachanalian "whoopee," which blossomed once in a reported gay party at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New YYork, today resulted in indictments against fifteen former and incumbent officials of the Chicago sanitary district.

Returned before Chief Justice John J. Sullivan, the indictment charged conspiracy, embezzlement and illegal diversions of public funds. Some of the charges were based on the allegation that the district misspent more than $250,000.

The outstanding picture presented to the grand jury during the investigation was that of the trustees and their friends making a "flood control" journey to Washington at public expense a year ago. Evidence was presented to show that after leaving Washington the trustees and their friends went to New York for the alleged party at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Draws $6,900 Bill.

This party, it was charged, resulted in broken furniture, bric-a-brac and other appointments for which the hotel presented and collected a bill of $6,900. The bill was paid out of the sanitary district funds, but none admitted authorizing it.

Wholesale patronage resulting in many names on the pay roll of the district—names of persons whose services could not be determined—also figured in the allegations, as did huge sums spent for minor contracts.

The Chicago sanitary district was formed by the city and the State to care for sewage disposal of Chicago and surrounding towns. Trustees are elected to operate the district, expenses of which are paid by taxation.

Among those indicted were:

Timothy J. Crowe, Democratic former president of the district.

James M. Whalen, Democratic trustee, reelected last November.

Frank J. Link, Republican Trustee; John J. Touhy, Democratic trustee; August W. Miller, Republican trustee; Lawrence F. King, Republican trustee; John K. Lawler, Republican trustee; all held over from old board; and Martin J. O'Brien, chief clerk of the district under Crowe and chairman of the managing committee of the Democratic party in Cook County.

"Major Domo" of "Whoopee."

Henry E. Wallace, chief deputy clerk under Crowe, held over by present board and termed "Major Domo" of alleged "whoopee" party in New York.

The indictments followed six months of investigation.

A special grand jury impaneled to hear the evidence less than a month ago was halted and dissolved when it was discovered a brother-in-law of Crowe was a member.

The prosecutors then decided to turn the investigation over to the regular April Cook County Grand Jury, which returned its report today.

Throughout the investigation prosecutors fought a losing battle to obtain the "whoopee" records of the Central Auto Service Co., said to contain entries for liquor, women and entertainment, to present to the jury. The indictments returned were not based on any of the evidence these records were alleged to contain.

83 Seized in Raid At Bethesda, Md.

200 Others Escape When Police Charge Place; 3 Women Held.

Eighty men and three women were arrested shortly before last midnight when the eighteen members of the Montgomery County police force raided a large house on Bradley Hill boulevard in the outskirts of Bethesda, Md.

A crowd estimated at 200 persons escaped, according to Montgomery County Police Chief A. A. Moxley, who headed the raiders. It is thought the place was tipped off prior to the raid, but not long enough before for all to escape.

Practically all those arrested are residents of Washington, according to the police. Just what charges were to be placed against the crowd had not been revealed at this writing, but police intimated it would be disorderly conduct in nearly all instances.

great increase in smoke screen cases since the passage of the Jones act.

In his letter to Representative Simmons, Pratt says:

"I invite your attention to the law enacted by Congress under date of March 3, 1925, making it a felony to have an automobile equipped with a smoke screen in the District of Columbia. After the passage of this act the use of smoke screens was not generally resorted to—only a few such cases having been observed by members of this department.

"Since the passage of the Jones bill, however, the use of smoke screens has become popular with rum runners, and the commanding officer of the Eleventh Precinct (the boundaries of which include the main thoroughfares leading into the District of Columbia from southern Maryland) stated in a recent report that seventeen smoke screen violations had been observed by members of his command during the past month."

Representative Simmons called on Pratt for the aforementioned report after the initial debate in the House over the killing of Fleming.

Minister Alleges "Gag" By Vestry With Cellars

Ann Arbor, Mich, May 3 (United Press).—Because six of the nine of his vestry "have their own cellars," the Very Rev. Herbert L. Johnson, dean of St. Paul's Cathedral, Detroit, told the fifty-fifth annual session of the Church Congress of the Protestant Episcopal Church here today that he could not preach on prohibition as he wished.

He said that capitalism in the Detroit Cathedral prevented him from speaking plainly on social and economic subjects as interpreted by Jesus Christ.

"How can I preach my heart on prohibition when I know six of the nine of my vestry have their own cellars?" the Rev. Johnson asked. "How can I preach on moral standards when I have been told by my vestry that the word 'sex' must not be used in the cathedral pulpit?"

EDUCATION BUREAU FAVORED BY WILBUR

Secretary Reveals Opposition of Administration to Department Plan.

(Associated Press.)

The first inkling of the attitude of the Hoover administration toward the proposed Federal Department of Education was given yesterday by Secretary Wilbur, who informed the annual meeting of the American Council on Education that an adequate position for education within a department and with sufficient financial support was all that was needed.

The address marked Mr. Wilbur's first public discussion since he became Interior Secretary of the administration policy toward education. He is himself an educator, having made it his life work and having resigned as president of Stanford University to enter the Cabinet.

"The place of the National Government," he said, "is not that of supplying large amounts for carrying on the administrative functions of education in the communities, but to develop methods, ideals and procedures, and to present them, to be taken on their merits. The National Government, too, can give widespread information on procedures, can report on what is actually going on in different parts of the country and in the world, and can unify to some extent the objects of those in the field of education, in so far as unification is desirable.

"There is a distinct place for this sort of thing in the administrative side of the National Government, but it should not be recognized as an administrative position, with large funds at its disposal. A Department of Education similar to the other departments of the Government is not required."

Earlier the educators had heard Julius H. Barnes, past president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, discuss "Excellence of Service as a Determining Force in Profitable Business."

He said that a premium was being put on brains for the first time in history.

"Investors want to share in the ownership of brains," he continued. "It is an era of brains over bricks. We insure brains for vast sums just as we used to insure buildings against fire."

CLOSE VOTE LIKELY ON DEBENTURE PLAN

Curtis May Decide Farm Aid Issue When Senate Votes Today or Monday.

TWO SUPPORTERS ARE ILL

(Associated Press.)

Senate leaders came to the conclusion yesterday that the success or failure of the effort to include the export debenture plan in the farm relief bill hinges on the number of senators who will be physically able to be in their seats when the vote is taken today or Monday.

Checks made of the Senate membership by them have indicated that the outcome might be so close as to have one or two votes prove the deciding ballots on the proposal opposed by President Hoover.

The latest check by administration leaders disclosed twelve Republicans certain to vote for the debenture plan, with two doubtful. They expect seven Democrats to vote against the plan, but this is denied by debenture advocates, who also have been checking their support carefully.

Supporters of the debenture proposal are manifesting some concern over the fact that two senators whom they believe would vote with them will be unable to be present in the Senate when the vote is taken. The two are Shipstead, of Minnesota, the only Farmer-Labor member of the Senate, and Kendrick, of Wyoming, a Democrat, both of whom are ill in hospitals.

The debenture leaders are seeking to obtain "pairs" for these men so that their vote will make no difference in the result, but since all senators opposed to the plan are being cautioned to be in their seats, the effort so far has not been successful.

Senator Shipstead has never taken the oath of office since his reelection and therefore would not be entitled to vote, but leaders of the debenture group obtained an agreement yesterday to have the oath administered at his bedside. Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, a leading advocate of the debenture plan, sponsored this move.

Because of the close division, Vice President Curtis may be called upon to break a tie vote, although administration leaders are hopeful that before a vote is taken they will be assured of a majority in favor of eliminating the debenture plan.

THE LAW IN MR. MELLON'S CASE.

The pundits of the Senate committee on the judiciary are wrestling with this portion of the old law that is alleged to have been violated by Secretary Mellon:

> No person appointed to the office of Secretary of the Treasury shall directly or indirectly be concerned or interested in carrying on the business of trade or commerce.

Two former Secretaries of the Treasury, Leslie M. Shaw and Carter Glass, one a Republican and the other a Democrat, have furnished information which ought to assist the Senate committee in obtaining an understanding of this law. They merely point out that the law means what it says—a strange circumstance nowadays, and quite out of line with modern legislation. The law does not bar a property owner from the office of Secretary of the Treasury. It does bar a trader.

The suggestion that a Secretary of the Treasury can not be interested in any manufacturing concern, or profit by its operations, is a fantastic distortion of the plain meaning of the law. "The business of trade" is barred; that is, merchandising. No tradesman can be Secretary of the Treasury, but any one holding that office is entitled to own property, and to buy and sell property if such transactions are incidental to a business that is not a business of trade. A manufacturing concern sends its goods into trade and commerce, but its business is manufacturing. A farmer buys and sells, but his business is farming, not trade.

The members of the First Congress were competent to express their meaning in framing a law. If they had meant to prevent the Secretary of the Treasury from buying a house or a suit of clothes, or selling an interest in a farm or factory and investing the money in stocks or bonds, they would have framed the law accordingly. But as they appreciated the fact that a Secretary of the Treasury must first of all be a human being, they did not strip him of his private rights as a citizen as a condition of officeholding. They did perceive, however, that it would be improper for a trader or middleman to occupy the office of the Secretary of the Treasury, and they provided accordingly.

"INVISIBLE BANKING."

Of the various American sages in matters economic, Col. Leonard P. Ayres, Cleveland banker, has risen to a position of prominence. At regular intervals he makes public his opinion regarding the course of business and finance, and, generally, events prove that his judgment is sound. His speech before the United States Chamber of Commerce, having to do with the stock market and credit, was most impressive. It will be accorded serious consideration and may be made a basis of action.

"Out of my investigation of the present credit situation," he said, "I have come to the conclusion that there is going on in this country a very serious degree of a new kind of credit inflation; one that is rapidly impairing the usefulness of our commercial banking system because it is resulting in taking corporation money out of the banks and banking it in the loan markets; one that is rapidly undermining the Federal Reserve system because it operates outside of the reserve system."

Such inflation has been brought about by the functioning of what Col. Ayres describes as "a vast, unofficial, invisible banking system; a banking system by which corporations having excess funds loan those funds to the call money market and build up what we have come to know as loans to others—brokers' loans for the accounts of others." To "invisible banking" he ascribes the "major part of the extremely puzzling credit situation."

The so-called invisible banking is carried on, generally speaking, by three classes—large industrial corporations, investment trusts and private individuals. Three classes become "invisible bankers" when they have excess funds that they want to put to work. Naturally, they desire to obtain the highest return compatible with safety and quick availability, and the call money market offers to the highest degree this opportunity. Is a corporation, the conduct of the business of which requires a considerable volume of cash or its equivalent at all times, to be criticized for placing its funds where they will earn the largest return possible and yet be quickly available? Is it right to force an individual or an investment trust to forego honest profits?

Col. Ayres points out that the invisible banking system is "quite different from the regular, legal, organized banking system. It is quite untroubled by State laws. It is never bothered by those recurrent visits of bank examiners. It does not have to report the details of its operations to the Federal Reserve system. It does not care what the bank reserves are. It has no obligation, legal or implied, for the safeguarding of the credit system, and yet it is in the banking business." He suggests that the remedy is to be found in "some sort of control, legislative, voluntary or a combination of both, or some other kind of control in the call loan market of the New York Stock Exchange."

Is not the solution of the problem to be found in enforcement of the laws against usury? Call money brings 15 per cent interest in spite of the New York law making 6 per cent the legal limit of interest. When banks lend money on call at rates exceeding 6 per cent do they not actually encourage the "invisible banking" to which Col. Ayres refers? Everybody, visible and invisible, seems to be ignoring the law against usury.

DANGER IN PORTABLE SCHOOLS.

Washington was only switched by the tail of the severe storm which swept over Virginia, Maryland and other Southern States Thursday night. The damage and injury suffered here were not great. Since the storm struck during the night, and had abated considerably by Friday, there was little concern over children housed in portable school buildings. Nevertheless the storm again emphasized the constant danger to which a large number of school children in the National Capital are exposed every time a high wind blows.

Several weeks ago a storm damaged three portable schools here, and children occupying one of them narrowly escaped injury. Thursday night only one of the portables was damaged, a section of the roof being torn off. Pupils attending Kalmia road and the Wesley Heights portables were dismissed for most of Friday because of continued wind. Stephen S. Kramer, first assistant superintendent of schools, expressed concern at the frequency with which windstorms damage these flimsy buildings. He can be certain that his concern is shared by the Washington public.

The Board of Education has estimated its needs for new buildings at $2,565,000 in the 1931 school budget. This is an increase of $730,000 over the 1930 appropriation, but falls short of the actual needs for new schools. On the other hand the requested appropriation for acquisition of new land for schools shows a decrease of $80,300. If the school board is allowed everything it has asked for in the budget just announced as well as proportionate increases in future years, it will nevertheless be a long time before school children of Washington are adequately housed.

It is indicated that on the completion of new schools next February, nineteen portables will be removed from their present locations. But this does not mean that they will all go out of use, because new demands for school facilities are being made every year. The board now has a list of applications for portables in outlying sections that can not be filled. When it is realized that there are 75 of these flimsy shacks now in use, all of which range in age from 10 to 20 years, there is every reason for the National Capital to be ashamed of its schools. The school building program is not keeping pace with the growth in population. The Board of Education is doing the best it can under the circumstances, but it is seriously hampered by repeated trimming of its budget. The District Commissioners, the Budget Bureau and Congress must be brought to realize the critical situation which confronts the District schools.

ALEXANDRIA'S RIGHT TO ANNEX.

The City of Alexandria has won a decisive preliminary victory in the annexation battle it inaugurated against Arlington County in December, 1927. The decision of the three special judges appointed to hear the case by Gov. Byrd upheld the right of the city to annex all the territory it sought. County officials have anounced their determination to take the case to the higher courts, however, so the city's victory can not yet be termed complete.

Arlington County's opposition to annexation lies largely in the fact that it will lose more revenue than will be counterbalanced by the savings made possible through relinquishing control over the 1,500 acres in question. Alexandria's interest in the matter lies not alone in the greater revenues that will be made possible through the acquisition of new territory, but in the fact that it needs room for residential expansion and business development. The case was thrashed out in court by competent counsel, and the fact that the decision favored the city apparently indicates that its need for greater territory more than outweighs, so far as the public good is concerned, the loss that will be the county's through the transfer of authority.

No matter what the ultimate outcome may be, it is to be hoped that a new era of unified development of Virginia-next-to-Washington is in store. Arlington County and the City of Alexandria are part and parcel of Greater Washington. It is as much to their interest as it is to that of the District that they be developed in harmony with the regional plan and with due regard to their importance as integral parts of the National Capital area.

GETTING RID OF SURPLUS WHEAT.

In the interest of influencing the movement of the huge surplus stores of wheat executives of the more important Eastern railroads have agreed to accept temporary rate reductions on export wheat shipments. The reductions were agreed upon in recognition of the fact that "an emergency of national proportions exists necessitating every possible aid to the immediate removal of this surplus out of the country." Rates on grain "at and east" of lower Lake Erie ports to the North Atlantic seaboard will be cut 2 cents a bushel. Rail reshipping rates from Chicago to New York for export are to be reduced from 22½ cents a hundred pounds to 17 cents and the all-rail rate from St. Louis to New York is to come down from 26½ cents per hundred pounds to 20 cents. The reduced rates are to expire September 30 and are to be looked upon as "far less than can be regarded as reasonable rates."

As exhibiting a willingness to cooperate in the solution of a grave problem the agreement reached by the railroads is to be commended. At the present time more wheat is on hand awaiting disposal than at any time since 1919, and a huge crop is approaching the harvest. With the Nation's granaries filled, to a greater or less extent, what is to be done with the new crop? Obviously, the supply on hand must be moved to make way for the new wheat, and the railroads are to be commended for taking a step that may hasten the disposal of the existing supply.

An artificially stimulated movement of this sort, however, must be closely watched. Canada also has a huge supply of grain on hand, and it hardly seems likely that the Canadian government will sit idly by and permit American grain to go into the world markets to lower the demand for Canadian grain. If Canadian farmers, through their carefully organized and highly efficient marketing machines, decide that they must meet the price made possible by the freight reduction on American wheat and begin dumping bushel for bushel the net result may be a depressed price that will benefit no one and leave the railroads holding the bag. Should this occur it is bound to influence the price of the new crop and perhaps spell disaster to millions of farmers.

It is true that certain foreign areas are in need of grain. China, for example, could take millions of bushels if it could be laid down cheaply enough. A reduction in the export shipping rates, passed on to the consignee, will reduce the price of wheat without reducing the producers' profit and stimulate demand. The reductions agreed upon, however, large as they are, probably are not sufficient to stimulate demand to any considerable degree. The effect of the rate reductions, especially in connection with their effect on the world price of wheat, should be watched carefully.

FREE ENTRY OF BAGGAGE.

The Federal grand jury's denunciation of the practice of "free entry" to American ports, as practiced by congressmen and other Government officials, will be widely applauded. Incidents which led to the grand jury investigation have brought a demand from the American people that the law, including the prohibition law, be applied to all without regard to official position.

There is no reason why Government officials should not submit their baggage to inspection of customs officers. The very fact that they may bring in their baggage without inspection is a temptation to violate the law. In the case which brought about the investigation, customs inspectors testified that a representative admitted possession of liquor in his baggage on his arrival at New York aboard the Cristobal from the Canal Zone. The inspectors further claim that he refused to allow them to inspect his baggage on the ground that he had been on official business and was entitled to free entry. If the testimony of the inspectors is true, this is a case of violation of the law under protection of official immunity.

In the judgment of the grand jury "such events constitute a condemnation of the long-standing practice of allowing to officials of the Government the privilege of 'free entry.' We regard it as un-American and contrary to the fundamental principle of equality before the law that any citizen merely because he is a congressman or other official, should be exempted from inspection of baggage or from operation of law or departmental regulation, while others, who merely are part of the plain people, are required to submit thereto." The practice leads to "plain abuses, to wholly unwarranted claims of being on official business, to hampering the proper work of the customs officials, and to natural suspicion that the claimed privilege of free entry is really being used as a cover for the importation of contraband."

The grand jury points out that a criminal prosecution may not be possible in this case, but nevertheless "an official who prevented examination of baggage by claim of free entry and by threat of causing trouble in Washington, can not complain of the consequences when weighed in the forum of public opinion." Revocation of the privilege of free entry is demanded as a means of reducing the hypocrisy which surrounds the enforcement of the prohibition law.

FOREIGN FILM COMPETITION.

The export business of the American motion picture industry is threatened on two fronts. Of outstanding importance is the campaign waged by the French government to make the American producer in effect subsidize the French industry in order that it may obtain a foothold. The French campaign is being watched critically by other European governments. If France succeeds in her design other countries unquestionably will adopt similar restrictive measures. At present the matter stands at an impasse, with France insisting that she will limit the importation of American films in proportion to the number of films produced in France, and the American distributors asserting that they will abandon the French market rather than accede to the demand.

As though this were not enough to plague the American producer, more trouble has arisen in England. American sound-reproducing apparatus enjoys almost exclusive popularity in England, and it is sold with the agreement that it will be utilized only for the reproduction of American films. Some few weeks ago, however, a company was formed to take over certain German sound-reproducing patents and to manufacture "talkie" equipment for installation at rates much lower than those charged by the American manufacturers. The other day the formation of a new Anglo-Continental combine was announced, to be known as International Talking Screen Productions, Ltd., to manufacture "talkies" for British and continental exhibition. The combine is adequately capitalized and has secured the services of eminent dramatic artists in directing and acting capacities.

Developments of the next year or so are bound to be interesting. No one can blame France for trying to limit the importation of American films to the end that a domestic industry may be allowed to gain a foothold. As has been frequently pointed out, however, the future of the French film industry depends entirely on its ability to make satisfactory pictures, an attainment that probably can not be influenced one way or the other by the imposition of import restrictions.

Will the American "talkie" appeal to European audiences? Will it be found possible to resynchronize American "talkies" in European tongues? The Anglo-Continental combine will have the advantage over American producers of being able to make sound movies tuned to the ear of European audiences. Possibly it will accomplish that which the French government through import restrictions apparently seeks in vain to accomplish.

Every new idea has to go through this barrage of criticism: First, it is said that the idea is "absolutely impossible." Later it is said the idea is all right, except that it will never become practicable. Finally it is said the idea has gained considerable ground, but that it will take time to develop it. About 50 years later the critic reverses himself and says, "Years ago I said it was a greta idea." The big liar!

New Use for Talkies.

Baltimore Sun: Demonstration of a "talkie" before the American Chemical Society was analogous to a presentation at the Court of St. James. Those scientists were not of the sort to approve an elementray treatment of a trivial subject; and, in fact, the film's discussion of surface tension proved that the "talkie" can be as abstruse as its producer permits it to be. For this reason there may be a use for it in lectures about facts which remain true for several months at a time. And certainly many a demonstrator would sleep more soundly because sure that his experiments, safely caught on the film, would not go wrong at the crucial point in the lecture.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to a Flapper Daughter.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MY dear Louise:

Frequently I come home in the afternoon or evening to find you and your girl friends dancing, and I notice that you agree rather eagerly when Jerne or Mark or older men, here for supper or the evening, suggest starting the phonograph or the radio and showing you a new step or two.

I see no harm in dancing if there is no harm in the dancers, but here is a word of caution.

Remember that dancing is a social accomplishment, not the chief business of life.

While you remain here in the village, dancing will have little effect on your character. It is considered wicked by people whose respect you covet, and the few youngsters who know how to dance must be content with an occasional step in somebody's living room with the old folks looking on.

But in a little while you will be going away to college, and in the meantime you will spend an occasional week-end away from home and meet youngsters who are more "broad-minded" than your home-town people.

And since you enjoy good times and gay laughter, as all youngsters should, there is some danger that dancing will charm you much as a snake is supposed to charm a bird, and thereafter, until your good sense comes to the rescue, you will be another dazed, hysterical victim of this present epidemic called jazz.

The best way to avoid getting into trouble is to study the girls who have dancing on the brain—the ones who roll their eyes heavenward and declare that Bill or Jack is perfectly darling because he is such a swell dancer.

You know the type—loud, vulgar, full of suggestive stories, addicted to cigarettes and petting, fond of boys who carry liquor to parties, hollow-eyed, too heavily roughed, conscious of being very sophisticated and scornfully superior to a world that can enjoy life without constant excitement.

You don't want to be like that, I know. But that is what dancing does to the girl who lets it destroy her sense of values.

Dancing affords a sex thrill and serves as a substitute for conversation and, therefore, will survive all reform waves.

You will dance more or less to avoid being a wall flower, just as you will play bridge and tennis, swim, drive, shoot and do the other things nice people do to entertain themselves.

But don't let it get you. A mania for dancing seems just as idiotic as a mania for gambling or cocktails. Keep your balance. Eat your dessert, but don't make a meal of it.

"MAN-IMAGE."

The most expensive root in the world is the genuine Asiatic wild ginseng—not the ordinary ginseng, but that specific variety the root of which is created in the likeness of man and called by its worshipers "man-image" or "man-root," writes Louise Crane in Asia Magazine. According to legend, this wrinkled, yellowish root lies in the earth for centuries, nay eons of time, sucking in the substance of life while slowly taking on the form of a human being. Millions of Tibetans and Koreans, as well as Chinese, proclaim it natufe's greatest miracle—a cure-all for the ills of the flesh and, more than that, a rejuvenator warranted to arrest the march of the years.

In the traditional Chinese medical parlance, ginseng is "a tonic to the five viscera, quieting the animal spirits, establishing the soul, allaying fear, expelling evil effluvia, brightening the eyes, opening up the heart, benefiting the understanding and, if taken for some time, invigorating the body and prolonging life." There are held to be five kinds of which the man-image variety is extremely rare and costly. Observers claim to have seen transactions involving from $2,000 to $10,000 for a single root, though much lower prices are common. The various elements of value, such as form, age, weight, which determine the worth of any specimen of this precious root are closely interrelated. For example, the degree of its resemblance to the human figure is believed to be more or less dependent on its age. Many of the roots answering every other requirement have two unequally developed lower extremities. These are the specimens foreordained to femininity, quite as richly imbued with the regenerating essence truly, but a little lower in the scale of value than the two-legged masculine root.

"PANIC."

Pan, in Greek mythology, was a being having the feet and horns of a goat, and often represented with goat's hair all over his body. He was the god of flocks and pastures, forests and life in the open. It was believed by the ancient Greeks that Pan inspired men with sudden and unreasonable fear—known as panic fear. Indeed, the Athenians believed that the panic among the Persians at the battle of Marathon was caused by Pan, and worshiped the supposed deity accordingly.

From this ancient belief in panic fear, and sudden fright, especially contagious fright, spreading suddenly through whole groups of people, came to be known as a panic. Giving the derivation of the word panic, Webster's New International Dictionary traces it to the Greek Pan, the god. Literally, the word means: "Of or pertaining to Pan;—used of fear such as Pan was supposed to have caused."

By extension, the word panic has come to mean: "A sudden widespread fright or apprehension concerning financial affairs, resulting in an artificial depression in values caused by violent measures for protection or for the sale of securities or other property."

Now Herbert Hoover, President of the United States, continues his activities in behalf of a plan which will alleviate the conditions of unemployment that nearly always comes at intervals between periods of prosperity. The Federal Reserve Banks were established to prevent financial panics such as that of 1907. It is to be hoped that Mr. Hoover's plan, or a similar one, will tend to offset the ill effects of waves of unemployment.

How Does Mr. LaGuardia Reach Conclusion That the Last Election Was a Wet Victory?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Just how Mr. LaGuardia can draw the conclusion that the last national election revealed the fact that the majority of people of America are opposed to prohibition is a real puzzle to us. This man has done his best to embarrass and harass Bishop James Cannon and now is all in a stew over the slaying of a young man riding in a liquor car, who used a smoke screen to outwit the officers. Injection of Philippine Independence Question Untimely at This Session of Congress.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Referring to your editorial, "Philippine Independence," permit me to express a few pertinent thoughts:

The present special session of Congress was called by President Hoover to consider tariff and farm relief legislation. The injection into the agenda of the self-perpetuating question of Philippine independence could only serve to frustrate the purposes of the special session.

The Philippine commission, if I may say so, in recognizing this situation exhibits respect for the President, courtesy to the Congress and a laudable regard for the best interests of the Filipino people.

The material question to discuss at this time is whether the importation of Philippine products into the United States is to be impaired under the tariff law in preparation.

VICENTE VILLAMIN.

Memories of Joe Campbell, Famous Baseball Writer of The Post—Like Oliver Goldsmith, He Was a Master of English and Repartee.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I just can't resist the impulse to commend that paragraph by George Rothwell Brown in The Post this morning anent Joe Campbell. Since my boyhood days in the newspaper game in this city I have known every newspaper man of any note, but none of them even approached this genius. I love to talk about him, think about him, and then make present-day comparisons. Joe was in a class by himself, and he did more to make The Post a nationally known newspaper than any man or combination of men connected with it.

Together we reported baseball games and other sporting events. His repartee during a ball game or a prize fight was the most original and unique that ever fell from the lips of man. Supposed to be reporting a ball game, he would pick out some insignificant feature of it and the next morning there would appear a column or so of the most classical English ever put in type, so much so that editors throughout the country who watched for it, would clip a paragraph or so, reprint it on the editorial page: "Joe Campbell in The Washington Post."

He lived in a hovel of a room in the old Imperial Hotel on the site of which stands the Munsey Building. Afflicted with an incurable disease, he went to Hot Springs, Ark., for treatment. Automobiles in those days were not known, and we took a night liner in front of The Post to the Pennsylvania Station at Sixth and B. When we arrived there he handed the driver a silver dollar, and when he handed back 50 cents change Joe remarked: "Keep that and carry me back toes up." He never came back.

I could write columns about this genius, who always reminded me of Oliver Goldsmith. Another genius, George Rothwell Brown, does not even pay Joe a compliment when he says: "It is curious what niches in the Hall of Fame men will carve for themselves," since Joe was in a class by himself.

Ugly Approaches to Washington Distress and Shock Tourists—Billboards Should Come Down—Danger in Handbill Men Holding Up Automobiles.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have read with much interest your editorial urging the removal of unsightly structures on the country highways and want to commend you for the stand taken. I am a tourist, having made several trips to Washington, and I am shocked at the ugly and unsightly display of signs and billboards encountered just before entering the Capital.

Now that it is the intention to beautify Washington, the natural adjacent scenery should not be so disfigured and distorted. The tourist entering your city for the first time would think he was entering a side show instead of the Capital of his country. This is especially true of the multitudinous signboards encountered soon after leaving Hyattsville. A tourist entering your city, who has been admiring the beautiful roadway scenery where sign boards are not permitted, is surprised and shocked at the undignified surroundings and to think that such things are tolerated.

While this condition is unsatisfactory, there is another practice which to my mind is dangerous and may result in serious accidents. Automobiles are stopped on signal by men along the road side who hand or throw advertising matter into passing automobiles having license plates of distant States. The sudden stoppage of my car in Rockville caused the car immediately following to bump resulting in damage to my car and inconvenience to myself and friends. Was told that one person was severely injured by being struck in the eye while advertising literature was thrown into a moving automobile. These holdups are so numerous they have become a nuisance and should be stopped by the authorities. Besides, the literature thrown into the autos, in many instances remains unread or is thrown out of the car to clutter the roadway and fields.

There is a decided tendency to curb this practice in many States, and it is hoped that some measures will be adopted to stop it in the territory immediately adjacent to your city.

I am sure it is the wish of every tourist from the other States that Washington and its surroundings should be made as beautiful in every respect as possible, and the removal of the unsightly signboards would be a big step in the right direction.

BEHIND THE SCREENS

With NELSON B. BELL

You can imagine my utter astonishment a few days ago when Bill Ewing, of the Stanley-Crandall organization, called up and said he wanted me to speak to some one over the phone, and it turned out to be Francis X. Bushman. Yes, the handsomest man in the world for while a few years back—no other.

It was the first time I had exchanged persiflage with Mr. Bushman since the night many years ago when he assisted in the dedication of the Knickerbocker Theater, along with Beverly Bayne, Alice Brady, Carlyle Blackwell and numerous others. At Keith's, somehow, I always missed him. Maybe the fact that I never went around to see him had something to do with it.

At any rate, this one-time idol of the susceptible sex never looked better than he sounded from where I sat at Fourteenth and the Avenue and listened to him talk from Tenth and F on the day of which I speak. He had just returned, it seemed, from a vacation trip to Cuba and the West Indies, following a long and arduous season in vaudeville. Frankly, I did not know there was enough vaudeville left to provide that kind of a season, but Mr. Bushman evidently was under the impression that that was the kind of season it had been.

The West Indies had proved a great hit with him, especially the table-dressed and wide-eyed senoritas. I could appreciate his suffering, for I, too, had lived in the tropics. The hint was dropped that if Mr. Bushman ever again contemplated stepping off the deep end he would journey back to Havana for his bride. It is barely possible he might have to!

At the moment, however, he was pointed in the opposite direction, being bound for Hollywood by easy stages, there to undergo the formality of breaking into the movies all over again, this time through the agency of voice talks for the talkies.

Odd that I haven't thought of this before.

It just goes to show that you can't keep a good voice down. I mean the experience that Wee Willie Robyn has had at the Fox this week. Mr. Robyn, who has appeared here frequently before, but nevertheless is probably best known for his radio association with "Roxy and his gang," was programmed at the Fox for a single number. That would not do at all, in public estimation, and from the outset of the engagement he was compelled by insistent applause to sing twice. Sometimes three times. So he is held over for a second week, beginning today.

And then the mail brought this:

Dear sir—Mirabel Lindsay, formerly organist at the Ambassador Theater, was married Tuesday, April 30, and her name is now Mrs. Earle R. Beckner, and the residence is Chicago. Friend husband is a member of the Officers Reserve Corps and a civil engineer by profession.

The Capital City Theater Organists gave a grand whoopee party for Mirabel the Tuesday before she left, at the usual hour of 11 p. m., at the home of Sylvia Kaplowitz, 1401 Ingraham street. Mirabel was presented with a beautiful evening bag by the club, the presentation being made jointly by Harry Manvell, president, and Daniel Breeskin, honorary president. Mirabel was so overcome that she couldn't finish her speech of thanks.

You should make me your reporter, I can always give names and lurid details. Sincerely, (Signed) IRENE JUNO.

So that's what I made her.

The guess that Teddy Joyce, one of the favorites of the Loew circuit, was to be the new master of ceremonies at the Palace, succeeding Wesley Eddy, who completes an engagement of 75 weeks next Friday night, was not so hot and, obviously, I shall have to get me a new little bird.

But who ever would have suspected that Herbert Rawlinson, not so long ago one of the matinee idols of the Universal lot, would gather the assignment? Not I, for one. It will be interesting, indeed, to observe the capabilities of this dimpled and devastating Adonis, whose appointment to the corner of Thirteenth and F should be a thrill to the marshmallow nymphs and the beret babies!

A special matinee performance of "Krassin," the authentic pictorial record of the rescue of the crew of the ill-fated dirigible Italia, commanded by Gen. Umberto Nobile, when it crashed on the ice-floes near Seven Islands, in the Arctic, in May, 1928—just a year ago—will be given for the public school teachers of Washington at the Little Theater on Monday, May 6, at 3:45 p. m.

I told Manager Shute I could make his announcement in one sentence, but he was right about what kind of a sentence it would be!

Well, anyhow it didn't snow!

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

WITH MR. HOOVER IN THE TROUT STREAMS.

(According to newspaper stories, the President has had the brooks in Hunting Creek especially stocked with grown trout and left nothing undone to assure successful fishing.)

Mr. Hoover (at a cabin telephone, after putting in a call for Washington): This is Mr. Hoover speaking. What about my orders regarding trout down here?

Secretary: They were carried out, sir, I'm sure. What seems to be wrong?

Mr. Hoover: There are no trout in pool 6, section 17-A.

Secretary: Pool 6, section 17-A?

Mr. Hoover: Yes. Ten days ago I instructed you to get off a letter to the Trout Department ordering fish into pools 5 to 17, sections 10-A to 23-D, at once. My orders were evidently not executed.

Secretary: I got the letter off, sir, and I have a carbon as evidence. I even sent a blueprint of the streams and specified that you wanted full-grown trout.

Mr. Hoover: Well, there's gross inefficiency somewhere. Connect me with Battersby, chief of the Trout Department in charge of stream stocking.

Mr. Hoover: Is this you Battersby? This is Hoover. What about that requisition for trout in pools 5 to 17, section 10-A to 23-D, sent you on the 5th inst.?

Battersby: Just a minute while I consult my files. * * * Ah, here it is * * * I personally gave the orders to the delivery room and feel positive they were executed. Are you sure they were not?

Mr. Hoover: I've just been out casting and didn't get a single strike in pool 6.

Battersby: Are you sure you're in pool 6, section 17-A, stream No. 3, sir?

Mr. Hoover: According to my blueprints, I am.

Battersby: The delivery department is in charge of one of our oldest and most reliable trout brook stockers, and I can't believe he didn't put the fish in the places designated. Maybe if you will try just a little longer you'll get a strike.

Mr. Hoover: If things were properly systematized I wouldn't have to wait. Have you that big map showing the streams and the best fishing spots?

Battersby: Right before me. There are red tacks marking the spots where the best fish should be.

Mr. Hoover: Well where can I find those 2-pounders that were sent down last month?

Battersby: They're in rapids 3 to 8 in Brook No. 7, and also in shallows 6 to 11, in brooks 5 and 6. Our charts show that they should be feeding at just about this time.

Mr. Hoover: Good! I'll try those spots.

IT LOOKS LIKE IT.

ROLAND HAYES STAR OF BENEFIT RECITAL

Noted Tenor Is Applauded for Singing at Concert for Gerald Tyler.

COMPOSER PLAYS SOLOS

Roland Hayes, the renowned negro tenor, was the star of the benefit concert given at the Shubert-Belasco Theater yesterday for Gerald Tyler, former teacher in the Washington public schools and a composer of note, who has become incapacitated through illness.

Before the audience, which crowded the theater to capacity, the singer renewed his claim upon musical Washington in a program which ranged from operatic arias to simple negro spirituals sung with innate restraint and magnificent artistry. The tenor was in excellent voice. He had contributed his services to the concert as his donation toward the Gerald Tyler fund.

His admirable legato was displayed in several of the earlier numbers to a marked degree, especially in Beethoven's "Adelaide" and the lovely Purcell "When I Am Laid in Earth." His unerring sense of fitness, vividness of interpretation and clearness of diction and enunciation were apparent, no matter in what language the song of the minute might have been written.

The singer was particularly effective in a unique song written by Gerald Tyler from Paul Lawrence Dunbar's poem, "Ships That Pass in the Night." He was very generous with encores in response to the series of ovations which were accorded to him at the close of each group of songs.

The audience was touched by the appearance of Gerald Tyler, who played a group of solos on the piano, using his left hand only in a masterly and efficient fashion. The MacDowell group of three songs was arranged by Mr. Tyler for the left hand only.

In the group of negro spirituals which concluded Roland Hayes' portion of the program, special applause was given to "Camp Meeting," which had been arranged by the singer. Another spiritual exquisitely sung was "Deep River," arranged by the great composer, H. T. Burleigh.

After the singing of "New Born," the final spiritual, the tenor sang without accompaniment in a memorable manner the spiritual known as "Were You With My Lord."

The pianissimo, the marvelous beauty of tonal quality, and the emotional force put into the singing of this one number, would have been sufficient to have won him anew the title which is surely his, that of one of the greatest tenors in the world today.

Percival Parham was a sympathetic and effective accompanist throughout the program.

Dempsey to Speak Upon Air Tonight

Former Champion Will Answer Questions About Self and Present Boxing Conditions — Dvorak Program by Damrosch.

Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion of the world and one of the outstanding figures in the sports world, will speak to radio listeners during "Ted" Husing's "Sportslants" program at 6:15 o'clock from WMAL. Dempsey will devote his period on the air to answering questions about himself and about present-day boxing conditions.

Senator Simeon D. Fess, of Ohio, and Dr. Julius Klein will be the speakers in the National Forum from WMAL at 9 o'clock. Their subject will be "America's Future in Commerce."

A musical program by George Washington University's Troubadours between 7:30 and 8 o'clock and the Temple of the Air program are among the earlier features through WMAL.

George Olsen's Orchestra, the Swanee Syncopators and the Club Plaza Orchestra will be featured between 9:30 and 11 o'clock.

In honor of the Czech composer, Antonin Dvorak, Walter Damrosch, veteran symphony conductor and leader of Nation-wide radio concerts, will commemorate the twenty-fifth anniversary of Dvorak's death with a performance of the largo movement from his symphony, "From the New World" during the General Electric Hour at 8 o'clock through WRC.

Besides the Dvorak excerpt, the Symphony Orchestra under Mr. Damrosch's baton will play the following program: "Marche," from "Le Prophete," Meyerbeer; "First Movement From Symphony in G Minor," Mozart; "1812 Overture," Tschaikowsky; "March of the Knights of the Holy Grail," from "Parsifal," Wagner; "Persian March," Strauss, and "Polka Pizzicato," Delibes.

The Capitol Theater Family will broadcast a special program for the Byrd expedition in Little America between 10 and 11 o'clock tonight. Trader Horn; Sylvia Miller, lyric soprano; Westell Gordon, tenor, and Merle Johnston's saxophone quartet will be among the featured attractions.

Among the numbers selected for playing during the Lucky Strike Dance Hour are "Wait Till You See Me With My Sweetie," "Sweethearts on Parade," "When My Baby Smiles at Me," "Toy Maker's Dream," "I Love You Truly," "Old Fashioned Yesterdays," "Some Sunday Morning," "Only a Rose," "Chicago," "That Precious Little Thing Called Love" and "April Showers."

The Wardman Park Dance Orchestra will be featured from 11 o'clock until midnight.

Dr. Julius Klein will be heard on the air in two separate programs tonight, the first from WRC at 6:45 o'clock, during the "A Week of the World's Business" program. Dr. Klein has just returned to Washington from a ten-week tour of study and inspection abroad, during which he visited French North Africa, Greece, Jugoslavia, Italy, Hungary, Austria, Czechoslovakia, Germany, Great Britain and France. His talks will of particular interest to American business men whose affairs are affected by the shifting panorama of European economics.

Everett F. Haycraft will be the speaker in the Bible talk through WRC at 6:05 o'clock tonight.

Station WOL has planned two hours of dance music between 10 o'clock and midnight. A request program will be broadcast at 6:30 o'clock, to be followed at 7:11 o'clock by "Amos 'n' Andy."

Daring airmen, who cut loose at Pittsburgh for the Gordon-Bennett National Balloon Elimination Race today, consigning themselves to the mercies of the wind and elements, will receive weather reports during the first precarious 24 hours from a network of NBC stations, headed by WJZ. In conjunction with James H. Kimball, of the United States Weather Bureau, New York City, meteorological findings will be broadcast to the balloonists from 9:30 to 9:33 o'clock tonight and twice tomorrow.

Television to Be Discussed At Conclave

Photoradio Also on Program of Institute to Be Held in Capital— Cut in Radio Ad Talks Is Urged by Manufacturers.

Dr. C. B. Jolliffe, of the radio laboratory of the Bureau of Standard and chairman of the Institute of Radio Engineers convention committee, to be held in Washington, May 13, 14 and 15, announces that plans have been completed for a symposium on photoradio and television. It is expected that this will prove one of the features of the convention.

Dr. Alfred N. Goldsmith, vice president of the Radio Corporation of America, past president of the institute, will lead the discussion and will be followed by J. W. Horton, of General Radio Co.; Capt. R. H. Ranger, Radio Corporation of America; C. Francis Jenkins, of the Jenkins Laboroatory, and others.

Following the symposium there will be a demonstration of educational sound pictures dealing with the principles of modulation and filtering presented by John Mills, of Bell Telephone Laboratories.

The institute is now entering its twentieth year of activities and included in its membership roll are such illustrious names as Guglielmo Marconi, Prof. M. I. Pupin, of Columbia University; A. E. Kennelly, professor of electrical engineering, Massachusetts Institute of Technology; F. B. Jewett, vice president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co.; G. W. Pickard, inventor; G. W. Pierce, professor of electrical engineering, Harvard University; R. H. Marriott, consulting engineer and first president of the institute; Dr. L. W. Austin, Bureau of Standards.

Also John Stone, one of the early pioneers; John V. L. Hogan, consulting engineer; Dr. E. F. W. Alexanderson, consulting engineer with the General Electric Co.; Dr. Irving Langmuir, who has materially contributed to the development of the modern high power vacuum tube; Prof. J. H. Morecroft, Columbia University; Dr. J. H. Dellinger, principal physicist of the Bureau of Standards in charge of the radio laboratory; Meville Eastham, president of the General Radio Co.; Dr. Fulton Cutting, Maj. Gen. George O. Squire, of wired radio fame, and Dr. Lee DeForest, inventor of the three-electrode vacuum tube, which has contributed so materially to the art of radio communication.

Taking notice of the tendency so apparent of late to inject an undue amount of advertising in radio programs the board of directors of the Radio Manufacturers Association in session at Cleveland yesterday characterized this as "excessive commercialism." Furthermore the Radio Manufacturers, believing that public good will might be thus seriously impaired, pledged their support to chain and other broadcasters in efforts to discourage the practice. To that end a resolution was passed recommending that broadcasters confine announcements to the names of sponsors, but eliminate other advertising details. The resolution follows:

"Whereas, the listening public has clearly indicated to the radio industry its disapproval of details of advertising matter and reiteration thereof in announcing radio programs, and

"Whereas, the good will of the public is of interest alike to the industry and to the sponsors of radio programs,

"Resolved, that the Board of Directors of the Radio Manufacturers Association recommends, in the interests of the listening public, that broadcasters confine announcements to the names of the sponsors of the broadcasting program and a brief statement of the products marketed without details or other advertising matter."

As revealed in a brief filed in the case of WNYC, the New York City municipal station, which has gone to court in an effort to obtain more time on the air, the Federal Radio Commission depreciates the importance of this station in fire and police work.

"The use of Station WNYC for the purpose of establishing an intradepartmental communication system for the fire and police departments of the City of New York, is not material in these proceedings," the commission brief declares. "Communications of this nature are not public communications in the sense that they are of general interest to the public. They do not, therefore, constitute a broadcasting service. Channels other than those devoted to broadcasting are allocated for services of this nature."

What Today Means to You

May 4.
By MARY BLAKE.

TAURUS.

If May 4 is your birthday, the best hours for you today are from 8:30 a. m. to 10 a. m., from 2:15 p. m. to 4 p. m. and from 9 p. m. to 11 p. m., the danger periods are from 11 a. m. to 1:30 p. m. and from 5 p. m. to 7 p. m.

Today's influences are auspicious for the business man or woman. A "do or die" spirit will prevail and the prevailing optimism will be an insurmountable barrier to failure.

The child born today will be even tempered and easygoing and will not be easily disturbed. It will make friends easily and will merit a widespread popularity. Conceit and vanity will be entirely lacking in its make-up.

Humor is one of the strongest elements in your character. It adds spice to your speech, it brightens your outlook upon life and in many trying situations is your lifesaver. Your ears do not hear, your eyes do not see the small tragedies of life; they find a bit of comedy lurking everywhere. You are not, however, callousted toward the real sorrows with which everyone is confronted. To these you are brave and courageous. You are not unsympathetic or unfeeling, you are capable of deep suffering and you never fail in your effort to bring good cheer to others. An unwritten and unspoken tribute lies in the hearts of many who have been benefited and comforted by your warmhearted kindness and simple goodness. Your sweet and bright philosophy of life is one which will be a blessing to many.

You have made perseverance your bosom companion, and hope is your guardian genius. You are not looking for failures and you are willing to work hard and long for those things which you consider worthwhile.

You are not seeking a fortune, glory or fame, but the privilege of living a happy, contented and comfortable life as expressed by a home, friends and congenial work.

Successful men born May 4:

Gurdon Buck, surgeon.
Frederick E. Church, landscape artist.

Dare Interprets the Mode

The newest lingerie note is a brilliantly colored one!

As I have told you before, there is an entirely new note in lingerie, which I firmly believe has heretofore never been considered in the light of good taste in underthings. As you know, other than white and very pale pastel shades, and an occasional black, colored lingerie was merely a subject for the pens of jaded humorists.

But the very newest lingerie seems to vie with itself for the privilege of being the most shockingly colored—and the truly astonishing part of it is that, executed as it is in transparent georgette or chiffon, it is not garish!

But color or no color, there is one characteristic of all elegant lingerie that can not possibly be lacking—and that is its profusion of dainty handwork. Even a so-called simple "tailored undergarment" must have a method in its simplicity—and a studied art in its execution. "Plain" lingerie is just out of the question!

Along with the impossibility of plainness is the necessity for simplicity of silhouette — a contradiction that requires positive genius to reconcile. Yet clever fingers do reconcile them—and with happy results!

Illustrated today is some new lingerie, in all its brightly colored georgette!

Spring lingerie! Some of the newest and daintiest and most unexpected cunnings from Paris—all illustrated and explained to you how to make, if you see what we mean—in the illustrated leaflet for which you may send a stamped self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post next week.

And, with due consideration for individual sizes in the matter, the models may be made up in pastel shades every bit as easily as in brighter shades.

Secret dee Baute.

When you just feel gone, invest in a home-made facial—a bottle of mild buttermilk and a box of absorbent cotton! You just thoroughly clean your face first, with soap and water or cream, whichever you wish, then you soak strips of cotton in the buttermilk and put it flat on your face, all except your nose—then lie down and try to relax perfectly. Leave this cotton strip on about fifteen minutes the first time to see how it affects your skin. Take it off and throw it away and wash your face with tepid water. And there you are!

And today being Saturday, don't forget to devote half an hour of it to loveliness—that little shoulder strap you broke this week, remember—that button that came off your sleeve, that hidden safety pin that realy doesn't show now—those stockings to take to the "runnery?"

Six lovely ladies await but a self-addressed stamped envelope sent to the Dare department of The Washington Post for them. How to make six lovely ladies—these happen to be lovely and exotic boudoir dolls—is told in this week's illustrated leaflet, and the making will be both a delightful pastime and a worth-while pursuit. Hurry with that envelope!

In tomorrow's issue appears the weekly fashion leter.

Au Revoir!

Uncle Ray's Corner

A LITTLE SATURDAY TALK

NOW we are in the month of May, one of the brightest and most beautiful months of the year. Birds are here, with their nest-building and singing; flowers are showing their smiling faces in the gardens of homes and in the woods. We can count on the weather being fair and mild during most of the month.

May is named after an ancient goddess—Maia. She was the mother of the mesenger-god, Mercury, and the Romans said that she watched over growing things.

People in England have long given honor to the month of May. On the first day they used to go out early in the morning, before sunrise, and gather branches. Taking the branches, with the still fresh dew, back with them from the woods, they would blow horns and shout with joy and merriment.

There was also a Maypole dance, and a wreath of flowers was placed on the head of the fairest maid of the village. She was called Queen of the May, and wore her crown very proudly.

In 1890 the first of May was used by workmen in several countries as a time for parades and meetings in favor of the eight-hour working day. Since then the day has been marked mainly by the same kind of action. It is little wonder that men who labor in mines and mills should think of the bright sunshine of May, and should wish more time to enjoy it.

Last year at this time I was making ready to embark for England. Steaming across the ocean, I spent two May weeks in the central and southern parts of the country. England in the springtime proved to be all that the poets have called it.

I still have a supply of leaflets on "Home Pastimes for Boys and Girls," so if you want one, drop me a line. Inclose a stamped envelope addressed to yourself. Send your letter to "Uncle Ray, Editor of Uncle Ray's Corner," in care of this newspaper.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

REQUIREMENTS.

Give me the right to neighbor; give me the right to toil,
To kneel in the purple twilight, my hands in the garden soil;
Give me a few brave blossoms, smiling through sun and rain,
And health for my laughing children and little will I complain.

Lord, it's not style I'm seeking, nor all of the roses here,
Not forty rooms in a castle; not forty millions a year,
But give me a happy dwelling, with laughter and love aglow,
And I'll envy no man the surplus of splendor which he may know.

Let mine be a little garden, where old-fashioned blossoms sway
And a patch of green in the summer where the children may romp in play;
Give me a blazing fireplace when the winds blow bitter and cold
And I'll gather of joy and contentment as much as one life can hold.

Lord, I've no wish to wallow in luxuries here on earth,
Nor reckon my own possessions by what somebody else is worth.
Give me a home that is peaceful, where gladly my own abide,
A few true friends for my neighbors, and I will be satisfied.

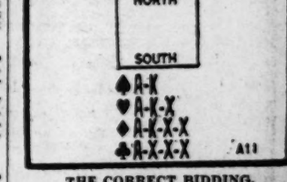
WORK'S BRIDGE

LOOK at this pair of Contract hands and decide how South and North should bid if East and West pass whenever it is their turn to declare.



THE CORRECT BIDDING.

With four suits stopped and a count of 25, South should bid three No Trumps. He has not the count to justify a bid of four, and the Club suit is not stopped twice as it should be for a four No Trump bid.

North appreciates that with Spades the trump, he would have valuable assistance, for South who was strong enough to bid three No Trumps—but probably not a trick to help a No Trump contract. Consequently North bids four Spades. He does this using the convention that four of a major suit over three No Trumps shows a long weak suit and does not announce help for No Trumps. It is exactly the opposite of the meaning conveyed by a minor bid under such conditions.

After North's four Spades, South passes.

It will be noted that in the play North and South, with Spades the Trump, would make either ten or eleven tricks, depending upon whether the Queen of Spades were in the adverse hand that held two Spades or three Spades. Consequently, game at Spades would be a certainty. On the other hand at No Trump South would take his four Aces and three Kings (seven tricks). With an even break of Clubs he might get another Club trick but the chances would be against his doing so. At most he could take eight tricks and consequently could not get game. It is true that at No Trumps he would count 150 for honors, at Spades nothing for honors; but the honor count fades into insignificance compared with the importance of winning a game.

Save Today and Have Tomorrow—

In the case of the individual this is plainly seen.

The average man neglects to prepare for the future.

Not only does he not save money, but he wastes time and opportunity.

Nobody likes a waster, for "willful waste makes woeful want," and want means that society or friends must come to the waster's aid.

Every penny saved from your income means one penny less that you will have to earn in the future.

Dickens said, "The difference between happiness and unhappiness lies in spending a little less than earned instead of a little more."

There are few men living who could not live on a little less than what they are earning.

Form the habit of placing a surplus in the bank, then when the opportunity comes to invest it wisely, you are prepared.

These terms of saving and wasting can be applied to other things as well.

Are you wasting time?

Do you spend all your working hours to the best advantage of your employer?

THE CLOCK WATCHER IS ONE OF THE WORST WASTERS. DILIGENT EFFORT IS ALWAYS REWARDED.

When you do your work well, recognition comes in larger pay and a more responsible position. When you do not, you are paving the way for a failure.

The man who neglects opportunities to advance himself mentally, morally, religiously and financially is a waster.

If you save today and put forth your best efforts, you need not worry about the future.

PRICE LEVEL RISES TO RECORD HEIGHTS

AMERICAN CAN LEADER

New York, May 3 (A.P.).—As a culmination of a succession of efforts this week to arouse the stock market from its April nap, the bull party today succeeded to pushing the general level of prices above the record reached just before the break in late March.

More than two dozen issues were elevated to record prices, which carried the Associated Press price index of 50 industrials up more than 3 points, to a new peak, at 224.2, nearly a point above the previous high record reached on March 16. The index of 20 utilities also mounted to a new high level, but the 20 rails lagged.

The bulls, however, had to deal with their customary obstacle—tight money. Call loans renewed at 10 per cent, but the increasing demands of the market, together with the week-end currency requirements, sent the rate up to 11 in the afternoon. This brought some profit taking, and prices sagged a little from their best levels of the day, but for the most part the liquidation was readily taken up. Another indication of firm credit was an increase of ¼ of 1 per cent in 30 banking acceptance rates.

Increase In Brokers Loans.

The Upturn was given a sharp impetus by increase of but $40,000,000 in Federal reserve brokers' loans, as estimates had run as high as $100,000,000. Increases in Federal reserve holdings of gold and acceptances were also made built capital, but bankers were of the opinion, however, that reserve officials would not permit additional gold to be used to expand credit, and it was pointed out that the reserve came into the acceptance market again only to tide over a few days dealers whose portfolios were overloaded.

The day's business and industrial news held favorable. Secretary Lamont's statement on general business conditions was particularly reassuring. The weekly business reviews reported little change in the generally favorable situation, although it was indicated that heavy rains in April had hurt retail trade. American Railway Express proposed a three-for-one split-up, and Spicer published an excellent earnings report.

American Can was a noteworthy strong point, touching a new peak at 149¼, up more than 6 points. Radio, in which it is rumored a new pool has been formed, rose 4 points to 114, a record for the present stock, only to lose most of its gain on realizing.

Accessories Move Upward.

Some of the auto accessory stocks continued their upward march. Electric Auto Lite mounting 6 points to a new top at 172. The company predicts earnings for the year of about $20 per share, more than twice the 1928 profit. Commonwealth Power jumped 8 points to a new top for the year on rumors that United Corporation is negotiating for a large block. Marmon crossed 100 to a new top on reports of large sales of its light models, and Ludlum Steel reached a record at 99 on merger rumors. International Harvester was sent up about 3 points to a new top. Interests recently active in Union Carbide are reported to have switched to this issue.

Hershey Chocolate common, strong of late on prospects of inauguration of dividends, jumped 6 points to another record level. Postum, North American Co., Bohn Aluminum, Republic Brass, Pure Oil, Wilcox Rich Tissues and Woolworth were among other issues reaching new tops.

Advance Rumely Reacts.

An unsettling development was no further deflation of the speculative bubble in the Advance Rumely issues, to the accompaniment of unconfirmed rumors that exchange officials were investigating recent activities in the stock. The common dropped 8 points and the preferred sold down nearly 20 points, closing 15 off net. Coppers were inclined to heaviness, with the exception of Greene Cananae, which made a substantial gain. American Bosch dropped 4 points, after reaching a new high. United Aircraft was again heavy.

Commodity markets followed diverse trends. Cotton closed about 50 cents a bale higher on reports of crop damage, while wheat lost about a cent a bushel on reports that Canadian railways would meet the freight cut agreed upon by American carriers. Corn lagged on better weather.

Foreign exchange were dull, with little change in quotations. Sterling cables were unchanged at $4.85 5-16, while German marks were a shade lower at 20.70½ cents.

Bond Offerings Increase.

New York, May 3 (A.P.).—New bond offerings this week totaled $64,552,000, a straight increase from the total of $57,373,000 of last week, but far under the $148,386,000 of the like week in 1928.

ROESCH BEATS WILSON FOR TOURNEY TITLE, 3 AND 2

G. U. Scores, 11 to 7, Over Princeton

Holy Cross Conquerors Are Guilty of Ten Errors in Game.

Hilltop's Nine Bunches Hits in 7th Inning for 6 Runs.

Special to The Washington Post.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 3.—Bunching half their total hits in the seventh inning for six runs, the Georgetown Baseball Nine humbled Princeton here today by 11 to 7. Only eight hits were totaled by the Southerners, but a stiff wind blew the Tigers into the error column ten times at costly points.

The Nassau hurlers found the home plate too elusive for comfort and gave their mates trouble in holding the men they walked or hit. The Tigers totaled ten safe hits, but were unable to turn them into runs except for eleventh-hour rallies in the eighth and ninth, which brought two scores each.

The Hilltoppers registered first in the third, with Poole crossing the plate, and followed this up with three more in the fifth on a trio of singles, an error and passed ball.

Tigers Score in Third Inning, After Working Double Steal.

The Tigers came back with one in their half of this frame, Bennett crossing the home plate by working a double steal with Dick Hendey.

Another was added by the Georgetown Nine in the sixth, with McKinney and Layton adding two for Princeton in the same inning on Dunn's bad toss to first. The seventh was Georgetown's big inning with a total of six runs, three being due to Dunn's Texas leaguer.

The Tigers worked hard in the final two frames to total four runs, but were just as many short of reaching the Georgetown count as the last man grounded out.

Aurora Track Opens Today; Horsemen Victors in Strike

AURORA, Ill., May 3 (A.P.).—The bugle will sound "boots and saddles" here tomorrow.

The strike of horse owners, which held up the opening of the Illinois turf season at the Aurora track for three days, was settled tonight. Entries were immediately made for the seven-race program tomorrow.

The strike ended in a victory for members of the Thoroughbred Horsemen's Association, who held out for larger purses and deduction of 1 per cent of all winnings to be credited to their organization.

Under the terms of the settlement, the Exposition Park Jockey Club agreed to hang up $6,000 in purses daily for the first seven days of the meeting, and then increase the amount to $6,600 daily. This represents an increase of $600 and $800 daily in purse money, over the original plan. There will be five $800 purses and two $1,000 purses for the first seven days. Thereafter there will be five $1,000 purses and two $800 purses. The horsemen had demanded that all purses be increased to $1,000.

The jockey club further agreed to deduct the 1 per cent, provided the winning owner made assignment to the club for that portion of the purse. The money, in turn, will be turned over to the Horsemen's Association.

The meeting was scheduled to start last Wednesday, with seven races daily, six of them for purses of $800 and one at $1,000. The turfmen balked when their demand for large purses and the 1 per cent issue were refused and immediately declared a strike.

Roguish Eye, Heavily Backed, Out of Derby

Chicago, Ill., May 3 (A.P.).—John J. Coughlin, Chicago turfman, today definitely withdrew Roguish Eye from the Kentucky Derby.

The 3-year-old, one of the favorites for the classic, pulled up lame after working the Derby distance Wednesday. He developed a swelling in his front legs and, although the trouble yielded to treatment, Coughlin decided to take the colt out of training temporarily.

He will point Roguish Eye for the $50,000 American Derby, which will be decided at Washington Park, June 15.

Coughlin will depend on Karl Eitel, another outstanding 3-year-old, to carry his colors in the Kentucky classic.

TIGERS DOWN WHITE SOX, 6 TO 1

Uhle Allows Five Hits in Fourth Victory of Season.

CHICAGO, May 3 (A.P.).—George Uhle, veteran right-hander, who was shoved across the lake to Detroit last winter by the Indians, registered his fourth victory of the season here today, taming Lena Blackburne's White Sox by 6 to 1. It was the first defeat for the Pale Hose in five games.

Uhle limited his opponents to five blows and prevented the home forces from bunching so many as two of these in any round but the fifth. After that inning, the White Sox went hitless as Uhle ran his strike-out total to five.

Led by Gehringer, who accounted for three runs, with a homer and a triple, the Tigers pounded Alphonse Thomas for nine hits. Bill Cissell helped the Tigers along with three artistic misplays. Heinie Schuble, Detroit short fielder, maintained a corner on Tiger errors with two. These bobbles, following Clancy's single in the first, gave the Sox their only run.

Gehringer's Triple and Heilmann's Single Count Winning Run.

Dale Alexander's double and a single by Schuble got this one back for the Bengals in the second. Gehringer's triple and Heilmann's single sent home the ultimate winning marker in the sixth, but one more was added in the seventh and three more were sent home in the ninth just for good measure.

Lott Leads Chicago Net Team to 5-4 Victory

Chicago, May 3 (A.P.).—Led by George Lott, third ranking star of the United States, the University of Chicago Tennis Team won its second straight Big Ten victory today by edging out Illinois, 5 to 4. Lott breezed through to an easy love victory over Thompson in the singles and was the winning factor in his doubles game. In two college singles matches, Lott has not lost a game.

MARYLAND U. BEATEN BY VIRGINIA

Cavaliers Win, 3 to 0; Marshall Pitches Steady Ball.

UNIVERSITY OF VIRGINIA evened scores for an earlier defeat at the hands of the University of Maryland Baseball Team when the Cavaliers triumphed over the Old Liners, 3 to 0, yesterday at College Park. It was the fourth victory in eight starts in the Tri-State League of the Southern Conference for Virginia and the fifth defeat in eight games for Maryland.

Inability of Maryland's batters to hit Red Marshall, stock Cavalier hurler, at opportune times was largely responsible for the Old Liners' defeat yesterday. Marshall gave up six hits and walked five, but contrived to pull out of holes in several instances, being aided by brilliant support by his mates. Benny April, Washington boy, catching for Virginia, displayed an unusually accurate arm, nailing the four Marylanders who attempted to steal on him.

Virginia Makes One Run in First, Second and Seventh.

Virginia counted one run each in the first, second and seventh innings, but though Maryland got as far as third three times, it was unable to count.

Milburn, starting Terrapin pitcher, after being touched for five hits, including two doubles in the first two innings, gave way to Boublitz, who pitched fine ball the remainder of the way, limiting the Cavaliers to one run, which was unearned, six hits and a walk.

Capt. Randolph, third baseman, was the leading Virginia hitter, getting a double, two singles and a sacrifice in four tries.

Singles by Holland and T. Bowen and Sloan's double produced Virginia's first run in the opening inning. A double by Randolph and Marshall's single yielded the Cavaliers their tally in the second, and Holland's scatch hit to Hetzel, sacrifices by T. Bowen and J. Bowen and Derr's error Brought Virginia's third run in the seventh.

Cold Weather Greets Nats in West

Hadley to Face Tribe if Elements Permit Game Today.

Peck in Same Boat as Johnson; Barnes to Get Chance.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 3.—A semi-blizzard, with spitting snow 'n' everything, greeted Manager Walter Johnson and his Nationals when they arrived here shortly after noon today for a three-game series with the Indians which marks the beginning of their first 1929 Western invasion. It is an off day on the Washington schedule, but the Cleveland and St. Louis clubs were booked to clash, and, like the motorman who takes a nice long car ride on his day off, all of the Nats were figuring on attending the game, had it been played.

Whether or not the Washington club will see action tomorrow remains to be seen, as the local weather man has several "ifs" included in his prophecy, which is to the general effect that Saturday likely will be cold. If the game is played, Irving Hadley will do the flinging for the Nationals with Joe Shaute likely opposing him on the hill in the hope of stopping the Tribes' losing streak, which has reached five consecutive games.

If the game is not played, it will be "just too bad," Manager Johnson stated tonight. "Here we got off to a bad start," the Nat leader explains, "then we suddenly found our batting eyes against the Yankees Tuesday and instead of getting a chance to keep on going we have been stopped dead by the weather. Wednesday's game was postponed, we were showing signs of keeping up our good batting Thursday and had to stop because of rain when we were leading, and drew a blank date today. More idleness tomorrow is likely to throw the boys back to where they were before they suddenly showed signs of hitting their batting stride.

"There is a certain amount of psychology which helps a team just coming out of a slump and an idle spell will kill it quicker than anything else. All I ask for now is a chance for us to play every day."

Peck Up Against Proposition Like That of Johnson.

Roger Peckinpaugh seems to be up against the same proposition which has faced Johnson. He has been forced to do a lot of experimenting, and like Johnson he is not yet out of the woods either. Outfielder Dick Porter, Baltimore slugger, who was counted upon heavily, seems to have temporarily flivvered and is now adorning the bench. He had a stick average of .333 to show for his eight years of service with the Orioles and cost the Tribe approximately $50,000. Ed Morgan, with the team last year as both infielder and outfielder, is now covering the territory in right.

Another disappointment on which Peckinpaugh did not figure is Jackie Tauner, acquired in the trade with De-

Pirates Beat Yanks, 8-2, In Exhibition Contest

Davis Cup Team Plays At White House May 21

Philadelphia, May 3 (A.P.).—The American Davis Cup Tennis Team will play before President and Mrs. Hoover on the White House courts in Washington.

Samuel H. Collum, president of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, announced today that he had accepted on behalf of the Davis Cup players an invitation from Mr. Hoover for them to play at the White House on May 21. In the event of unfavorable weather on that day they will go into action the next afternoon. The candidates, John Hennessy, Fritz Mercur, John Van Ryn and Wilmer Allison, have been practicing here.

Argentine Ring Star Sails for U. S. Invasion

Buenos Aires, May 3 (A.P.).—Victorio Campolo, Argentine heavyweight, announced today that he would leave with his manager for New York, May 16, to seek his fortune in American rings. Campolo is 6 feet 4 inches tall and weighs 225 pounds. He succeeded Louis Firpo as South American champion, but was knocked out by Monte Munn in his only clash with an American boxer.

Tech-Eastern Game Postponed to May 17

Old Man Weather won the high school series game between Tech and Eastern yesterday, with the result that the two teams will meet on May 17 to settle their feud for the championship. Because of the col dwind sweeping over the field at the Eastern Stadium, Coaches Guyon and Edwards, of Eastern and Tech, respectively, thought it advisible to wait for a warmer day.

The contest, had it been played, would have brought together the two strongest teams in the series as both have won two victories in the series and are tied for first place. A win for either would have practically clinched the championship.

RUGGED CHARM —Of Chuck Wiggins— ASSET IN RING

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

NEW YORK, May 3.—If the problem of succession to the heavyweight championship of the world is one that must be solved, a simple and expensive solution would be Mr. Chuck Wiggins, the Indianapolis pugilist who used to fight Gene Tunney now and again with moderate success. There may be simpler and less expensive heavyweights but Mr. Wiggins is simple enough and he is such a thorough aesthete that if there were no money in the house he would fight for pleasure or for the beers, which amounts to the same thing with him. Moreover, Mr. Wiggins has this in his favor that on a good night he would be quite certain to give Max Schmeling, Jack Sharkey or Paulino Uzcudun a boisterous slapping and win on points, which is as much as Mr. Tunney, himself, did in winning the championship from Dempsey.

Mr. Wiggins is possessed of a certain rugged charm which would endear him to the public as a change from the rather austere dignity of the late champion. Whatever else may be said of the Chuckler, he is positively not refined and his record in this respect is unblemished with the sole exception of the time he went slightly fashionable, bought himself a charger at the liquidation of the effects of a defunct teaming company in Indianapolis and organized himself into an exclusive, one-man hunt club. The hunt disbanded after a brief existence. Mr. Wiggins set out one morning to follow his hound in pursuit of the fox, if any, and after some bouncing over hill and dale, the charger pulled up at the door of a suburban beer store.

Mr. Wiggins Came Back to His Hotel Riding Side-Saddle.

It has never been said that Mr. Wiggins passed a beer store so he dismounted and went in to have a few crocks of beer.

Remounting after a time he resumed the hunt, uttering jolly cries of "Yoicks" until the charger, with marvelous equine intuition, pulled up at another beer store. This went on all day and Mr. Wiggins returned to the stable at dusk riding side-saddle and singing, "Tantivuy, Tantivuy, Away!"

"I say, you know, that is not half ripping and all that sort of thing," Mr. Wiggins exclaimed as the hostler held the ladder for him to dismount. "My charger is a most remarkable animal, upon me soul. Every half mile or so he pulls up at some store and waits until I have a few penny worth of mild and bitter. S'traordinary."

"Yes," the hostler said, "he would be likely to. He has been hauling a wagon for one of the local imported Canadian ale breweries ever since prohibition came in and he probably took you over the same route."

It was Mr. Ray Alvis, manager of Mr. Wiggins, who insisted that he give up riding the charger. Mr. Alvis is temperamentally out of fix with his pugilist and is constantly putting obstacles between him and his beer. Indeed, his latest official paper, announcing the chuckler's summer campaign for the heavyweight championship, states that he has exacted a promise to obstain from beer, which seems ill-advised, as Mr. Wiggins fights best when in his seidels and it troubles him to have to break his promises.

Once Victim of Vicious Breach Of Faith and Loses Bout.

Mr. Wiggins was the victim of a vicious breach of faith several years ago and was knocked out by Tommy Gibbons. On this occasion, Mr. Wiggins was suffering from a fractured rib on his right side and he was afraid Mr. Gibbons' left hook would irritate the injury. So before the boxing contest began he went to Mr. Gibbons' dressing room and told him all about it, except that he said the broken rib was on the left side.

"I did not trust Gibbons, as I thought he might deceive me, so I decided to deceive him first," Mr. Wiggins related. "Therefore I made him promise to lay off my left side, realizing that he would start hammering there right away, which he did, being a sportsman of very objectionable methods.

"Of course, when my ribs are all right I can let them hammer away all day, so his pounding on the left side, in violation of his promise, only showed what an untrustworthy character he was without doing me any harm. He would hit me a paste there and say, 'Oh, pardon me, I forgot,' and I would grunt and say, 'Please, Tom, be careful, as you are hurting me.'

"This went on for nine rounds and I was holding him fairly even, but when we came out for the tenth he walked into a clinch and said, 'You double-crosser, you have been deceiving me and taking advantage of my good nature becaus. I have pounded that left side enough to know that those ribs are all O. K. Now I am going to poke you a few on the right side and see if you have betrayed my confidence.'

Washington Club Star in Upset Triumph Over Stevinson.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

FRANK K. ROESCH, the club champion, yesterday afternoon won the invitation tournament of the Washington Golf and Country Club, defeating Richard H. Wilson, of Southern Pines and Georgetown University, on the sixteen green of an 18-hole round, 3 and 2. Both of the contestants in the final round are barely beyond their majority, many of the older players in the championship flight having been eliminated in previous struggles.

The last day of the tournament, by no means ideal for golf, as a cold wind swept in gallelike fashion across the course, was marked by two unexpected results in the forenoon semifinal round, when both Maurice J. McCarthy, intercollegiate champion and the star golfer of Georgetown University, and Miller B. Stevinson, Columbia, District amateur champion, failed to survive.

McCarthy, who was plainly disconcerted by the high wind which played havoc with his long drives, was also putting badly and was 3 down at the turn, a handicap which he was unable to overcome, being defeated by Wilson, 3 and 1. He was 2 down at the seventeenth tee and instead of playing safely to the fairway short of the ditch endeavored to drive over the ditch to the distant green. When his ball came to rest in the deep chasm he gave up the hole and the match.

Roesch reached the final round by bringing in the scalp of Stevinson at his belt. The pair were all even at the turn, and the match was still all square when the fifteenth hole was played. On that hole Stevinson topped his second shot into the ditch which borders the left of the fairway. Reaching the green in 4, he holed out in 6, losing the hole to his opponent's 5, and was 1 down.

Disaster Overtakes Stevinson After He Evens Match.

Although he evened the match again by winning the sixteenth, disaster overtook him on the seventeenth. He drove into the ditch, his ball lying on the steep bank in a thick cluster of honeysuckle vines. His endeavor to play it out proved a complete failure, for the ball rolled back into the ravine. He was now 1 down and when the eighteenth was halved the match was over.

The final round was followed by a large gallery, composed of members of the club, whose sympathies were naturally with their club champion, and students from Georgetown University, who, despite their sorrow at McCarthy's downfall, were hoping that their blue and gray colors would be carried to victory by Wilson. On the first hole it looked as if their hopes would be realizer, for Roesch, who had the honor, drove far to the right of the fairway and then overapproached the green, while Wilson played his second shot within 10 feet of the cup and won easily with a birdie 3. From that time, however, there was a different story.

Roesch Takes Lead Over Wilson With Par on 2d Hole.

Winning the second hole with a par 3, when Wilson, after being short on his tee shot, holed out in 4, Roesch continued his winning by capturing the third hole after Wilson had played his second shot into a trap and was barely out with his third. On the long fourth hole Wilson played his second shot into the woods after an indifferent drive and when he approached his ball, found it lying at the foot of the tree. Taking a left-hand club out of his bag, he tried to reach the green, but the ball only trickled down to the fairway, not 20 yards away. To cap the climax, Roesch, who also took four shots to reach the green, ran down a long putt for a 5 and a win, Wilson taking two putts.

Roesch Makes Bold Shot and Halves 8th Hole of Match.

Instead of being one down, Roesch was now two holes in the lead and still held this advantage after the fifth had been halved. He lost the sixth by half-topping his iron approach shot, the ball running over the green into a trap, and the seventh, when he failed to

The Crimson described the plan to take gate receipts out of intercollegiate athletics at Harvard as "a pleasantly Utopian scheme."

CROSSCO WINS PIMLICO FEATURE IN STRETCH DRIVE

Wild Rose Ace Is Winner By Neck

Bobashela Outgamed; Sankari Is Third in Stafford.

Partisan Wins From Juveniles in First Event of Day.

By CHARLES A. WATSON
(Staff Correspondent).

PIMLICO, Md., May 3.—Ringing up her third straight triumph on Old Line tracks, the Wild Rose Farm's Crosscо, with Jockey F. Halbert in the boot, won the Stafford Handicap, which featured the afternoon's racing at Pimlico. Crossco raced gallantly to earn the victory and outgamed the Audley Farms' fleet Bobashela, which the 2-year-old daughter of Trevisco-Crossbun beat to the wire by a scant neck. Third to cross the finish came Sankari, carrying the colors of the R. C. Stable, a length away, with Arcturus chasing him home.

Jockey F. Halbert came out of the West for the Baltimore meeting and his success here has been nothing short of sensational. His riding has been of the brightest sort and today's victory stamps him as one of the leading riders of the turf. Biding his time on the winner he sent Crossco to the front at the proper time and outrode Jockey C. Williams onthe B. B. Jones colt in the furious drive to the finish.

Off to a good start Montferrat at once assumed the lead but was closely attended by Bobashela and Crossco. The speed to the first turn aroused interest in the race. Rounding the turn and heading into the far lane Bobashela was out in front followed by Montferrat and Arcturus with Sankari far behind at the half pole, the field was closely bunched with the Audley colt still in front.

Sankari moved up with a tremendous burst of speed and was running third when the head of the stretch was reached. The R. C. Stable's horse went wide here or he might have been closer. Crossco set out for the leader under the drive of Jockey Halbert and finished with plenty of courage to earn the decision. Bobashela could not match strides with the C. F. Cherry colt and he flashed past the judges to win another for the talent who generously backed him.

Partisan Forgets to Run Out And Defeats Juveniles.

George D. Widener's fleet juvenile Partisan forgot to run out today and carried off the honors in the first event, the Fair Gain Purse, which was for 2-year-old maidens. Sun Alibi was second with Guilder third.

Guilder was the first to catch her toes and led the field to the head of the stretch where the winner, with Jockey F. Moon astride, took command and won with plenty of open space between herself and the Willis Sharpe Kilmer entry. Guilder tired in the stretch run after leading for the better part of the four-and-a-half furlong journey.

F. Harrington's Sporting Grit with a feather of 95 pounds on his back, won the second race, which was titled the Equitable Handicap, with claiming conditions attached, at a mile and one-sixteenth. The winner came like a flash through the stretch under a capable ride by Jockey T. Wilson to lead Dick Pending's Knockany to the wire by a length and a half. Third to cross the line was Fair Beth, bearing the colors of J. E. Griffith, the Baltimore sportsman.

Knockany, always in front, carried the field around the oval at a fast clip. Following the leader came the favorite, Shake It Up, with the balance of the field closely bunched. Not until the home lane was reached did Wilson make a move on the winner, which finished full of run to earn the victory. Edisto ran a disgraceful race under the guidance of Jockey H. Erickson, who had the Seagram horse in trouble for the entire trip.

Lady Tryster in Close Win Over Alwington Dolly.

Another race for 2-year-olds came with the running of the third event, which was contested over the 4½-furlong distance, and S. W. Labrot's Lady Tryster gained a close verdict over the favorite, Alwington Dolly. The McLean Stable's Colinport, far back in the early running, finished third.

Alwington Dolly broke very fast and opened up a good lead followed by the winner and Attamart. At the head of the stretch run, Jockey J. Bejshak went to the whip and came with a rush in the last furlong to gain the nose decision. Colinport ran a remarkable race to gain third place. Off tardily Pascuma went to the whip and saved ground on the turn to earn third place from Campfire Maid. Attamart with E. Legere in the boot was deliberately pulled out of the money when her chances for victory vanished.

KNOCKANY, hurried into the lead, held it all the way until right at the end, when SPORTING GRIT outgamed him. FAIR BETH saved ground and held on well. BANTON was outrun in first part, closed on the leaders, then tired. EDISTO was shuffled back going to first turn. SHAKITUP had early speed and stopped. STRONG HEART was in contention when he was knocked into the fence at the far turn.

2 FEATURES AT PIMLICO TODAY

Green Springs Valley and Pimlico Oaks Top Program.

Special to The Washington Post.

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, May 3.—The week-end racing card at Pimlico is the best program presented thus far during the meeting. Two $5,000 stakes are offered as the main attractions. The first to draw the attention of the fans will be the twenty-second renewal of the Green Springs Valley Steeplechase, over the two-mile course, while the second feature will be the eleventh running of the Pimlico Oaks for 3-year-old fillies, at a mile and one-sixteenth.

Much interest is attached to the running of the jumping event which will see Victor Emanuel's star timber topper, Elder, go to the post with the famous English rider, George Duller, in the saddle. Elder is expected to repeat last year's victory when the consistent fencer defeated Freddie Rock for the purse amounting to $4,500.

The Oaks will bring together many Preakness and Derby eligibles. It is a race which will test the quality of the fillies for next Friday's classic. Princess Tina carried off the honors for the Audley Farm last year when she defeated Nixie and Bateau. The race this year should produce something which will uphold the daughters of the turf in the Preakness which has only been won by Nellie Morse and Rhine Maiden since 1873. My Sis, the property of William P. Scheid, looms as the possible winner.

The Mackenzie, for 2-year-olds, which opens the program, and the Hilltop are the supporting features. The remainder of the program is made up of claiming affairs for the better class of platers. In the Hilltop, Twink will try to redeem himself for his failure in the Banners handicap, but he will have plenty of competition from The Nut, Dr. Freeland and Friarcliff.

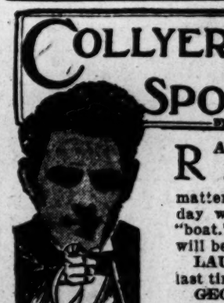
COLLYER'S COMMENT on the SPORT of KINGS

BY BERT E. COLLYER



RAGUS.

This is the XXX getaway special from the "dynamiters" down hardboot way. As a matter of fact, they all but lost their pants Thursday when the race had all the appearance of a "boat." It is my understanding that "no mistakes will be made today." Nuf sed.

LAUNDRYMAN, which won rather impressively last time, is the contender with HERRICK close up.

GEORGE McCRANN, which also copped last time, is taken to bring home all the kale in the third. This is a fair sort of hide. WILLIAM PENN, which came to life in his last effort, incidentally causing a furore and scandal, will in all probability outlast TAMINA.

LINCOLN PLAUT should be first to catch the judge's eye in the opener. True, there was oodles of kale overnight for

CAPITAL CITY UNLIMITED NINES OPEN PLAY MAY 12

Entries Close For League Tuesday

12 Teams Already in Line; May Play in Two Sections.

Clubs Urged to Post Franchise Fee and Submit Contracts.

UNLIMITED class contenders for the Capital Baseball League championship are primed and anxiously awaiting the start of the campaign. Managers of the teams entered decided last night that the initial games will be staged May 12, one week from tomorrow.

All player contracts and franchise fees must be filed with the secretary, R. J. Atkinson, at The Post sports department before midnight Tuesday. A schedule will be immediately drafted.

Twelve teams have signified their intentions to play in the unlimited division. Several others may be added before the list is closed Tuesday night. The managers of teams which have made application for franchises and which were not represented at last night's meeting are requested to communicate with the league secretary.

Should more than twelve teams compete in the league, the clubs will be divided into two sections, it was decided last night.

Leading Clubs Are Entered In League Race This Year.

The Tremont, National Press Building, Miller Aztec, Capitol A. C., Dixie Pig A. C., Avenue Valet Shop, St. Joseph A. C., St. Mark's A. C., Edmund's Art Stone Co., Cherrydale A. C., and Auth clubs will seek the unlimited title.

Managers of the following teams are requested to call the league secretary today from 4 to 6 o'clock at Main 4205, branch 38: Maryland Park A. C., Mount Rainier A. C., Foxall A. C., White Haven A. C., Virginia White Sox, Chevy Chase Grays, Brentwood Hawks, Berwyn A. C., Hume Springs, Jefferson Firemen and Naval Hospital.

Teams Urged to Complete Entry; Posts to Back Legion Nines.

Teams in all sections of the Capital City League are requested to post their franchise fees as soon as possible in order to permit early publication of the respective section schedules. Midget and junior fees and player contracts are due May 14 and senior fees and contracts are due May 21.

It was announced last night the Eight Femmes and Forty Chevaux will sponsor a team in the American Legion series of the Capital City League. W. W. Watt, manager of the series, stated that he will know definitely by Monday how many teams will compete in the Legion series. It is probable, he said, that a sixth post will adopt a team by that time. Delano, Victory, George Washington and Lincoln Posts have previously taken over teams.

ROESCH IN VICTORY OVER WILSON, 3-2

reach the green with his second stroke. The match was now again all even.

There were very few really brilliant plays throughout the round but on the eighth hole, after pulling his drive into the woods and barely reaching the fairway with his second, Roesch played a bold and accurate iron to the green, 175 yards away, thereby securing a half. He became 1 up by negotiating a par 3 on the ninth by chipping close to the pin from the green, while Wilson, missing his chip shot, could not do better than 4.

The tenth hole was a comedy of errors, a series of missed shots occurring before either player reached the green and then Wilson laid Roesch a half-stymie, so that a 6 was placed on the card for each of them. The eleventh was played in par. On the twelfth Wilson evened the match by playing up to the cup from the green and holing out with a single putt and he seemed certain to win the thirteenth when Roech's drive landed in a trap. Roesch, however, played another brilliant iron from the sand to the green and halved the hole.

From that moment Wilson sank deeper and deeper. He lost the fourteenth when his missed tee-shot carried his ball about 125 yards into a cedar tree; the fifteenth, when he drove into the ditch and was compelled to lift with a penalty stroke, and the sixteenth, when he overapproached the green and over-ran the cup by several yards when he played his third stroke. Roesch meanwhile, played each one of these holes in par, ending the match when he putted his ball into the cup, after a perfect approach, on the sixteenth green. The cards:

Roesch	5	3	4	5	4	5	5	5	3—39

Albert R. MacKenzie, who was runner-up in the Washington tournament last year, received many congratulations upon winning the consolation flight in the first sixteen, being the only veteran player to come through with victory upon his banner. He defeated Charles W. Cole, jr., former public links champion, and one of the younger players of the Indian Spring Club.

troit for Pitcher George Uhle. Midget Joe Sewell was shifted from short to third to make room for Tavener, but the latter is now doing bench duty, with Ray Gardner covering the ground between second and third. Gardner starred with New Orleans for several seasons before being landed by the Indians. He hit .303 with the Pelicans last year and shows much promise both as batter and fielder.

Jamieson's Case Is Similar To That of Sam Rice.

Outfielder Charlie Jamieson's case appears to be similar to that of Sam Rice, of the Nationals. He was expected to have to give way to a younger player this season, but beat down all opposition and is still in charge of the left field section of the wide open spaces here. Rice, however, does not appear to have such a strong hold on his job as has Jamieson.

While Manager Johnson will not commit himself on the subject, it is the writer's opinion that Red Barnes likely will be given another chance in right field as soon as he completely recovers from the attack of water on the knee, which put him out of commission some time ago.

It is the impression around the club that Barnes' injury affected his batting by forcing him to adopt a different stance, that he adds more pep to the game, and that he is a more timely hitter, when right, than is Rice.

Pitcher "Sad Sam" Jones was given permission to take a couple of days off to visit his family at Woodfield, Ohio. He will rejoin the team here Sunday.

WIGGINS VICTIM DESPITE STRATEGY

"And with that," Mr. Wiggins said, "he belted me two left hooks on the cracked rib and folded me up."

Socially, Mr. Wiggins has identified himself with Jack Johnson, the old negro heavyweight champion, so if he should become champion the social character of the title would be sharply revised, but whether upward or downward I hesitate to say. I realize it's a tradition to disapprove Jack Johnson, but Tad Dorgan, the cartoonist, who died yesterday, regarded him as one of his best friends and the saltiest human character he ever knew. Mr. Dorgan was an expert on sham and false respectability and would not let public opinion force friends on him or take them from him.

Mr. Wiggins' administration would restore the old saloon atmosphere, the natural atmosphere of pugilism, to a game which has been gasping in the rarefied air of suburban soirees and conversationes for several years.

The crest of the late heavyweight administration contained a teacup with the twining motto: "One lump or two?"

Mr. Wiggins' coat of arms consists of seidels in eruption surmounting the motto, "See what the boys in the back room will have."

ULRICH'S SET OF 393 TOPS CLASS A

Rosenberg and Harris Gain Doubles Lead With 743 Set.

CLASS A records of the Washington City Duckpin Association's 1929 tournament were left spattered about the Coliseum last night as Jack Ulrick, Brad Mandley, Maxie Rosenberg and Pauline Harrison contributed the most sparkling individual efforts to date.

Ulrich stepped into the lead in singles with a 396 string, followed by Mandley, the District League champion, with 383.

Rosenberg and Harrison piled up 743 pins to claim the lead in doubles, falling seventeen pins short of the record held by Howard Campbell and Hap Burtner. Neither of the District Doubles League champions could break into the singles prize list, but Harrison collected enough pins to take the all-events lead with an 1,126 total.

Jack and Glenn Wolstenholme collected 706 in doubles despite Glenn's 83 string in the second game.

The Independent, No. 2, Team of class E hung up the best five-man string for the night, 1,545, which was good enough to rate second.

The tournament enters the final week Monday night.

The Return Of OLD KING BRADY

Revived by MERLE W. HERSEY

(Copyright Protected Reproduction in Whole or in Part Prohibited.)

THE BRADYS AND THE WALL STREET PRINCE.

CHAPTER VII.

Old King Brady Turns on Mrs. Drake.

In the sixth chapter the prince arranges to continue on the Staghound to Staten Island the Bradys remain on board in disguise. Drake discovers the plot against his life and plans a counterplot with Harry to assist him. He offers to reward him highly and also give him a chance to travel!

WE shall have to go back a little to see what the prince and Mrs. Drake had been doing all the while. They had put in most of their time under the window where Old King Brady had placed the seats.

They spoke of Drake's discovery of his wife's treachery; they planned a dozen ways to dispose of the convict, only to have each one upset by the one or the other.

At any time Old King Brady could have gone out and collared them both, but the time had not yet come for that. He listened until at last the woman fell asleep. The prince held her for some time and then he, too, dozed off. Old King Brady gently opened the door with the intention of stealing out, when his attention was riveted upon a strange scene.

The prince was indeed asleep, with his head thrown backward and his mouth wide open. Over him bent the Drake woman. She was in the act of withdrawing her fingers from his mouth.

"She has given him a dose of morphine—surest thing!" thought the detective. "So much for dealing with a fiend like that. But I must save the boy if I can."

Knowing that the one antidote for morphine poisoning is coffee, and being often called upon to deal with such cases, the old detective invariably carries with him tablets of caffeine. One of these he now produced, and when he saw Mrs. Drake calmly walk away, he lost not an instant in stepping out and slipping a caffeine tablet in the prince's open mouth. The boy stirred a little but did not waken. He was still standing there when Mrs. Drake came toward him across the deck. She started at the sight of a stranger, but came on. She swept past him, muttering to herself, "It's that old idiot of an uncle."

Old King Brady went back to the deckhouse, moving as quietly as possible. He peered around the corner and saw Mrs. Drake searching the prince. She laid several fat packages of bills on the vacant chair, and took from his breast pocket another package which looked like bonds.

Slipping on the big white hat which he always carries with him, the detective stood in his usual dress, ready for business.

He suddenly turned the corner of the deckhouse and advanced toward Mrs. Drake. She gave a suppressed scream. "Old King Brady!" she gasped.

"Yes, Old King Brady, the detective," was the calm reply. "My dear, you must let me in on this deal."

"You—you—" she choken for words.

"Villain, wretch, scoundrel, mean old thing, or anything you like," offered the old detective. "Sure you knew the Bradys were working on the case of the Wall Street Prince. Did you hope to escape them? By the way, I see you have poisoned the little prince. May I trouble you for the graft?" pointing to the bundles. Calmly he gathered them up and stowed them in his pockets.

With a strenuous effort Mrs. Drake controlled herself. "Then you have been shadowing me right along, I suppose?"

"Never let up, my dear. Haven't I done beautiful work? Why, it was my partner who helped your husband escape from Sing-Sing."

"You wouldn't have gotten there if our yacht hadn't broken down."

"Perhaps it would have required different methods, but we should have got there just the same. This part of the graft I have taken charge of is only part of it. If you expect to stand in with me you had better make a clean breast of things," said the old detective. "Tell me about the prince first. How much morphine did you give him? No lying, my dear."

"A grain and a half."

"That will put him out of the picture."

"Tell me quick what you intend to do," said Mrs. Drake. "Don't keep me in suspense."

"My good soul, I know all, and I have evidence enough to hang you. But I am out for the stuff, so I am prepared to bargain with you. What we really want is the money your husband hid or buried. He must be coaxed into revealing its hiding place. Do it and I will take you to your South African steamer and we will divide the graft."

"Do you mean that?" demanded Mrs. Drake.

"I'll prove it sister," said Old King Brady, producing a vial containing white tablets. "Lest your dose prove ineffectual, I'll put the finishing touches on the job."

"Give it to him!" hissed the woman. "Give it to the little idiot, and then I'll believe you. What will you do with my husband?"

"Return him to Sing-Sing, for which I shall receive a large reward."

"Then, here goes!" and Old King Brady forced the caffeine tablet upon the sleeping prince.

"Now I believe you!" said Mrs. Drake. "Don't I get half the stuff you took?"

"I'll keep it for the present. Get forward and get ready for your work. I'll carry the prince into the stateroom, there is no use in letting him die here." He accordingly picked up the slight boy and carried him in where he placed him in one of the bunks and stripped him of his wig and mustache. His head with its closely cropped yellow hair was revealed.

When the detective left the stateroom, the boy's breathing was natural, and he knew it was only a question of time before he would waken. To avoid trouble, then, he slipped a pair of handcuffs on his wrists. He then rejoined Mrs. Drake.

The Downfall of Mr. Drake.

Drake looked surprised to see his wife alone and to hear her speak to him in a tone so different from that she had assumed in the cabin some hours before.

"Well, where's Charley?" he asked.

"Drunk and asleep, the little beast!" cried Mrs. Drake. "Oh, Stan, what a fool I've been."

"You were never anything else, Julie."

"I admit it is true, but you wrong me, Stan. I never meant to harm you—that was all the prince's scheme. Your little finger is worth more to me than his whole body."

Like most men, Drake was to be won over.

"We'll get the money and leave your prince behind us," Drake declared. "I'll try you once more, Julie, but beware how you ever attempt to fool me again, my dear. Now go on deck, and I'll soon follow you."

He turned to Harry and asked him what he thought of it all. Young King Brady seemed to think she was sincere, but "he was not to judge."

"I do know her, and it is because I know her so well that I don't know what to think. Somehow, I can't trust that woman yet. You go ahead and play the part I told you and I'll make you rich. If she turns on me, or the prince appears, you know what to do." Thus saying, he left the cabin.

It was all a mystery to Harry, of course, but the disappearance of the prince from the scene of action signified that the old detective had a hand in the game.

He waited a few minutes and then went on deck. Capt. Rowland came to meet him. "Old King Brady has gone ashore. He has captured the prince and is pretending to stand in with the woman. He told me to tell you this."

"Right!" said Harry, and dropped over the side and hurried along the wharf, and up the steps to the old house.

He discovered the little window into the cellar and also found that a back door was gone entirely. He was listening at the open door and wondering whether he should enter there when a hand came out from among some bushes and touched his shoulder. He turned to find himself facing Old King Brady, much to his relief.

"What's the program?" breathed the old detective, drawing out of sight again.

"I am to do the guard act in the cellar for Drake. The others are after the money." Harry hurried into the cellar. It was cluttered up with rubbish. A dozen men could have hidden there easily. Young King Brady crouched behind a barrel and waited breathlessly.

The seconds passed. He could hear footsteps above him and he was wondering what could have occurred to prevent the carrying out of the program when all at once a shot rang out, followed instantly by a woman's piercing scream.

Quick as thought Harry was making his way up the cellar stairs. The screaming continued. Now another shot rang out!

"Harry! Help!" Old King Brady's voice cried.

The sounds came from a room ahead on the left and into this Young King Brady dashed an instant later.

The scene was startling. Stretched upon the floor lay Drake—shot through the heart. Beside him lay a dirty, ragged tramp, while both Old King Brady and Mrs. Drake were struggling with the three others of the same breed. One had the woman down and was apparently trying to choke her.

Two of the tramps had tackled the old detective and were trying to get his revolver from him.

Scattered about on the floor were hundreds of greenbacks, and near the fireplace was a great pile with empty whisky bottles and dozens of cigar stumps among them.

Twice Young King Brady fired. The first shot brought down the tramp struggling with the woman, the second one of those with whom Old King Brady was contending, while the third took to his heels, bolted through the window and disappeared.

"Hold!" gasped Old King Brady. "Our work lies here. There is the cash hidden so long by the man who lies there—dead."

The Brady's Win Their Case.

Old King Brady was right—the job was done. After the fracas in the old mansion the case went on as smooth as glass.

Mrs. Drake promptly fainted, and finding that it was only a faint, Old King Brady promptly handcuffed her, not knowing how she might take on when she revived.

The three tramps were all severely wounded, but all survived and were turned over to the authorities. It seems they had been in the habit of hanging out in the old house and had accidentally discovered the hidden money, under a stone in the cellar, the evening before. Then one of their number had been sent for whisky and cigars, a debauch followed, during which they quarreled, and the money became scattered about. They were just getting on their feet when the Drakes entered.

Mrs. Drake kicked up an awful row when she came to, only to find herself in the toils, and it was some time before she would believe that Old King Brady had actually gone back on her.

But it was so, and she and the prince wound up in the Tombs.

The wounded tramps and the body of the escaped convict were taken aboard the yacht. Mrs. Drake identified the tramp who had killed her husband and he subsequently went to the electric chair for the crime, his companions each getting a year on the island.

The prince and Mrs. Drake went to Sing Sing together, for Old King Brady had a strong case against them, and they were now without funds to fight with.

The money recovered at the old mansion went to Drake's astonished creditors.

From both the broken brokers and the creditors the Bradys received liberal rewards, and Jack Raymond and Fred Ayres also contributed their share. The old dectective had saved them from ruin and they proved duly grateful.

And so it all ended, but on the stock exchange the renown of the keen detectives again received a big boom.

Next week the Bradys are called to Death Valley to run down a bad man, "Captain Thunderbolt." The story is full of thrills.. Don't miss it!

CONVERTIBLES AGAIN LEAD BOND DEALINGS

Broadened Trading Fails to Stimulate General Upward Move.

GERMAN ISSUES ARE FIRM

New York, May 3 (A.P.).—Trading in the general investment issues, notably in the foreign list and a few select rails, broadened out today, but failed to stimulate any general upward movement of prices. As in preceding sessions, most of the action was concentrated in a handful of popular convertibles subject to speculative buying.

Raggedness characterized many of the standard investment issues in the late trading, but the steady undertone of the fixed-income securities was manifested in the firmness of United States Government obligations. Prices in the Government list, on buying by banks and institutions mainly, scored advances ranging from 2-32 to 10-32. The Liberties are now more than a point above their low prices of the year and the Treasuries from 2 to 4 points above their low levels.

American I. G. Chemical 5½s, still leading the list in sales with a total of $715,000 par value, failed to duplicate their gains of preceding sessions. After some early strength they finished down fractionally for the first net loss since they were listed last Friday. These debentures are convertible into Class A common, which carries no voting power and is subject to call at option of the company.

The convertible group as a whole turned irregular after early firmness. American International 5½s, the second fastest mover, gained a point, but American Telephone 4½s sold off. Alleghany Corporation 5s also closed down fractionally. After an early bulge, Tennessee Copper & Chemical 6s A moved downward for a net loss of 2½ points, but the Bs finished more than a point higher.

German loans were conspicuously firm in the foreign division. After the recent disappointing news of the reparations negotiations they sagged to levels where yields were very attractive. The Central Agricultural Bank 7s ran up 2 points. The Republic 7s and various industrial and municipal issues also firmed. Brazilian issues were soft, but most of the foreign list held steady on fair buying.

Strength in the high-grade rails was evidenced by gains in Atchison general 4s, Pennsylvania issues and Southern Railway general 4s, which moved up a point to duplicate their year's high, at 89.

Industrials, which have suffered in a recent shift of investment attention to rails and utilities offering good yields, moved a little lower. The disposition of prosperous corporations to call their bonds also has made them less desirable to investors seeking long-term obligations.

SENATE APPROVES ALFRED WHEAT FOR DISTRICT JUDGESHIP

Confirmation Fills Post Created Last Year to Relieve Congestion.

NOMINEE IS ACTING SOLICITOR GENERAL

Will Assume Supreme Court Position After Closing Justice Affairs.

Alfred A. Wheat, of New York, will be the seventh judge of the District of Columbia Supreme Court. His nomination for that office was confirmed yesterday by the Senate.

The judgeship to which Wheat has been appointed was created by Congress at its last session in order to relieve congestion in the court and speed up the condemnation of land for the Federal Government.

Mr. Wheat will be sworn in by Chief Justice Walter I. McCoy as soon as he can wind up his affairs as Acting Solicitor General of the United States. He has been with the Department of Justice for seven years, serving as special assistant to the Solicitor General until W. D. Mitchell was promoted from Solicitor General to Attorney General. Then he was made Acting Solicitor General.

Although he is listed as a New Yorker, Wheat was born in New Hampshire. After he was graduated from Dartmouth College, he came here and, with Allan Davis, started what is now the Business High School.

While he was teaching he was studying law at Columbian College, now George Washington. Having received his law degree, he went to New York to practice, but was brought back here by Solicitor General James D. Beck (now a representative of Pennsylvania), to serve as a special assistant.

One of the judges now on the local Supreme Court bench—Peyton Gordon—was a classmate of Mr. Wheat at Columbian College.

Other nominations confirmd by the Senate yesterday were:

Patrick J. Hurley, of Oklahoma, to be Assistant Secretary of War; George C. Barnes, of Pennsylvania, to be Assistant Treasurer of the United States; William Thurber, to be chief examiner of the United States Patent Office, and Sidney C. Brown, to be collector of customs for Tampa, Fla.

Jewelers to Open Parley Tomorrow

Delegates Will Have Photo Taken With Hoover on Monday Afternoon.

Many delegates are in the Capital for the fifteenth annual convention of the Maryland-Delaware-District of Columbia Jewelers Association, which opens tomorrow at the Mayflower Hotel and which will continue through until Tuesday.

As a special feature of the convention, delegates will pose for a picture on the White House grounds Monday afternoon at 12:45 o'clock with President Hoover. Sightseeing, banquets, luncheons and dancing will furnish entertainment for the visitors in hours not devoted to business sessions.

Representative Clyde Kelly, Roe Fulkerson, editor of Kiwanis Magazine, and Bartley J. Doyle, president of the Keystone Publishing Co. of Philadelphia, will speak during the convention.

Boy, 8, Fatally Hurt Stealing Ride on Auto

An attempt to steal a ride on the rear bumper of an automobile yesterday proved fatal to James Ingraham, colored, 8 years old, of 1737 Ninth street northwest, who was crushed to death when he fell under the wheels of a trailer pulled by the automobile.

The dead youth, in company with a companion, jumped on the rear bumper of an automobile operated by Dave Groom, colored, of 601 P street northwest, on P near Sixth street northwest. A passerby, police were told, shouted to the two boys to get off. Ingraham's companion, whose identity police have not learned, got off safely, but Ingraham fell under the wheels of the trailer. He was pronounced dead upon arrival at Freedman's Hospital. Coroner J. Ramsay Nevitt ordered an inquest held this morning at the morgue at 11 o'clock.

Great Falls Bridge Plans Are Given Hurley Approval

New Span Specifications Get Official Sanction; Structure Will Connect Fairfax County, Va., With Montgomery County, Md.; One of Many Projects.

Assistant Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley yesterday approved plans submitted to the War Department for the bridge that the Great Falls Bridge Co. has been authorized by Congress to erect at Great Falls.

The bridge when completed will connect Fairfax County, Va., with Montgomery County, Md., and will give the fast growing population of both counties easy access to Washington. It is one of the many projects contemplated in connection with the development of Great Falls.

Maj. Brehon Somervell, District engineer, will supervise the construction. Part of the bridge will rest upon Great Falls Island, in which the United States holds an undivided half interest. The War Department gave its approval for placing some of the foundations for the bridge on this island.

Congress authorized the construction of the bridge on April 1, 1928. The bridge, the act declared, must not hinder navigation nor fill in the channel. It is directed that the bridge span the Potomac River at Great Falls, 10 miles up stream from the Francis Scott Key Bridge.

PRATT BUDGET ASKS HALF MILLION MORE

Total Appropriation Urged for Year Is $3,591,601; No Surprises Seen.

100 NEW MEN REQUESTED

An increase of $505,651 over the appropriations for the coming fiscal year is asked for the Police Department by Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, in his estimates for the 1931 fiscal year.

The total appropriation asked for by the new police chief is $3,591,601. The estimates were submitted yesterday by Maj. Pratt to Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor, to whom all estimates go as they are prepared by department heads until the whole District budget has been tentatively prepared and is ready for consideration by the District Commissioners.

The estimates prepared by Pratt contained no surprises. They provide for an increase of 100 men in the personnel of the department; purchase of additional motor equipment, including two armor-protected automobiles for use of the rum and emergency headquarters squads; purchase of a site for a new First Precinct Police Station, and an increased number of officers and detectives, the latter to be promoted from the ranks. Their places would be filled out of the 100 new privates provided for.

Approval of the estimates will mean that all "rookie" cops are to be put through a three-month period of careful training and preparation for their job of policing. Such schooling, Maj. Pratt believes, is necessary properly to equip a young policeman with the fine points of his job and provide the city with the kind of police protection it should have.

Acquisition of a new site for the First Precinct Station, now located on Twelfth street between C and D streets northwest, was provided for in anticipation of the development of the Federal building program. Pratt proposed purchase of a new site on the south side of E street between Ninth and Tenth streets northwest. The estimates provide $50,560 for purchase of the proposed site.

The increase in the personnel and the advancement of men in rank to provide badly needed additional officers calls for an increase of $280,826 in the estimates for personnel.

Erection of a storage building for use of the department is another new project provided for in the estimates. Such a building, it is estimated, would cost $155,000.

In addition to the two armor-protected cars asked for in the estimates, purchase of fourteen additional motorcycles, which would be distributed among the precincts as reserve equipment, is provided for.

Shipstead to Take Oath From Sick-Bed

Senator's Vote Is Needed for Debenture Feature of Farm Aid Bill.

Precedent will be established for the Senate at a hospital in Baltimore today, when Senator Shipstead, Farmer-Laborite, of Minnesota, who has been ill since the extra session began, takes his oath of office from a sick-bed.

This procedure was authorized yesterday, the Senate adopting a resolution directing its chief clerk, O. Crockett, to go to Baltimore to swear in Senator Shipstead. An effort subsequently will be made, it was indicated, to pair the Minnesotan with another senator in the vote on the pending debenture amendment to the farm relief bill.

A prior hospital congressional induction was made yesterday, according to the United Press, when Representative John J. Casey, of Pennsylvania, was given the oath of his office by a notary public in a hospital at Balboa. Casey has been at the hospital since April 29, when he suffered a paralytic stroke while touring the Canal Zone.

CITY ABANDONS PLAN TO EXTEND V STREET

Cost Is Called Prohibitive, in View of Return as an Aid to Traffic.

FIRST DISCUSSED IN 1912

The District Commissioners yesterday ordered abandoned plans for cutting V street through from Georgia avenue to Ninth street northwest, opposite the entrance of the Washington American league baseball park.

The cost of cutting the street through was considered to be entirely too much for the benefits which would result in the lessening of traffic congestion now created by baseball crowds at Seventh and U streets.

Following authorization by Congress in 1927, the District brought condemnation proceedings and the resulting jury award effectively brought the plan to its death. The jury assessed damages totaling $137,511.08, with benefits totaling only $27,068, which left a balance of $110,443.08 to be borne by the District out of its general revenues.

The plan received its death blow recently when S. R. Bowen, vice president and general counsel of the Washington Railway & Electric Co., in a conference with the corporation counsel, William W. Bride, declared that his company was well enough satisfied with present conditions and could not see how it would benefit by the new street and the necessity of rerouting its tracks over it.

Consequently Mr. Bowen said, the railway company did not feel justified and would not, agree to any reduction in its share of the damages fixed by the jury. The street car campany would have got $90,327 of the total damages. The Commissioners therefore abandoned the plan.

The scheme first was discussed in 1912, District records show, and a measure was introduced in Congress in January, 1913. Similar bills were reintroduced in succeeding Congresses, and finally, on January 13, 1927, fourteen years later, Congress enacted the measure into law. In the meantime, changing conditions and increasing values shot the damages up to the point where the Commissioners themselves, after having gone through condemnation proceedings in the courts, threw the whole project out.

The Bouden boy was struck by an automobile operated by Guy Sydnor, 22 years old, of 1725 Fifteenth street southeast, while playing in front of his home. He was taken to Casualty Hospital and treated by Dr. Louis Jimal for shock and internal injuries. His condition is said to be serious. Sydnor was released pending the outcome of the child's injuries.

District Grand Jury's Report Then Proceeds to Urge More Dry Laws.

POLICE ARE COMMENDED

After laying at the doorstep of prohibition the cause for the increase in crime, the District grand jury, in a special report made to Chief Justice Walter I. McCoy yesterday in the District Supreme Court, appealed to the citizenry of the District to "stamp out crime and disrespect for law" by aiding in enforcement of the prohibition and all other laws.

The prohibition situation in the District was the main issue dealt with in the report, which was prompted by the address of President Herbert Hoover recently at the Associated Press luncheon in New York City on the subject of law observance.

"It would seem that most all crime is on the increase and the cause of this increase, from our observation, has in a considerable degree been due to the prohibition act. That much improvement in the enforcing of the prohibition laws is possible, we believe to be true," the report stated.

More Dry Laws Urged.

Additional prohibition laws for the District, empowering all District policemen with the authority of Federal prohibition agents, and the abolition of the paid police-informer system in prohibition cases were the outstanding recommendations in the report.

"Since the adoption of the eighteenth amendment, the Congress, which is, in effect, the State Legislature for the District of Columbia, has passed no legislation under section 2 of the amendment for its enforcement specifically by the District. The terms of the national prohibition act, of course, apply in the District, as they do in all States, but the authority for the enforcement of this law by act of Congress rests with the Commissioner of Prohibition. The District of Columbia has a prohibition law, known as the Sheppard act, which was passed by Congress prior to the adoption of the eighteenth amendment, but this law is not as broad in its terms on violations. In other words, the Metropolitan Police Department of the District is without specific legislative authority to enforce the eighteenth amendment or the national prohibition act."

Police Are Commended.

Eleven men are at present employed as prohibition agents for the District, five counties of Maryland and one county of Virginia, in addition to approximately 35 District policemen, with power to enforce the prohibition laws in the District, the report stated.

"In this connection the grand jury wishes to commend the Metropolitan Police Department for the effective work it has done in prohibition enforcement in the District in spite of the handicaps under which it is operating.

"It is impossible to state, of course, what the intention of Congress may have been in omitting to provide specifically for the enforcement of the act by local authorities. However, on its face it is apparent that the Congress did not provide that the Metropolitan Police Department should undertake the enforcement of prohibition in the District under the terms of the national prohibition act. Metropolitan police officers, therefore, while having authority to enforce all other laws, can not act in the enforcement of the national prohibition act without first securing authority from the Commissioner of Prohibition.

Alternatives Are Cited.

"The present situation presents two courses of action. First, that the enforcement of the act be left entirely to the Commissioner of Prohibition, as provided in the national prohibition act and subsequent acts; second, that the Congress specifically provide by an amendment to the national prohibition act, or by a separate act, that the Metropolitan Police Department have equal authority with the Commissioner of Prohibition for the enforcement of the act in the District. The grand jury recommends that steps be taken to accomplish the latter course. This would empower every policeman to act in connection with the prohibition law just as he does in connection with every other law, and would not involve any special detail for that purpose.

"The grand jury also has noted it is the practice of the Police Department to employ persons outside of the regular service as informers to obtain evidence in cases of reported or suspected liquor violations and to appear as witnesses in these cases. We believe this practice is not sound and recommend, therefore, that the practice be discontinued and that all evidence in cases of reported or suspected liquor violations should be obtained by persons in the regular service of the Commissioner of Prohibition or the Metropolitan Police Department and by any other persons having police powers."

The report was signed by Eugene E. Thompson, foreman of the jury.

WESLEY METHODIST CHURCH CELEBRATES

Centennial Observed in New Edifice; Former Pastors Attend Exercises.

TALKS ARE REMINISCENT

From a little chapel at Fifth and F streets northwest to the magnificent stone edifice at Connecticut avenue and Jenifer streets has been the development of the Wesley Methodist Church of Washington during the last 100 years. The centennial was marked last night by a reception in the present place of wotship.

Talks reminiscent of past days of the church were made by the Rev. William I. McKenney, who was pastor for a term beginning in 1881; the Rev. C. W. Baldwin, of Baltimore, now 89 years old; W. P. Gallther, chairman of the board, and Mrs. Page Milburn. Other former pastors present were Dr. J. C. Nicholson, Dr. W. A. Hagerty and Dr. Howard F. Downs.

The Wesley Methodist Church has been closely linked with the religious life of the Capital since its foundation. The first pastor was the Rev. William Ryland, and among his flock was President Andrew Jackson. The two were close friends. The Methodist clergyman was later appointed chaplain of the Navy.

The Rev. George C. Cookman served as pastor from 1838 to 1840. He was one of the outstanding orators of his day and the crowds that went to hear him taxed the capacity of the chapel. When the Rev. John N. Mafftit conducted a revival there in 1841, it is recorded, the crowds were so great the evangelist had to enter the church by a ladder through a window to reach the pupit.

In December, 1856, the chapel gave way to the Wesley Church building, wherein services were held until February 12, 1922. A temporary wooden structure was used until the new church was completed, in 1925. The centennial celebration will be continued Sunday, according to an announcement by the Rev. Fred C. Reynolds, pastor, with a sermon by the Rev. Dr. J. Phelps Hand, district superintendent.

JURY IS DISMISSED IN KERR WILL CASE; DEBATES 25 HOURS

Suit Over Apportionment of $500,000 Estate Will Be Retried.

7 WOMEN AND 5 MEN ARE 6-6 ON LAST VOTE

27 Kerr Relatives Protest 50-50 Sharing With Wife's 7 Heirs.

After being locked up for 25 hours to debate the question of whether or not the will of the late Brig. Gen. John Brown Kerr should be broken, a jury of seven women and five men reported a hopeless deadlock late yesterday to Justice Wendell P. Stafford in Criminal Branch of the District Supreme Court. On the final ballot the jurors stood 6 to 6. They were discharged, and the case will be retried.

Three days were consumed in trial of the case, which was given to the jurors late Thursday. At 11 o'clock the jury was disagreed, and United States Marshal Edgar C. Snyder was confronted for the first time with the task of providing for a civil court jury. The Government provides only for criminal juries in the court, but the magistrate in the case had ordered that the jurors be kept together until they agreed upon a verdict.

The lone dormitory in the courthouse was used, with a woman deputy marshal to look after the comforts of the women, and a male deputy to oversee the men. The women jurors occupied the dormitory room, and the men were provided with beds immediately outside the room in a corridor.

The jurors were also forced to purchase their meals out of their own funds because of lack of provisions by the Government. The women on the jury were Mrs. Marguerite M. Miller, Mrs. Catharine A. Johnson, Mrs. Catherine Rasby, Mrs. Florence E. Smith, Mrs. Anna M. Sullivan, Mrs. Mabel F. Thompson and Mrs. Frances Young. The men jurors were William Zirkle, John Dillon, Claude A. Adler, Charles B. Elgin and John M. Allen.

An estate of $500,000 was left by Gen. Kerr. In his will he divided half to his wife's relatives and half to his own relatives, his wife being dead. His wife's relatives numbered only seven, while his own relatives amounted to 27, and the contest was instituted by the relatives of the deceased side of the house. Attorneys W. Gwynn Gardiner, South Trimble and Arthur G. Lambert appeared for those contesting the will, while Attorney Enoch S. Chase represented the defenders of the document.

Postal Head Tells Of "Dead" Letters

Informs Audience on Radio Wrong Addresses Cause Big Yearly Loss.

Cooperation of citizenry in an effort to eliminate the enormous waste in the mail business of the United States was asked last night by Postmaster General Walter F. Brown in a radio address over WRC and a coast-to-coast National Broadcasting Co. hookup.

That 23,800,000 letters and 460,000 parcels went to dead letter and dead parcel stations in the last fiscal year was the Postmaster General's declaration. In addition to this loss, he pointed out that improperly and poorly addressed mail costs the Postoffice Department between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000 each year in its efforts to find the person for who the mail is intended.

Postage and stationery waste totals $500,000 each year, Mr. Brown asserted, while $160,000 in cash and stamps was lost last year because of improperly addressed letters and packages. The Postmaster General urged his listeners to write addresses plainly and in full, to be sure and give a return address and to wrap packages securely. Careful use of stamps was also urged to prevent return of mail for additional postage because stamps do not stick.
